Trenton appeared to have too much third-period condition for the Campbellford crew and rammed home four goals to snatch victory after being down 4-3 a minute after the heat started.

Up to this point the game had been a rugged hard-checking affair with neither side sparing the horses. Trenton went into a one goal lead with the score 2-1 at the end of the first period after Campbellford had drawn first blood ten seconds after play started.

The village lads checking hard both ways and sparked by Hendy and Peloquin rammed home two goals in the first eleven minutes of the second period but Trenton's Watson got his first goal of the game to knot the count with minutes to go.

Peloquin put the Campbellford crew one up in the first two minutes of play in the third chukker but from then on Trenton took over the scoring chores. The town squad drove home four pucks in the last fifteen minutes to put the game in the bag and succeeded in holding the desperate Campbellford crew off the score sheet. Haffey in the Trenton nets turned in a fine effort, and continuously thwarted the opposition's forwards.

The game got rough in this period with both sides laying it on with abandon. Five penalties were dished out by officials Lee and St. Louis with Hendy, of Campbellford being the chief offender with two.

Vic Burtt, Watson, the Johnson brothers, LaMorre and Schmitt looked the best for the winners with Hendy, Peloquin, Robinson, Blake and Hay doing sterling work for the Campbellford team.

The teams:

Trenton: Goal, Haffey; defence, Schmitt, Burtt; centre, Ellis; wings, C. Johnson, B. Johnson; subs, Watson, LaMorre, Twigg, Mitts, B. LaMorre, Couture, Carswell.

Campbellford: Goal, Donald; defence, Hendy, Tanner; centre, Peloquin.; wings, Robinson, Blake; subs, Pettegrew, Free, Hay, West.

Summary:

They will be facing Toronto Argos across the line of scrimmage on Saturday in the Canadian final at Varsity Stadium, and if any scoring is to be done on behalf of the West, it will be engineered by one or more of this quintet. Left to right, Harry Hood, Johnny Reagan, Bob Sandberg, Don Smith and Don Hiney. Reagan and Sandberg are new American imports to the Western titlists this season. The former looks after 'Peg passing duties while Sandberg does the kicking and shares plunging duties with Smith and Hood.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

Grenloch, N.J., Nov. 26·(AP)—The boarded-up amusement park here probably never will be remembered as one of those famous fight camps whose fame comes down through the years. It's a collection of small, white-painted buildings on a hilltop overlooking a pond where young folks come to swim in summertime...One barnlike building, heated by a couple of coal stoves, is where a ring has been set up so that Jersey Joe Walcott can prepare to tangle with Joe Louis for the world heavyweight championship next month...Another small, barely furnished house is Joe's living quarters. Compared to Louis' training camp at Pompton Lakes, the place looks as if Walcott was practising an austerity program...Maybe it's symbolic of the fact that Walcott is what they call a "hungry" fighter—a guy who never had much and who is eager to earn wealth and security for himself and his family.

Fetch a Dictionary

Ever since Walcott first bobbed up as a challenger for Louis, the story has been going around about the time he served as one of Louis' sparring partners at Lakewood and was fired after he had the champ on the floor.... Mushky Jackson, the Mr. Malaprop of Jacob's Beach, discounts the yarn...."

"This guy comes in, nobody knows him; he was just another of those bums I hired for $25 a round. Louis was taking it easy when boffo, he slipped over a right and staggered Louis up against the ropes. He wouldn't go more than one round and after two or three days when he wouldn't go back for the second and make $50, I told him to get out...But some of the writers were there that time he hit Louis and they wrote all about this unknown that had Joe on the voyage of a knockout."

Assumption Will Not Enter Playoffs

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 26 — (CP) — Assumption College Purple Riders, Eastern Canada senior basketball champions for the last two years, will not defend their titles this year, it was announced today by Rev. Lee Higgins, athletic director of the College.

The team, victor in the Ontario Senior Association last year, will play a 22-game schedule against colleges from Canada and the United States and will take part in the annual "city series" with the newly-organized Windsor Alumni.

But after that they'll call it quits, Father Higgins said, because of final examinations starting in mid-April this year instead of May as in past.

April is the time for Ontario and Eastern Canada playoffs.

However, it is believed Assumption will be invited to the Olympic basketball tournament scheduled for Toronto late in May. The tourney, to pick players for an all-star team to represent Canada in the 1948 Olympics, will feature top colleges and independent senior clubs from all over Canada.

"Casey on the Mound"

The sun was sinking in the West,
The teams were playing at their best.
The crowds in the stands were all a-blubber,
Because Hugh Casey had just stepped on the rubber.

Down came his arm with a bright white gleam,
Down came the ball with a terrific scream.
The crowd rose up but all was done.
For the umpire yelled with force "Strike one!"

The ninth came along with two men out,
The count was two and one on Johnny McSnout.
The situation now was a sorry sight.

Up stepped Di Mag with his mighty club,
Making a redwood look like a shrub:
Eying the centre wall with a haughty air
And grinding his teeth like a grizzly bear.

The count arose to three and two,
Which made Di Mag feel pretty blue,
But from the bases there was very small chatter,
Which gave some confidence to the batter.

Then Casey let go 'most breaking his back
And from the plate there was a thunderous crack!
Baldini went to the fence and made the catch
And was well rewarded for his sensational snatch.

The Brooklyn "Bums" had won the game,
But the Yankees had played well just the same.
Casey and Baldini were the heroes of the day
And poor old Di Mag was alternate green and grey.

—Doug Hinton (age 12), Trenton Flyers Bat Boy.

Above are pictured three of the Belleville ANAF hockey stalwarts who will be seen in action against the Peterborough Legion Intermediate "A" squad in Memorial Arena Friday night. The game is of the exhibition type but will be a forerunner of OHA things to come as it is expected the squads will be grouped in the same setup in the coming season. Clare Williamson will be seen on defence while Timmy Williams and Leo Goyer (above) will team up with Walt Gerow on the first line of the Redshirts' attacking division.

National Hockey League Was Born 30 Years Ago Nov. 22

On Saturday, November 22, the greatest international sports organization in the world, the National Hockey League celebrated its 30th anniversary! The chronological history of the National Hockey League in the 3 decades is as follows:

1917—The National Hockey League was organized in Montreal on November 22. Delegates representing Montreal Canadiens Montreal Wanders, Ottawa and Quebec were present. These four tams along with the Toronto Arenas were admitted into the League. Quebec held a franchise but decided not to operate it that season. Frank Calder was elected president and secretary-treasurer. First games in this new league were played December 19, 1917. Toronto was the only city that had artificial ice.

1918—When the Westmount Arena, home of the Wanderers, burned down, the team dropped out of the league.

1919 — Quebec Bulldogs operated their franchise in the league. Toronto Arenas changed their name to Toronto St. Pats.

1920 — Hamilton Tigers replaced Quebec.

1924 — Boston Bruins became first American Club to join the League and Montreal Maroons entered the ever-expanding circuit, giving Montreal two teams.

1925 — Hamilton Tigers' franchise was sold to New York Americans for $75,000. The third United States Club, the Pittsburgh Pirates entered the league.

1926 — Biggest single year in history of N.H.L. Three new United States teams, New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Cougars were admitted into the league. It was now a 10-club circuit, and was divided into two sections: Canadian Division had Toronto Maple Leafs (changed name from St. Pats to Maple Leafs), Ottawa Senators, Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Maroons and New York Americans. American Division consisted of Boston Bruins, New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks, Detroit Cougars and Pittsburgh Pirates. The Stanley Cup, most coveted prize in hockey, came into exclusive possession of the National Hockey League.

1930 — Pittsburgh franchise was transferred to Philadelphia where a team known as the Quakers operated for one season. Detroit changed team's name from Cougars to Falcons.

1931 — Philadelphia dropped out of league. Ottawa retired from league for one year.

1932 — Ottawa resumed play for two seasons.

1933 — Detroit changed nickname from Falcons to Red Wings.

1934 — Ottawa franchise transferred to St. Louis. Team was called St. Louis Eagles and consisted of most of the Ottawa players of the previous season.

1935 — St. Louis dropped out of the league, leaving the membership at eight teams.

1938 — Montreal Maroons retired from the N.H.L.

1941 — New York Americans changed name to Brooklyn Americans.

1942 — Brooklyn Americans retired from league. This left the the present six teams in the league — Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston Bruins, New York Rangers, Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks.

1943 — Frank Calder, President of League since its inception, died in Montreal in February. Mervyn "Red" Dutton, former manager of New York Americans, succeeded him as president.

1946 — Dutton retired as president of league prior to opening of 1946-47 season and was succeeded by Clarence S. Campbell.

1946-47 — Neutral linesmen introduced. Players' bonuses and play-off guarantees. National Hockey League attendance record of 2,403,112 was established.

1947 — New Constitutional Agreement entered into by all member clubs to continue in perpetuity.

1947 — First annual All-Star game played in Toronto, and former all-stars recognized.

Important Rule Changes

1918-19 — The three playing zones, and forward passing in centre area came into existence. Tabulation of assists first started.

1920-21 — Goalkeeper were allowed to pass the puck forward in the defensive areas.

1927-28 — Forward passes were allowed in all attacking zones.

1928-29 — Legislation removed all restrictions from forward passes in all zones.

1934-35 — The penalty shot made its appearance.

1938-39 — The penalty shot was made even more spectacular and thrilling for fans by allowing the player taking the shot to carry the puck right into the goalmouth if he so desired.

1946-47 — A system of signals by officials was designed to keep fans better informed on rule infractions.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Nov. 26 — (CP) — Even in the smallest of hockey set-ups, the picture is not all peaches and cream, with Winnipeg's bantam A league — for boys 14 years and under — divided over transfers of players from one club to another.

The fact that such a situtsion should exist in minor hockey has brought caustic comment from Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan.

While "transfer squabbles are more or less inevitable in the upper brackets of hockey, where teams are highly commercialized and claim the same property rights to their players that a farmer has to his livestock . . . it is an unedifying sight when community clubs start brawling over the hockey services of small boys."

Fans are taking a deep interest in controversy between two local community clubs whose boundaries overlap to some extent. There is no dividing line between them.

The River Heights Club, entering organized hockey for the first time, sent out a call to residents for hockey players. They discovered, much to their dismay, that eight of their brightest prospects had played for the Sir John Franklin bantam "B" team last year, and could not get released from that club.

The case went before the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association and despite River Heights' claim that the boys should be allowed to play for the club which serves their district, the transfers were rejected.

The Franklin Club argued that the boys concerned learned their hockey on their rink, were developed by the club and therefore should continue to play for them.

Allan says the ridiculous aspect of the case in that "John Doe Sr. pays a membership fee in the district's community club, and the M. A. H. A. rules that young Johnny Doe can't play for the club because he is the 'property' of some community club in another district."

When a boy is that young, Allan feels the father should get some consideration and some say as to which club his son plays for. The parent "doesn't like the idea of his son signing an M. A. H. A. card that places him in bondage to one chain gang for the rest of his hockey career.

"A young man who signs a contract with a pro club usually knows what that involves, but a kid of 10 or 12 is anxious to make a place on a hockey team that he will sign anything without thought for the consequences."

Eye-Witness Saves Five In Holiday Train Smash-Up

WINS DOW AWARD

GERALD SHIELDS

OF DUGALD, MAN.,

ignores own safety to aid injured

Shields was working on an automobile engine when he heard the train. The Minaki Special was approaching Dugald. The transcontinental waited for the special to pass. But it never did. There was a roar as it ploughed into the stationary train. In seconds coaches were ablaze. Shields rushed towards the wreck.

ENTERS BLAZING COACH FIVE TIMES

A child sat dazed in the flames. Shields dashed in and carried her out. When he came back he saw a woman shocked into helplessness. He lifted her out and took her to where he had left the child. Face down in the debris there was another woman. Shields dragged her to safety, and then went to rescue a man who was badly injured. Back again he went. A man was pinned by the legs in the fire. Shields released him and carried him clear. He then attempted a sixth rescue. But the flames made it impossible to enter the coaches, so he turned his attention to the persons he had saved, although his hand was gashed and bleeding, his arm swollen with blisters. He finally found a truck and rushed the five injured to hospital.

We are proud to pay tribute to Gerald Shields of Dugal, Manitoba, through the presentation of The Dow Award.

Gerald Shields leaped over his back fence, and waded through a ditch knee-deep in water as he rushed to help the injured passengers.

Not only did Shields make five gallant rescues, he also got a truck to drive the injured to hospital.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers.

PUBLICITY DRUMS BEING BEATEN BUT NOT BY JOE

By GAYLE TALBOT

Pompton Lakes, N.J., Nov. 26. (AP)—Joe Louis is making no serious effort to drum up business for his title defence against Jersey Joe Walcott next week at Madison Square Garden. Sometimes Joe seems almost too honest for his own good.

"No", the champion said after deep reflection, "I don't think he (Walcott) is the most worthy contender. I think there's a couple of others maybe just as worthy as he is. But I think if there had to be championship fight, then Walcott has just as much right to it as the others."

That was the extent of Joe's expressed enthusiasm for the man against whom he will make his 24th title defence, and he plainly cannot be accused of beating the publicity drums. Still, he didn't say in so many words that Walcott is a cinch to get his senses scrambled within a few rounds.

"I think maybe he plans to do a lot of counter punching against me," Joe volunteered. "That's what he likes to do—what I saw of him in a fight on the coast last summer. I'll carry the fight to him hard, and he won't get to do much counter punching. Man can't counter punch much when you stay right on top of him."

Louis looks wonderful in training. There is no other word for it. This observer, for one, is prepared to believe that the ten bomber, at 33, is as great a fighter as he ever was—maybe even better. Joe's sparring partners, who have been in camp with him before, say the champion is just reaching his peak.

Atlantic Hockey League Formed In United States

(By The Canadian Press)

In a move interpreted by some sporting circles as the opening of a drive to rival Canada as a producer of hockey players the United States Amateur Hockey Association yesterday announced formation of the Atlantic Hockey League.

The six-team circuit —which will be open only to players with American citizenship papers— consists of New York Metropolitans, Boston Jumpics, Providence Scarlets, Needham (Mass.) Rockets, Springfield Rifles and New Haven Bears.

Queried as to the motives behind the organization of the loop, one source said, "the idea is primarily to advance the playing of hockey among American kids".

White Hope of University of Toronto Blues for next season's intercollegiate football offensive is 20-year-old Bruce Cummings. In the opinion of Coach Bobby Coulter, the versatile Ottawa halfback who paced the Blues to second place behind University of Western Ontario during his first senior football season is on a par with Argonaut's Joe Krol in passing, punting and running.

The new constitution and by-laws of the Royal Canadian Golf Association will be presented to members clubs for approval at a special meeting here in Toronto Friday. Already passed by the executive committee, the new constitution is the first since the association's original charter of 1901.

The United States has entered 415 athletes for the Olympic games in England next Summer —the highest total of any of the competing countries. Next in line is Great Britain with 306.

Disgruntled hospital authorities at Baltimore yesterday wrote "discharged" to the case of Joe DiMaggio who has undergone an operation on his throwing arm. The New York Yankee centre-fielder apparently pulled a fast steal out of Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he was given "pass" Monday night and was expected to return yesterday to check out. Joe didn't show up.

Ching Johnson, once one of the National Hockey League's most colorful players, will return to the ice of Madison Square Garden Dec. 3 when he and other one-time Ranger Stars participate in "Lester Patrick Night" ceremonies preceding an N.H.L. tilt between Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs. Other former Rangers who will don skates include Murray Murdoch, Dave Kerr, Leo Bourgalt and Butch Keeling.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

A rampaging Point Anne hockey squad matching the saucy Hornets stride for stride and having an edge in territorial play nosed out the Wasps in a wide-open hockey jamboree at Memorial Arena last night with the issue in doubt up to thirty seconds of the last toot of the official piccolos.

• • •

The Ox Pointers leaped into the fray from the opening whistle and never let up for the entire sixty minutes. The Hornets met them halfway as far as action is concerned, and the result was an eye-pleasing spectacle for those of the faithful who love goal scoring. For that is what they got. The twines at both ends rattled so often you would think it was the "Spirit of '76" on parade.

• • •

The tonsils of the Point Anne fans rose and fell with precision as first their heroes held the lead, then lost it only to come back and tie the score. They stood on the seats in that last hectic period when the Hornets, their stingers bared for action, poked home three rapid goals after going into the chukker on the short end of an 8-5 score. But dusky throats shrilled approval to the Point buckaroos and Pat Maracle proved the hero of the night with a last minute goalward dash that paid off.

• • •

The game was "wider-open" as one put it, than a politician's mouth at a pre-election meeting. The boys checked hard, heavily and often but for all that there was plenty for those who like the open style to cheer about. Dame Fortune almost had lockjaw trying to smile on both teams at the same time as the play surged from one end to the other and the score went first in favor of the Hornets then back to the Pointers.

• • •

The second game was a heavy bruising affair with both Campbellford and Trenton Hockey Club laying into each other as though everything depended on the outcome and each had relatives in the medical profession.

• • •

The game was closely fought until the third period when the town squad rammed home four markers to put the game in the bag. The win elevates Trenton to a tie in oceadn.. .... to a tie in second place with Stirling in the "B" section of the loop. There was considerable rough play in the third chukker but officials Lee and St. Louis banished the offenders to the sin bin as often as they showed signs of pugilistic tendencies.

• • •

And it was open season on the officials. Don Lee stopped a speeding puck with his noggin and had to retire for repairs. He suffered a nasty cut on the forehead which required a couple of stitches to close. He appeared to be the "Target for Tonight" as he narrowly missed injury from flying pucks that insisted on coming towards him. "Speedy" St. Louis stopped several rubbers intended for other places, and after the games he treated a badly swollen hand.

• • •

Napanee and Belleville Rocket juniors will battle it out for the leadership of the "A" section on Thursday night, and that tilt should be a "must" for the faithful. The Gibbardville crew are perched on top of the sectional ladder with five points while breathing down their necks with fire in their eyes are the Cook - Harris beardlets ones with one point less. The squads are taking no chances on the outcome and will be at full strength for the important tilt.

• • •

And as a neat entree for the Napanee-Juniors appetiser will be the battle between Campbellford and Tweed who are as friendly on the ice as a couple of tomcats suspended over a wire fence by their southern appendages. These old foes of Trent Valley Hockey League tradition declare that all friendship ceases when they cross hockey sticks, and with Campbellford still smarting over that Trenton setback of last night, the joust should be lively, to say the least. Tweed has yet to enter the win column and they are not the least bit fussy who they send to the showers on the short end of the score.

• • •

Hamilton Pats, senior OHA hockey squad wants to play an exhibition tilt here in the near future, it was learned late last night. Seems as though the Pats have an exhibition engagement with a Kingston squad, and are desirous of stopping off in Belleville and giving the Intermediates a tussle. A former Belleville hockey star, Doug. Runions, who played for years with the Hamilton Tigers, of "Old Men of the Mountain" fame is the playing-coach of the Pats.

The 14th annual conclave of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association gets under way at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto on Saturday next commencing at 10 a.m. sharp. Election of officers, proposed amendments to the rules and applications from teams will be among the matters on the agenda.

• • •

Luncheon will be served to those attending at 1 p.m. and tickets for the Canadien-Leafs game at night will be available —and all, luncheon and game for the price of $1.50 per Joe. If those in connection with the proposed minor association team here are desirous of securing applications for the festivities and also for the entry of the team, they may do so by contacting this desk.

Here are some of the new hockey rules that have been mystifying some of the referees, most of the players and all the spectators:

"If a player in the neutral zone is preceded into the attacking zone by the puck passed from the neutral zone he shall be eligible to take possession of the puck anywhere in the attacking zone except when he 'Icing the Puck' rule applies.

All passes originating in the defending zone must be legally completed at the centre red line.

• • •

"The position of the player's skates and not his stick shall be the determining factor in all instances in deciding an 'offside.' A player if offside when both skates are completely over the outer edge of the determining centre line or blue line involved in the play.

• • •

"Another rule in effect this season for the first time is in regard to playing with a stick, or with a broken stick.

A player without a stick may participate in the game. A player whose stick is broken may participate in the game provided he drops the broken portion. A minor penalty shall be imposed for an infraction of this rule. A broken stick is one which, in the opinion of the referee is unfit for normal play.

• • •

"A Goalkeeper may continue to play with a broken stick until stoppage of play or until he has been legally provided with a stick.

• • •

"A player, other than a goalkeeper whose stick is broken may not receive a stick thrown on the ice from any part of the rink, but must obtain same at his player's bench. A minor penalty plus a misconduct penalty shall be imposed for an infraction of this rule.

"A goalkeeper may receive a new stick from a teammate without proceeding to his players' bench, without penalty, but must not receive a stick thrown on the ice from any part of the rink."

HAMILTON TIGERS EARN 3-3 DRAW IN OVERTIME

Fire 54 Shots at Bobby Gilson in the Owen Sound Twine

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Tigers, Senior A hockey Association champions, fired 54 shots at Bobby Gilson, Owen Sound Mercury net minder last night but the best they could get was a 3-3 overtime tie.

The tie left them two points short of the leading Toronto Marlboros and hoisted the Mercurys to a fourth place deadlock with Hamilton Pats.

The tying goal, that didn't come until the 17:30 mark of the third period was a heart-breaker for Gilson. It was scored by Bobby Laurent on a rolling shot from the blue line that deflected past Gilson and trickled over the line. The Owen Sound net minder played a brilliant game, stopping 54 shots to 36 fired at Childs in the Hamilton net.

Owen Sound took the lead in the first period on goals by Jack Mason and Todd Miller but before the session ended Johnny Conick cut the margin for Tigers.

A high-sticking penalty to Johnny Sullivan in the second period set the stage for Tigers to tie the score for the first time as Clare Shillington batted home Andy Thiereault's rebound.

Owen Sound came back with Tod Miller scoring from a long pass from Jack Ingoldsby. At the end of the period Mercurys led the Tigers 3-2 and then in the final session came Laurent's marker.

Tonight is a big one for O.H.A. leaguers. In the Senior loop the third place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen meet Toronto Marlboros in Toronto. A win for the Dutchmen tonight will put them in second spot and one point behind the Marlboros.

Four games are on tap for the Juniors. Windsor Spitfires play Young Rangers in Toronto; Galt Rockets meet St. Michael's in Toronto, Toronto Marlboros play at Stratford Kroehlers and St. Catharines Teepees play at Barrie Flyers.

RIVAL MENTORS BUSY GETTING TEAMS IN SHAPE

Morris and West Using Contrasting Methods on Argos and Bombers

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 26 — (CP) — A study in coaching contracts is provided by the rival mentors girding their teams within 40 miles of each other for the annual east-west struggle for football supremacy— one the affable optimist and the other almost classable as a "gloomy Gus."

With Tedder Morris, whose record is perfect with two straight Dominion football titles as Toronto Argonauts coach, you'd think everything would be hunky-dory. But after every game but the last one of the Argo season, he pronounced that "the boys could have played it better" or that "maybe next time they'll get cocky and get their ears pinned back."

It's the challenger, coach Jack West, who looks at the Grey Cup final here Saturday with unjaundiced eye from Hamilton, where his Winnipeg Blue Bombers have been working out since Monday. The Bombers were whipped by Argos in the last two Dominion finals but "this time it will be different."

The opposite approaches really prove nothing about the character of either coach — if the challenger - champion positions were reversed, so might be the attitudes. They only show how much stock each puts in player confidence — either "under" or "over."

The Argos have been the best team in Canada ever since the club reorganized in 1945 after its wartime suspension — a proud record. Most players are the same standouts of the 1945 team — touchdown aces Joe Krol, Royal Copeland and Bryon Karrys, quarterback Fred Doty, and such linemen as Bill Zock, Frank Morris, Steve Levantis, Les Ascott, Jack Wedley, Len Cassidy and Pat Reid.

The players know they're good — they can read — and Morris himself says: "I have the best material, why shouldn't I have the best team?"

West, a middle-aged man with coaching experience with South Dakota State and University of North Dakota, analyzes his own team, much changed from last year's squad, as big and fast and promises they will hold Argos along the line. He sees in big Bob Sandberg, University of Minnesota ace, a triple-threat backfielder whom he rates with Krol.

He concedes Argos are "quite a ball club" but he adds: "They better not forget to play like it."

BAZ BASTIEN SOUGHT BY TOBIN FOR BLACK HAWKS

Informed by Conny Smythe Goalie is Owned by Pittsburgh Hornets

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Tobin is still seeking to mend Chicago Black Hawks' broken hockey fences.

The Chicago club's president sped in and out of Toronto yesterday in quest of a goal-tender. Tobin would like to obtain Baz Bastien of Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League and he talked about that with managing director Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs, parent club of the Hornets.

But Smythe advised Tobin that Bastien actually was owned by Hornets. Tobin then headed for New York where it was understood he would confer with John Harris, president of the A. H. L. Whether it would be about Bastient was not known.

Hawks seemed to profit on offence by the recent deal where they picked up five players from Leafs in exchange for Max Bentley and Cy Thomas. But their defensive record didn't show any improvement. They tried switching goalies — using Doug Jackson for Emile Francis — but Jackson failed to stem the tide, allowing 17 goals in two games.

Tobin also has been reported interested in a couple of other netminders apart from Bastien, although Bastien is felt to be his first choice. There has been talk Tobin would like to pick up either Sugar Jim Henry or Harvey Bennett. The former, regular with New Haven of the A. H. L., presently is up with New York Rangers as a fillin for the injured Chuck Rayner. Bennett with Hershey Bears of the A. H. L., is property of Boston Bruins.

It seems unlikely that Tobin will be able to swing a deal in time to put Bastien in the Hawks' nets for tonight's game against Boston Bruins in Chicago. It is the only game on schedule. Tomorrow night Maple Leafs play in Montreal against Canadiens while Bruins move over to Detroit to clash with Red Wings.

Fund Opened To Send Barbara To the Olympics

Ottawa, Nov. 26. (CP)—Ottawans who earlier this year were denied the right to give a sleek auto to the capital's favorite daughter, petite, blonde world skating champion Barbara Ann Scott, had a chance to make it up—at least in part—to her today.

Mayor Stanley Lewis has announced establishment of the "Mayor of Ottawa Fund" to provide expenses for sending Barbara Ann to Europe to defend the world and European skating championships she won last year.

The Canadian Press yesterday reported that the proceeds from the fund would be used to send Barbara Ann, her mother and her trainer to the Olympic games in Switzerland early next year. But last night officials of the Minto Skating Club to which Barbara Ann belongs, emphasized the money would be used specifically to meet expenses in attending European skating championships at Prague, Jan. 13-15 and the world championships at Davos, Switzerland, Feb. 12-15.

The Olympic skating championships will be held at St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 4-8 but it was emphasized that the fund has nothing to do with her competing there.

Club officials said the raising of a public fund to meet her expenses would not threaten her amateur standing. As a travelling athlete, Barbara Ann is entitled to expenses to meet transportation, meals and other necessities whether it be raised by public subscription or not.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Speak of a three bid and the devil appears accompanied by imps. Beware of these leeks bearing rifts. They plague you with doubts for the rest of your bridge days in the company of strangers.

Three bid messes are not due to lack of ability on the part of players. They result from varying advices of experts. From whom all bridge guessings flow like water in all directions.

First, a three bid showed strength. Then it announced weakness. In time it was either strength or weakness; the two-way three bid. Then strength with some experts and weakness with others.

As a result, one partner replies to a three bid as if it meant strength. The next answers to it as if it meant weakness. A third responds with alternate guesses at which it may mean.

What a revolting development! For goodness sake, alight some place. One place or the other. But definitely. Decide with your own partner whether he uses three bids for strength or weakness.

Horse Sense partners do. We know precisely and always have done so without wavering between the devil and the deep blue moods. And our responses have never gone to the cleaners either.

An opening of three in a major suit shows a seven card or longer suit with not more than one loser in that suit. With it is an outside sure trick. The entire hand contains eight tricks.

Thus do we know definitely what to expect in the hand of such an opener. To it are fitted a set of definite responses that bring the best final contracts to our pair.

An opening of three in a minor suit guarantees a solid suit of exactly seven clubs with no outside high card. My partner opened with a bid of three clubs when he held this hand:

♥7 3
♦9 5 4
♣A K Q J 10 6 2

No need for me to see this hand. Like taking a pattern out of its mold.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 26 (AP) — Bette Davis' next film will be selected partly on the basis of how much it taxes her strength.

Bette's doctor told her she wasn't strong enough to undertake the strenuous "African Queen," which now has been reported sold by Warners. Her next film will be a choice of "Two Worlds of Johnny Truro," "Return of a Soldier" or "Feature for June," and much of the decision will rest on which one will be easiest for her.

The actress has been seen in only two films in two years and Warners want her to start another picture right after the holidays. Her current movie, "Winter Meeting," will be rushed through for a March release.

Around the Lots

Joan Crawford took over Bette's set the other day. Bette quit work early so Joan could use the set for a food conservation short ... Friends say the Jack Benny-Al Jolson Feud is in earnest...

Olivia de Haviland won't be competing for another Academy Award this year. "The Snake Pit" won't reach the theatres in time. That will give 20th-Fox a chance to concentrate on its Oscar hopeful, "Gentleman's Agreement." Latter has best chance of any United States film seen by this observer so far...

Horses and Hashes

Betty Grable has never worried her pretty head about her own publicity, but when her racehorse gets a write-up, she waves the clipping in front of everyone she meets ... note on the state of originality in Hollywood: U-I is now shooting five films, four Broadway plays, one a rehash of an old picture...

Merle Oberon signed a new contract with RKO for one film yearly for the next five years. Her next will be a big color picture. Howard Hawk's hard-luck picture, "Red River," is reported to have run up a bill of two-six, which the way Hollywoodians refer to $2,500,000...

Hard Winter

Dana Andrews, I discovered, has a fine singing voice, but he hopes the studios don't find out. He might have to do musicals... It will be a hard winter at RKO. It looks as though there will be nothing shooting there from Dec 15 to February...

CHAPTER 8

The problem of repaying Henn was soon altered by a wire from Cora. It read:

"Horace bought our Deweyton place yesterday from Hennington and paid all we owed him stop you are to live there stop as our daughter you will receive monthly allowance for house upkeep and your personal expenses stop love from us both Cora"

Hennington later that evening confirmed this wonderful news. He had been glad to get rid of the place, he said, because he and Kay would have the Lester town house and it would be poor business to keep both houses open.

In spite of Hennington Blare's plans, Kay returned to her old home, feeling like a free soul. Had she realized how short a time this keen sense of freedom was to last, she would have been completely crushed.

She soon discovered that she could not shed the presence of Henn as neatly as she had anticipated. He seemed more determined now than ever to marry her. Then there were the frequent visits of Webb Taylor to annoy her. Ignoring her engagement to Henn, Webb was omni-present. He was continually accusing her of marrying Henn for his fortune, declaring that she did not love the man. It was uncanny. Webb so often had the intuition of a clever woman.

While Kay was pondering over these things, she suddenly remembered Gloria Sherman's invitation to visit Lake George, and wired her that she would now be able to come, if convenient.

She had heard that Chuck Nourse was back in town. He had of course made no effort to get in touch with her. To know that she was near him, but could not be on the old footing with him, was actual torture. She would give the servants a vacation, leave a caretaker in the house, break irrevocably with Henn, and regain her poise of mind and body in the balsam-scented mountains.

Webb Taylor, having had too many highballs, became obsessed with the notion of finding Hennington Blare. Every time lately Webb was in his cups, he wanted to tell Hennington he could not marry Kay. Somehow he must manage to convince Hennington that the idea was all wrong.

He staggered into Hennington's luxurious apartment early this evening when Hennington was dressing to take Kay to a country club for dinner. He found Hennington alone, his servants having been given the night off.

Webb had weaved through the crowded downstairs lobby and not been specially noticed. He had staggered from the elevator three floors above where he had meant to go, and walked down to Hennington's door. His brain had been sorely muddled. It was a wonder he had known he was on the wrong floor, that he could manoeuvre his unsteady legs down so many stairs without mishap.

The surprised Hennington, in shirt sleeves, glared at Webb and grudgingly admitted him.

"You've come to see me?" he snapped.

Webb glared at him savagely. He growled, "Yes—you and who else! You and I Hennington — we've got things to talk about."

Webb threw his long wiry frame into the nearest chair, whirled his panama hat across the room to a divan, laughed, ran long nervous fingers through his tousled ash-blond hair.

Hennington continued to stand, wondering how to get rid of this repulsive man. He was in a hurry to finish dressing and get to Kay.

"Well—out with it!" he said intolerently. "What's on your mind? I've an engagement—"

"Ye-ah?" Webb swung to his feet, his eyes gleaming dangerously. With Kay?"

"Naturally."

"Well—she doesn't love you—she loves me! Get it?"

Hennington Blare's thin lips tightened, his fists clenched.

"You—you cad!" he cried, advancing a step toward the bloated face of his visitor. "Get out—before I throw you out!"

"Says who? I tell you—you don't stand a chance with the girl. We're close—Kay and I—so close you never can separate us."

"You liar!" Blare's first shot forward, barely missed Webb's swaying head. This increased Webb's insane fury.

Taylor was the younger man and, in spite of his dissipations, could still wield a hefty right. He swung it now at Blare and Blare went down backward. His head struck heavily against the sharp edge of a glass-topped desk behind him.

It was as much of a surprise to Webb as it must have been to Hennington.

Webb sobered instantly. He looked wildly at the inert man on the floor. "Blare! Blare!" he cried, and knelt beside Hennington, trying to find his pulse.

There was none.

A thin stream of red oozed from a wound in Hennington's scalp staining the delicate blue and white of the Chinese rug.

Webb was frantic—The police—they would call it murder! They would call him—a murderer!

Then suddenly an expression of cunning replaced that of terror on his pale face. He fished hurriedly in his pocket and got out an envelope. It was addressed "Miss Kay Millstrom." Within the envelope was an impassioned appeal from Chuck Nourse begging her not to marry Hennington Blare. Chuck had dropped the letter yesterday in the City Club lounge and Webb, who had happened in soon after Chuck went out, found it, called it a piece of grand good luck, and hid it in his pocket. Perhaps he would be able to make use of it latter on.

"This is the time Lady Luck plays right into by hands!" he now told himself.

Without the slightest qualm, he laid the letter on the floor beside the dead man. There was no postmark on the envelope. The man who wrote the letter could have dropped it here while killing his rival.

Webb snatched up his hat and fled from the place, being careful to spring the lock on the door so that he could enter again without a key.

He ran through the empty hall and down one flight of stairs, then leisurely walked down the next two flights to the street. When he had gone a few blocks he hailed a cruising taxi and went to Kay's home.

Kay waiting in the library for Henn, was perplexed and annoyed when Webb came in. She had planned to tell Henn tonight that their engagement was ended. Tomorrow she would leave for Lake George. Gloria Sherman had wired her, renewing the invitation for her visit. She could not disappoint her again.

Webb advanced, steeling himself to complacency. "Henn called—asked me to pick you up, Kay. Hope you dont mind."

Her eyes widened suspiciously.

"But—why—I don't understand."

"He said he had to meet a train—some people barging in from Detroit. Said to bring you 'round to his apartment for cocktails. He's making a party of it tonight—instead of a twosome."

"He could have phoned me," said Kay, not quite believing that Hennington would send her the unreliable Webb, for whom he hal little respect.

"Possibly."

Webb was trying to calm his thoroughly jangled nerves. He hadn't meant to kill the man! But the deed was done. He'd have to hustle now—make the most of his opportunity. It would whip Kay into being sensible. She never would learn the truth if he could prevent it.

He snatched a handkerchief from his pocket, wiped cold beads of sweat from his brow while she was getting her wrap. He paced the deep-napped carpet in a frenzy, trying to crush out his feeling of guilt. Was he actually guilty—when it had been an accident? He shuddered violently, his temples throbbed as if about to burst.

Kay, returned, carrying a white satin cape over her bare arm, her green crepe dinner gown making her blue eyes more luminous, her hair more golden than usual, he nearly lost his control.

IF IT'S BLADDER TROUBLE

Here is a medicine made specially for it!

What are you doing about your bladder trouble? If you are hoping that the burning, scalding and irritation will correct themselves naturally, you are taking serious risks with your health. STAMPSMUGGLING NEW WRINKLE IN CURRENCY RACKET

Values Up to $880 in Rare Stamps Appeal to Racketeers Evading Australian Currency Regulation

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia —(CP) — Smuggling of valuable stamps from Australia is proving a lucrative business for racketeers but to beat the Commonwealth currency control regulations.

Expert smugglers who know their stamps have no difficulty in getting as much as $8,000 for a parcel of from 20 to 100.

The size of the stamp makes it easy to conceal behind a luggage label or in the ling of a man's tie and such places.

Sydney stamp dealers declare that the government is being robbed of thousands of dollars yearly by a profitable trade in current issues and easily procurable issues of recent years.

Best stamp for the smuggler is the five shilling (80 cent) Kangaroo of 1914-15. They are purchased without much difficulty and are shipped to Britain where they have a value of £4 ($16) each.

In the hard-to-get category the listed price for the 1850 Australian one-penny stamp is $448. For the greyish-blue 2-penny stamp of that date is $880.

These stamps are more for the money makers who are prepared to hunt for them and then make a good clean-up. But for the currency dodger who wants to take more than the $800 the present regulation allows him when visiting non-sterling areas the best stamps are the unused five-shilling, 10 shilling and £1 ($3.20) varieties in current use. These stamps are readily sold at their face value, and as there is nothing to prevent a man from buying as many as he wants he has an easy means at his disposal of beating the regulations and taking as much as he can conceal from the Customs officials.

Property Owners - Attention

Question:—What is landscaping?

Answer:—Landscaping a home, a public building or an industrial property is simply that of taking into consideration such factors as driveways, walks, service area, property lines, shades and sun, then planting suitable trees, shrubs and flowers in the right place.

The result of good landscaping is a dignified, pleasing picture — restful and inviting. No cluttered, gaudy appearance. Good plantings become the pride of the owner and the community. They enhance the value of a property as nothing else will do.

Our Mr. William Hogle will be in BELLEVILLE shortly. His years of experience in landscape survey, design and construction will mean much to you, should you have a genuine planting problem, whether large or small. Write us at once, without obligation, asking him to call and discuss modern design, treatment and development of your property. Plan now.

Famed Scientist Prepares Sphere for Ocean Dive

By ERIC KENNEDY

Brussels (Reuters) — The biggest problem facing professor Auguste Piccard in completing arrangements for the 2 1-2 mile drive he plans to make into the Gulf of Guinea in December is how best to fit his equipment into the tiny space of his bathyscaphe — the 5 1-2 foot diameter globe in which he intends to make the descent.

Bussels University where the 63-year-old Swiss-born professor and his Belgian assistant Dr. Max Cosyns, are holding almost daily conferences round a full-scale model of their sub-ocean balloon is the centre of last-minute activity.

With only eight hours in which to traverse the murky depths, taking of copious notes is out of the question, and scientific aids of every description are to be packed into the tiny craft to make a permanent record of life in this unexplored jungle.

In addition to Prof. Piccard and Dr. Cosyns, four other scientists will take part in the actual drive. To avoid over-expenditure of the limited supplies of oxygen carried in the vessel, movement will be kept to a minimum.

To seek an arrangement of the interior of the bathyscaphe best-suited to these circumstances, numerous "trial and error" lay outs are staged in the dummy globe. As far as possible, instruments will be operated by remote control from a central point.

Once the perfect arrangement has been found, appliances will be dismantled and transported to Antwerp for reassembly in the bathyscaphe itself.

Photographic Record

A photographic record of the descent will taken by a 6-millimetre cine-camera mounted externally and operated by an observer seated at one of the portholes. Another observer, seated at a second porthole will record his reactions spontaneously on a dictaphone.

Samples of seawater at various depths will be taken by the turn of a tap. Fitted to the outside of the outside wall of the bathyscaphe is a worm tube in which the water will collect before passing to the interior. This will counteract the effect of the tremendous outside pressure which would otherwise vaporize the water as it entered, destroying the tiny organisms it contains.

To test the pressure-resisting properties of the submarine, experiments have just conducted at Leige on small scale models of the original by submerging them in a pressurized oil bath.

It is claimed here that the success of the forthcoming expedition will be triumph for Belgian industry. Apart from radar listening devices to be installed on the parent tug which have been loaned by the British admiralty, all the equipment has been manufactured in Belgium to Prof. Piccard's own specification.

Each individual was informed of the nature of the work upon which he was employed and experts have stated that the standard of perfection attained has surpassed all expectations.

There now is little hope that the experiments will take place before December but the scientists have stated that they fear little from adverse weather conditions on account of the lateness of their departure.

Dunedin, N.Z. — (CP) — Like Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, Prime Minister Peter Fraser recently had his hat stolen while he was visiting Dunedin Hospital, but unlike the general he did not get it back again.

JASPER W. MINER BANDS 42,000th GOOSE

Photo shows Jasper W. Miner, youngest son of the late Jack Miner, O.B.E., Canadian Naturalist, about to liberate goose number 42,000. Jasper, who is thirty-six years of age, helped his late father band all the ducks and geese that were ever banded on The Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary. All sportsmen, nature lovers and scientists on the continent rejoice that Jack Miner's three sons are carrying on and maintaining the Jack Miner Sanctuary started by their late father in 1904 which has not only proven a great lesson of conservation but is one of the greatest tourist attractions Canada has. More people from U.S.A. come solely to visit the home of the late Jack Miner than many public places in the Dominion. By banding the birds with an all Canadian band it lets the world know Canada is carrying on bird banding operations and while it made the late Jack Miner world famous it, at the same time, made his home town, Kingsville, Ontario, equally as well-known, made Essex County known, made Ontario known, and brought good will to the entire Dominion.

While Jasper has charge of all bird banding data and administers the daily feeding of the birds, his eldest brother, Manly F. Miner, acts as secretary and public relations of the institution and the other brother, William Edward (Ted) has full charge of the farms in producing the grain and purchasing all extra food needed for the birds. The part each son plays is equal in importance and they enjoy the good will and public sentiment throughout not only Canada but all U.S.A.

Eskimos Forsake Kayak and Igloo

Swift Current, Sask., (CP) — The motor boat is replacing the kayak and the tent and driftwood hut are squeezing the igloo out of Canada's vast Arctic northland.

Harry Hargrave, of the staff of tte Dominion Experimental Station here, spent six weeks this summer in the far north investigating the more than 7,000 head of reindeer the Canadian government brought in from Alaska several years ago to help provide food and clothing for the Eskimos.

But the Eskimos weren't particularly interested, Mr. Hargrave found. Many of them were making more than $5,000 a season from the sale of furs and refused to take on the added responsibility of a reindeer herd, even if it would, as the government assured them, stabilize theiz economy.

The dog team still was prevalent throughout the north, but the igloo was only used while travelling. Normally Eskimos lived in tents or huts made from driftwood that fills the rivers each spring.

It took six years — from 1929 to 1935 — for the original herd of 2,475 to be rounded up and herded from Alaska to Aklavik near the mouth of the Mackenzie River. The government's plan was for the Eskimos and Indians to borrow several hundred head from the central herd and replace them in a few years when their own herds became sufficiently large.

But Mr. Hargrave, transferred from the staff of the Dominion Experimental Station at Manyberries, Alt., reported that the Eskimo as yet was unlikely to think of his economy on anything more than a day-to-day basis. He was the kind of smiling friendly chap who would give his friends a meal, even if it meant he would be hungry himself the next day.

NO RATIONING

New Power for C.N.R. — The first diesel electric locomotives for road service in Canada have been ordered by the Canadian National Railways. Two of these powerful triple-unit streamliners are being purchased by the company. They carry 3,600 gallons of fuel oil and can haul a 100-car freight train under average operating conditions between 450 and 500 miles before refueling. Two powerful air horns are mounted on top of the cab.

Maori Tot Walks 13 Miles Daily

Te Whaiti, N.Z., (CP) — In one of the wildest and least settled parts of New Zealand a five-year-old girl walks 13 miles on the round trip to and from school every day. She is Libya Dougherty, a Maori girl who makes the trip to the Te Whaiti school in the heart of the forest-clad Urewera country in the North Island with her three sisters and brothers, all under 10.

The road is rough and winds over a 900-foot hill and in the winter the children have to leave home before dawn and do not get back until after dark. There is little traffic on the road so the children seldom get a lift. They never ask for one. Efforts have been made to get a school bus along this road for the Dougherty children and other who live at a lesser distance but the road is in such bad condition that none of the local transport operators will undertake the contract.

Most children in New Zealand in similar circumstances are sent lessons for home study by the government correspondence school, but they must have help from their parents in these lessons. This is impossible in the case of the Dougherty children, as their mother knows very little English.

Jesse James' Trap Now Worth $100,000

St. Joseph, Mo., (CP) — The legend of Jesse James famed desperado of the post-Civil War era, is big business today in this Missouri community.

Visitors from many parts of the world pay approximately $100 a week in individual 25-cent fees to see the 76-year-old house on St. Joseph's eastern outskirts where in 1882 bullets fired by Robert and Charles Ford, members of the James gang ended the life of the notorious bank robber and train bandit.

Attracted by a sign outside the house depicting a fiery horse and rider brandishing a huge revolver, tourists usually follow the sign's advice to: "Stop, this is the Jesse James home. See the bullet hole."

Rented as recently as 1937 for $8 a month, the square frame building now is reported to be worth $100,000.

The room with the bullet hole is 17 feet square, furnished as in the days of the James brothers, with wooden bed, Civil War rocker and straight, cane-bottomed chairs.

MAJORITY IMPERFECT

Approximately 60 per cent of children entering school in Canada these days show one or more defects, according to carefully-compiled statistics.

R.C.N. FRIGATE SAILS FOR NORTH

The R.C.N. frigate, H.M.C.S. St. Stephen, sets sail for weather reporting station Baker, between Greenland and Labrador, where she will remain for approximately three weeks. The ship, carrying seven officers and 87 men of the R.C.N. and six technologists of the meteorologist section of the Dominion Department of Transport, left Halifax, N.S., Nov. 22.

HONEYMOON SPECIAL FOR ROYAL NEWLYWEDS

This is the special five-coach which Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip used in their journey to Broadlands, Romsey, where they are spending part of their honeymoon. Although no date has been officially announced for the start of the couple's second honeymoon at Birkhall, near Balmoral in Scotland, sources close to the royal household at Birkhall said that Elizabeth and Philip are expected to arrive there Thursday morning. Here workmen are seen putting finishing touches to the train's headboard carrying the coat-of-arms of Princess Elizabeth and the initials "E.P."

Do You Understand Your Dog?

C. E. Harbison, editor of Ken-L-Bits, publication of the Ken-L-Products Division of the Quaker Oats Co., writes this perceptive piece which should have wide circulation.

To begin with, you must remember that life to your dog is one big smell or rather a series of smells. Your world is made up largely of what you see, because sight is your most complete sense. Your dog has poor-eyes. He has to rely on his nose. Consequently, to him, you are not five feet nine, dark-haired and blue-eyed. You are just a smell, to be quite frank. Incidentally, for him, the most wonderful smell in the world.

After their sense of smell, dogs have acute hearing, which is so vastly superior to the human sense that they can hear notes to which men are deaf. Mainly, smell and sound make up life for your dog. Such things as cigarette smoke and jarring noises may be to him the heights of irritation. His reaction to certain music and notes is particularly interesting. He seems to dislike them and be attracted by them simultaneously. Space for a dog is two-dimensional and he can fully appreciate only one division of time—now. Of course, he has a memory, but not the sort that enables him to appreciate the past. It is a good one, however. This is because canine memory is very definitely associative. A dog wags his tail on meeting an old friend because he knows that a good time goes with the smell. Similarly, when traveling cases are brought out and a holiday is afoot, he is glum; not because he reasons that trunks mean packing and packing means going away but because such disturbances and unhappiness are linked up in his mind.

A very powerful force in a dog's life is instinct and he often is unjustly condemned in consequence. It may seem greedy when he bolts all available food as his ancestors taught him, or cowardly when he attacks a chained dog, but he can no more help these things than a man can prevent himself sneezing or going to sleep.

Remember that your dog connects you with all that is wonderful. You are at the hub of his universe. He cannot understand your indigestion and other troubles, but your blues are his blues. He appreciates your kind actions beyond words but an undeserved harsh word is untold misery for him. As if to compensate for his eyes, a dog has a sixth sense, which man has never had, or has lost. France to Accept Eastern Frontiers Of Germany

Boundaries Were Outlined At Potsdam Conference

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

London, Nov. 27 (AP)—French sources said their foreign minister, George Bidault, would accept at today's meeting of the Big Four the eastern frontiers of Germany as outlined at the Potsdam Conference.

The Potsdam decision was an agreement that, "pending final determination of Poland's western frontier," large slices of eastern Germany should be placed "under the administration of the Polish state." In effect, Germany's eastern frontier was moved west to the Order and Neisse Rivers. Parts of east Prussia were placed "under the administration" of Poland and parts "under the administration of Russia, including the fortress-port of Koenigsberg.

Such a position by France in support of Russia would be in opposition to views of State Secretary Marshall and Foreign Secretary Bevin, who have assisted that the transfer of German territory to Poland should await discussion and "confirmation" by an Allied Peace Conference.

French information said Bidault's expected acceptance of the eastern frontiers was a recognition of the changes as accomplished facts. Millions of persons already have been transferred from affected areas and Poland is administering the annexed territory.

Diplomats speculated that an imminent showdown was possible on the question of Germany's political future which might determine whether the conference would succeed.

The lines were drawn sharply yesterday when Foreign Minister Molotov accused the western powers of trying to impose an "Imperialistic" peace on Germany and with blocking German recovery while trying to convert the country into a base for "military adventures" in Europe.

Russia, on the other hand, was struggling for a "Democratic Peace" for Germany.

His speech was regarded in American and British quarters as part of a propaganda battle designed to build Russia up in the minds of the German people as a champion of "democracy," advocate of speedy recovery for Germany and a strong opponent of those powers which Molotov charged are trying to dominate her.

Molotov's utterances, in the opinion of these observers, emphasized the wide differences which exist between Russia and the western powers over the principles on which the German peace treaty should be based.

The American view that Molotov was trying to use the conference as a sounding board for Soviet propaganda was reflected in the reply of State Secretary Marshall, who declared he was convinced Molotov "does not really believe his allegations" about "imperialistic designs and the creation of slave states."

"Let us get down to work," Marshall urged, "and drop this business of alleging evil motives which are figments of propaganda, not of the mind, and logically endeavor to reach agreement for the benefit of the entire world. We need to promote tranquility instead of bitterness and misunderstandings."

Both Foreign Secretary Bevin and Foreign Minister Bidault echoed Marshall's views.

The Big Four scheduled their third session for this afternoon, presumably to plunge directly into the problem of how to go about writing a peace treaty for Germany and what kind of peace conference should be held.

POLICE GUARDING SYLVIO ALBERT, ALLEGED SLAYER

Letter Found in Man's Room Confesses Brutal Slaying of Divorcee

Montreal, Nov. 27 (CP)—Police today stood guard over the hospital bed of Sylvio Albert, 36-year-old Ottawa taxi-driver, who was captured 24 hours after police sought him in connection with the murder of Mrs. Tillie Deprato, 34, his confessed lover, who was found strangled in a northend rooming house Tuesday night.

Albert, still suffering from self-inflicted wrist wounds in a suicide attempt, was reported to be in "good condition" and he will likely appear in arraignment court tomorrow, charged with murder.

Police found the dead woman's body in Albert's room Tuesday night after working on a tip given by the victim's sister.

Albert was arrested in a rooming house in the heart of the city after an anxious landlady heard him shout for help. She immediately called police who recognized the roomer as the confessed strangler. His wrists were bleeding profusely from razor blade slashes and further investigation revealed he had swallowed 12 sleeping tablets.

Inside the room, detectives found a newspaper photo of Mrs. Deprato's body being carried into a morgue wagon. Under the picture police found in untidy scribbling the following notation:

"Tillie, my love, forgive me."

A letter addressed to the police and signed by Albert, confessing the brutal strangling of Mrs. Deprato, was also found in the room.

His capture ended a widespread search between here and Ottawa where members of his family received letters yesterday in which he described his troubles and threatened to take his life.

The letters were similar to several found near Mrs. Deprato's body by police. They were written in French and halting English and explaining that he was jealous of his sweetheart.

Gunman Surprised While Holding-up Busy Drugstore

Windsor, Nov. 27—(CP)—Wounded in the arm during a gunfight with police who surprised him in the act of holding-up a busy drugstore last night, Glen Davis, 38, was scheduled to appear in court today on a charge of armed robbery.

Police were probing a possible link between last night's affray and the hold-up of a drugstore at nearby Riverside Tuesday night when the proprietor, Arthur Charlton, 32, was shot in the chest and $40 taken from the cash register.

In hospital Charlton's condition was said worse last night and he required blood transfusions.

Police said the description of the bandit who wounded Charlton tallied with that of Davis, who was winged in the right arm during a fusillade of shots from policemen outside the drugstore in downtown Windsor last night after the hold-up man had barricaded himself in the store's telephone booth.

The suspect opened fire from his hidden position as police broke in the front door. Police fired between 15 and 20 shots in return, one of them wounding Davis.

Two alarms had brought about 10 policemen and detectives to the scene. The first was turned in by one of the store owners, A. F. Wilkinson, who said he had just left the premises when he saw a man pull a white mask over his face and enter the store. The second alarm was telephoned by 14-year-old William Fox, a delivery boy who lives above the drugstore.

Prince Philip Drives With Princess Thru Snowy Highlands to Birkhall

Ballater, Scotland, Nov. 27—(AP)—Relegating the chauffeur to the back seat of their car, Prince Philip drove Princess Elizabeth through 40 miles of snow-covered Scottish Highland country today to palatial Birkhall, where they will spend the next three weeks of their honeymoon.

The Royal Couple, travelling in a special coach of the King's Cross express, arrived at Aberdeen at about 7 a.m. after an all-night journey from London.

Aberdeen respected their request for privacy and only about 40 teen-agers and the station master were on hand to greet them.

Outside Aberdeen their automobile stopped, the Royal Couple got out, climbed into the front seat and Philip drove the rest of the way.

Few people in the sleepy little villages through which they passed were aware of the presence of the Royal Honeymooners.

At Birkhall, a 20-room mansion on the Royal Estate at Balmoral Castle, breakfast was ready for the Prince and Princess when they arrived.

PRICE CEILINGS ROLL BACK ON CANNED GOODS

Prices Considerably Below Present Levels

Ottawa, Nov. 27 (CP)—Price ceilings, which held Canada's line against inflation in wartime but were practically swept away in post-war decontrol, rolled back today on essential canned fruits and vegetables in the face of uncontrolled price spiral in those commodities.

Moving to curb what Finance Minister Abbott termed unjustified increases, the Prices Board announced last night that effective today ceilings go back on canned peaches, pears, plums, peas, corn, green and waxed beans, tomatoes and tomato juice.

And in addition, the wholesale and retail mark-ups by which the margin of profit through the trade is kept to a limited percentage of cost will be brought back to the same as before government decontrol was announced.

The new retail prices on canned fruits and vegetables are "equivalent" to those of Nov. 17, the day the government announced quota restrictions on those products as part of the government's dollar-saving program. This retroactive action eliminates any price increases since that date.

The newly-enforced mark-ups are the normal rates under which a wholesaler is allowed to add sales tax, freight and 10 per cent on prices paid to canners and retailers added a further 20 per cent on their price.

The Board said that new ceilings will be fixed at the price paid to canners for the affected canned goods and from these prices—which vary by regions—wholesalers will work out their allowed mark-up on the basis of what they pay the canneries and the retailers will work out their allowed margin of profit on the basis of what they pay the wholesalers.

Those complex factors will govern the reductions that will be made at the consumer level and the Board could give no estimated retail reduction for any given product. But it did say that the new prices will be considerably below the general level of prices which prevailed during the week following the announcement of the government's new-dollar saving import control policy.

Return on ceilings on canned fruits and vegetables was not unforeseen. Finance Minister Abbott announced last Monday that the Board had been directed to reimpose the ceilings on "the more important varieties."

At that time the minister said he had instructed the Prices Board to be "prepared" to impose mark-up control on fresh fruits and vegetables and canned fruit juices, but there was no mention of this in the Board's announcement last night.

Winnipeg Girl Entertained

London, Nov. 27—(CP)—Mrs. Norman Robertson, wife of the Canadian High Commissioner in London, yesterday entertained 16-year-old Betty White of Winnipeg, the school girl who was invited to attend a pre-wedding Royal reception last week but who missed the big moment when her trans-Atlantic plane was delayed 30 hours.

Mrs. Robert Bracey of Galt, who suffered a similar disappointment to Betty, also was invited to visit Mrs. Robertson but was not in London.

Betty White received her invitation after she sent Princess Elizabeth a wedding present of nylon stockings. Mrs. Bracey sent the Princess a tatted bedspread.

Unplaced Applicants For Work Total 106,000, 35,000 Under Year Ago

Ottawa, Nov. 27—(CP)—A total of 106,000 unplaced applicants was registered with the National Employment Service at Nov. 13, 35,000 less than the number a year ago, Labor Minister Mitchell said today in his monthly manpower survey.

This, however, was an increase of 14,000 over the October figure, due mainly to seasonal changes in the employment pattern. Male unemployed totalled 73,000 and female 33,000, compared with 62,000 and 30,000, respectively, approximately a month ago.

Unfilled vacancies reported to the Employment Service at Nov. 13 totalled 78,000, a drop of 24,000 since Oct. 16. For men, there were 53,000 jobs available and for women 25,000.

Mr. Mitchell said the general decline in labor demand reflected indirectly the absorption of displaced seasonal workers by many industries, such as logging and heavy manufacturing, and, directly, the closing of activity in agriculture, service and construction.

At the peak of industrial activity last summer, only 1.4 per cent of the total labor force was unemployed.

In Ontario, there were 29,000 unplaced applicants and 32,000 unfilled vacancies. Jobs available still outnumber the applicants on file, but the gap between labor demand and supply is narrowing as activity slackens in seasonal industries. The scarcity of unskilled labor in manufacturing and in logging will be eased greatly by farmers and other seasonal workers who now are seeking winter employment.

Manufacturing plants are operating at capacity — many have recently installed night shifts to increase their output. There are 60,000 more persons in recorded manufacturing employment now than one year ago. More than 700 male British immigrants were interviewed in Toronto during October, and nearly all were placed in suitable jobs with little difficulty.

Skilled tradesmen are still in great demand.

Bandit Injects Love Note Into $10,000 Holdup

Montreal, Nov. 27—(CP)—Scribbling on the fly leaves of a book left behind by the bandit who robbed the Jean Talon Street branch of the Royal Bank injected a love note into the $10,000 holdup today.

While police sought the man who shortly after closing time yesterday made off with $10,000 in a paper bag after pretending he held a gun in his coat pocket, Sgt. Detectives R. Dubuc and J. Fortin reported finding the book in a brief case the bandit left in the bank.

One note dealt with the writer's wife, Lena, and it mentioned he would kill her. But it added, "if things go wrong I'll meet her in . . ."

The second note spoke of a friend, a Mrs. Jackie, whom the writer hoped to wed after he divorced Lena. The third was a petition to the Almighty asking forgiveness.

One note was signed "Anthony" and another "Tony."

The bandit entered the bank in north-end Montreal a few minutes after three o'clock and handed manager C. J. Mayo a note, meanwhile holding his hand in his pocket as though he had a weapon. The note said the bearer was a sick man, had only three or four years to live, was in great need of $5,000.

Then the bandit handed Mayo a brown paper bag and ordered him to "fill it up." Mayo did so from a cash drawer.

Two Nazi Deportees Caught After Escape

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 27—(CP)—Alfred Stoffer, second of two Nazis who escaped before being deported to Germany, was captured in a Sydney suburb this afternoon. The other, Dr. Johannes Becker, former head of the Nazi party in Australia, was captured earlier in the day on the United States tanker Cedarbanks bound for Panama.

Both men will be flown to Perth, Western Australia, where they will join other deportees now on board the Aurtralian ship Kanimbla.

When discovered aboard the Cedarbanks, Becker is reported to have pleaded with Capt. Daniels, master of the ship, not to hand him over to Australian authorities and to have offered him $4,800 for a safe passage to Panama.

Becker had been without food for four days when taken to the captain's cabin. He had broken his parole and escaped a week before he was due for deportation. Stoffer fled at the same time.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 27—(CP)—Synopsis: An intense storm centred in northern Hudson Bay continues to draw cold Polar air over most of Ontario. Snowflurries are frequent as this air crosses over warm water surfaces. Two weak disturbances centred in the northern central states will pass through the southern Great Lakes region tonight and Friday.

British Merchant Navy Mobilized For Dollar Drive

London, Nov. 27—(Reuters)—Britain has mobilized her merchant navy in the drive for dollars.

The 30,000-ton liner Caronia, launched by Princess Elizabeth from a Clydeside shipyard Oct. 20 is the latest potential dollar earner. She will take her turn on the North Atlantic run, but has been built on lines that make her equally useful as a luxury cruising ship.

Now that there has been a seasonal falling off in the number of eastbound passengers on the North Atlantic route, liners can earn more dollars by turning to cruising from the United States. Americans taken in British ships from the northern winter to southern climates will play a big part in earning for Britain some of the dollars she needs so badly for economic recovery.

The two "Queens" of the Cunard-White Star Line — the Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mary — have been great dollar earners for Britain. It is estimated that these two ships alone carry 200,000 passengers across the Atlantic in the course of a year, at least half the passengers paying the £200 ($800) for the return trip in dollars.

The Queen Elizabeth, the world's biggest liner, is at present withdrawn from service for an extensive overhaul, but she is expected to be ready for the Atlantic trip again Dec. 10.

Important launchings have followed in quick succession in recent weeks from British shipyards, which are building more than half of the tonnage under construction in the world at present.

Apart from the volume of conversion work on liners used as troopships or fighting ships during the war, British shipyards now are working on an estimated 2,113,000 tons of merchant shipping.

The total launched in 1947 is expected to top 1,000,000 tons.

U.S. Observes Thanksgiving Day

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Millions of Americans today observed their third post-war Thanksgiving, a day set aside this year by President Truman for "generously sharing our bounty with needy people of other nations.

Coinciding with the President's proclamation, churches throughout the land similarly dedicated the holiday, renewing widespread appeals for sharing the United States' abundant supplies of food and clothing with the poor, sick and hungry of war-torn lands.

Scores of thousands of travellers swarmed in and out of the Metropolitan areas, and congested highways began claiming their usual holiday traffic toll.

A total of 13 persons were killed throughout the country last night and early today with toll expected to grow. All but one of the deaths were from traffic accidents. Last year there were 83 holiday fatalities.

The Trumans and a few friends will sit down to a turkey dinner at the White House tonight. In line with his food conservation program the President ordered that no bread be served at the meal and that the turkey stuffing and Thanksgiving pie be prepared without eggs.

BIG MARKET FOR CANADIAN GOODS AWAITS IN S.A.

Berkinshaw Tells Of Trip to Africa

Toronto, Nov. 27—(CP)—Canadian-made products would command a ready market in the Union of South Africa where an apparently unlimited market for imported goods is only on the threshold of its development, R. C. Berkinshaw of Toronto, president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, today told the Empire Club.

He spoke on his recent trip to Africa and Europe as a member of the Canadian trade mission headed by Trade Minister MacKinnon and dealt especially with South Africa which he termed "a great and prosperous land."

"The high level of purchasing power possessed by the white population of South Africa offers an attractive and stable market for multitudinous types of consumer commodities, most of which now must be imported," Mr. Berkinshaw said.

"The native population represents another enormous market for Canadian factories if only the Canadian manufacturer will put his products in experienced hands and take the advice of South African agencies which understand the economics of selling in this distinctive market."

Canadian manufacturers would be well advised to negotiate with established importer-distributor agencies. Those agencies constituted a recognized and essential part of the market machinery in South Africa.

Labor Retains Election Record By Narrow Margin

Gravesend, Kent, England, Nov. 27 (CP)—The Labor Government passed one of its severest tests in the midst of the difficulties of post-war reconstruction when its candidate was declared victorious by a narrow margin early today in the by-election in this small parliamentary constituency. And with the result still fresh, voters trooped to cast their ballots in two others.

The Gravesend by-election, sequel to the expulsion from the House of Commons of Garry Allighan, Labor member, for "dishonorable conduct", placed this little community 15 miles east of London on the south bank of the Thames in the political limelight for three weeks. Final figures in the straight two-party fight showed:

Sir Richard Acland, Labor, 24,692, Conservative Frank Taylor, 23,017—a plurality of 1,675 compared with Allighan's margin of 7,056 in the three-cornered fight in the general election of 1945. Nearly 80 per cent of the voters—a constituency record—exercised their franchise yesterday.

Allighan, a former Toronto newspaper man, defeated Conservative and Liberal candidates in 1945. He was expelled from the House for writing an article alleging that Commons members accepted bribes from newspapers in return for inside information.

The by-elections today are in the Howdenshire division of East Yorkshire and in East Edinburgh. The campaigns in these constituencies were more quiet than in Gravesend since Howdenshire is traditionally Conservative and East Edinburgh traditionally Labor. Three candidates are running in the Yorkshire constituency and four in East Edinburgh. Results are expected to be announced tomorrow.

Round-the-World Fliers Call For Barbers First on Return to U.S.

Van Nuys, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP)—Setting their wheels down on United States soil for the first time in nearly four months, two carefree ex-army pilots last night completed a 1,275-mile leg of their round-the-world flight in a pair of cub cruisers.

Shaggy as bears, George Truman, 39, born in Saskatchewan but now of Los Angeles, and Clifford Evans, 27, of Washington, climbed wearily from their cabins and asked with wide grins:

"Where are the barbers?"

Evans declared he hadn't had a haircut since London—2 1-2 months ago—while Truman somehow managed to find time for a trip to a barber shop in Saudi Arabia.

Their flight manager, Jane Marilley of Washington, had a pair of barbers on hand and the cutting commenced within an hour after the airmen landed. Thirteen hours had elapsed since they took off from Lethbridge yesterday morning.

A crowd of several hundred, including Mayor Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles, turned out to greet the fliers on their return to the United States. They left Teterboro, N.J., Aug. 9, and they're not in any special hurry to get back.

"Just so we're home for Christmas," said the good-looking Evans.

Each of their red-and-white planes bore 32 painted flags, including the papal insigne and the signature of Pope Pius, plus the names of some 55 stops they have made on their unprecedented small-craft flight.

New Grave Turn In Dollar Crisis Hinted in London

Australia, India May Cut Imports to Save Dollars

By SYDNEY CAMPBELL
(Reuters Financial Editor)

London, Nov. 27 (Reuters)—Remarks made yesterday by Prime Minister Chifley of Australia and Finance Minister Sir Shanmukhan Chetty of India, indicating some new grave turn in the dollar crisis, are ominous and mystifying.

They followed similar grave warnings here. But the mystery is that, on all known facts, sterling lately has not weakened but strenghthened against the dollar.

New York reports this month have indicated that Britain has not had to sell any more gold to the United States to obtain dollars.

But today the technical strength of sterling was pronounced that New York reported the British authorities had actually acquired dollars, because there were no other sellers of sterling in New York.

Causes Apprehension

It must be many months since Britain has been in this position og gaining instead of losing dollars — and coinciding therewith authorities throughout the sterling area have become more disturbed than ever about the dollar position, and have obviously been told something alarming.

Referring to imports from dollar and sterling areas, Sir Shanmukhan Chetty said he feared India may have to reintroduce the discrimination in favor of imports from the sterling area which was removed only recently, and he "trusted" that this could be arranged without injuring India's "vital" economic needs.

During this present half-year Britain has undertaken to cover India's adverse balance of payments by allowing her to draw convertible currency from her sterling balance at the annual rate of more than £120,000,000 ($480,000,000).

It seems certain that Britain has made it plain to both India and Egypt that the rate of drawing on their sterling balance and correspondingly on the sterling area's dollar pool must be sharply reduced after the year end.

Position Deteriorating

Chifley was even more revealing. Foreshadowing further "very serious cuts" in Australia's dollar imports, he said the dollar position was deteriorating daily and the new cuts could not have been foreseen even three weeks ago.

"It is very clear that every sterling area country must ration itself severely on dollars if the pooling system is to survive," he said.

The drift in the dollar position throughout the whole sterling area was serious but the latest figures of the dollar drain were particularly disturbing, he added.

Montreal's Mayor Is Acclaimed

Montreal, Nov. 27 (CP)—Mayor Camillien Houde was re-elected Mayor of Montreal today by acclamation.

It will be the sixth term for the colorful mayor who spent four wartime years in an internment camp for advising citizens to oppose national registration.

Nomination papers taken out in the name of Mathieu Passau, 29-year-old real estate broker, were not filed when nomination deadline was reached at noon today.

BELIEVED 45 OFFICERS, CREW LOST IN WRECK

Survivor Says Transport Hit Rocks Twenty-Five Miles Off B. C. Coast

Ketchikan, Alaska, Nov. 27—(AP)—A survivor of the ill-fated Clarksdale Victory disclosed today that officers and crew of the wrecked United States Army transport believed the ship to be about 25 miles off shore when it ran aground on Hippa Island along the northern British Columbia coast.

Details of the grounding Monday night were related by seaman Carlos M. Sanabria, 23, first of the survivors to be taken aboard the United States Coast Guard cutter Wachusett.

The other three survivors and bodies of four seamen are to be brought aboard the cutter today. The other 45 officers and crew have been given up for lost. No passengers were aboard.

In an interview with Lt.-Cmdr. G. W. Playdon of the Wachusett, Sanabria said:

"The junior third mate, the non-watch, observed that the heavy seas were striking the ship in an unusual manner and reported this to the master who attributed it to the lightly loaded condition of the ship.

"Shortly after the vessel was lifted bodily by a roller, striking heavily, and then shuddered as she struck a rock. She heaved and struck once or twice after this.

"All hands were called to the boat deck to abandon ship but because of the mountainous breakers it was thought safer to remain on board than to attempt to abandon in the ship's boats.

"Ten minutes later the vessel split in two at the No. 3 hatch. The section containing the lifeboats and the crew slowly settled as the tremendous seas crashed heavily over the boat deck.

"The boats were swept away and in groups of two or three the crew was swept overboard into a maelstrom of churning water, wreckage, oil and rocks . . .

"After about 20 minutes, I was washed ashore and crawled to a log. I passed out until morning."

That the fate of the 45 missing men might be sealed in the stern section of the vessel was indicated by Second Mate Henry Wolfe, who told a rescue party:

Pressure Tank In Frankford School Explodes

Frankford (Special)—Students attending the public and continuation school in this village are enjoying an enforced holiday today as result of the pressure tank in the school basement exploding causing damage estimated at approximately $300.

The blast occurred during school hours Wednesday morning when all the children were in classes. A few children were in the basement taking singing lessons when the pressure tank gave way. The blast moved the tank about four feet knocking considerable plaster off the walls in the girls' washroom and in the manual training room and cracked some plaster in one of the upstairs halls. Fortunately no one was injured.

The pressure tank, used to supply water pressure for wash basins and toilets, was stated to have been installed in the school last summer. Cause of the blast is unknown.

Salvation Army Head Here Retires From Service

Popular head of the Salvation Army Citadel here, Major G. Earle, and Mrs. Earle, will retire from active life in the Army after over 43 years of unbroken service. Major Earle will hold his farewell services in the citadel here on Sunday, Nov. 29. No successor to the Major has been announced as yet.

Major and Mrs. Earle who are native Newfoundlanders will take up their future residence in Oshawa where one of their three sons, Mr. Cyril Earle resides.

The greater part of Major Earle's service has been seen in Newfoundland and the Maritimes Mrs. Earle also holds the enviable record of 40 years and seven months unbroken service with the Army.

The Major received his first appointment in his native Burin, Newfoundland, 43 years ago, and after serving there for considerable time completed 26 years service in the Oldest Colony.

He came to Canada in 1929 and was located in Windsor for a year. From there he was transferred to Halifax, and during the next eight years saw service in Sydney N.S., and St. John, New Brunswick.

Coming to Galt, Ont., where he remained for three years, he was sent to Oshawa serving there for the next three years before arriving in Belleville in 1945.

Major and Mrs. Earle have three sons Cyril, of Oshawa; Otto of Sydney, N.S., and Fraser of Minneapolis, Minn.

"We are going to miss the fine people of Belleville," Major Earle said today. "We have been treated splendidly and we are extremely proud of the privilege of serving here. This city has shown its appreciation of the work of the Army here as has been exemplified in its generous responses to our appeals for funds. We are sorry to lose our many good friends both inside and outside the Army, and we wish them and this fine city the best of everything."

The Revelers, Quartet of Rare Musical Ability, Delights Large Audience at Auditorium

Maintaining their high standard of musical entertainment, the Community Concert Association on Wednesday evening sponsored the appearance of "The Revelers," a quartet consisting of Glenn Burris, first tenor; Nino Ventura, second tenor; Rand Smith, baritone; Wilfred Glenn, bass; and Paul Velluci, the pianist-arranger.

It appears that the concerts are continually growing in popularity, and the Collegiate auditorium was again crowded to full capacity to hear a presentation of superlative quality. Comments expressed indicated that this quartet was one of the most successful efforts of the past few seasons of the community organization. The high calibre of the programs has proved an attraction not only to Belleville music lovers but from surrounding towns and villages, thus molding a unique association where all tastes in music are satisfied, since all programs have varied groups of classical and popular music. It is noticeable that a large proportion of each audience is composed of teen-age young people, whose musical ideas are being molded along lines which should develop a generation who will appreciate the fine things of the musical world.

Accompanist Excellent

Meriting special appreciation was the accompanist who is also the arranger for most of the numbers. His performance was sheer artistry and a delight to watch. The ensemble have developed a co-ordination which is achieved rarely, a unity which has something of a spiritual quality. Each member of the group is an accomplished soloist, but their individual talents are merged to obtain striking and original effects with harmonic and rhythmic coloring.

Opening their presentation with the gay "Hey, Robin! Jolly Robin," from "Twelfth Night," the quartet sang a group of songs from Shakespeare which included "Orpheus With the Lute" from Henry VIII with its beautifully modulated rhythm; "Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind" from "As You Like it," which featured the bass and baritone sections; and "Over Hill, Over Dale" from a Midsummer Night's Dream. The melodic phrasing was a pleasure to listen to, and the full harmonies gave the effect of a full choir at certain times. Mr. Glenn, bass, is one of the original group, and he is responsible for maintaining the artistic standards of the Revelers. In several of the numbers, notably in the encore selection "When Tuba Plays the Rhumba in Cuba" he gave added sparkle to the rendition with amusing burlesque grimaces.

"Dream of Love" adopted from Liszt's "Liebestraum" gave a solo part to the second tenor, Nino Ventura, who was lately soloist with the Stradivarius orchestra on CBS. "Bells of Moscow" arranged by Dr. Frank Black, brought out the beautifully modulated tones of the group and especially the deep bass tones of the tolling bell. "Russian Picnic" was a robust number bringing out the full volume of the four voices.

Outstanding Number

"Who is Sylvia?" was an outstanding number of the next group, with the fine tenor voice of Glenn Burris showing to advantage. Mr. Burris was recently a featured soloist at Radio City Music Hall. "A Spirit Flower", a piece with delicate tonal shading; "Whither" arranged by Paul Velluci; and "Miranda" a whimsical number completed the first part of the program, with an encore of an adaption of Kreisler's "Cradle Song."

A piano solo by Paul Velluci featured three numbers, "Fantasy" by Chopin; "Rhapsody in Blue" by Gershwin; and "Nocturne" by Chopin, transcribed by Franz Liszt. Mr. Velluci proved to be as versatile and accomplished as a soloist as an accompanist.

The second part of the program was in lighter vein with Broadway show hits featured. From "Finian's Rainbow" they sang "They say it's Wonderful"; from "Annie Get Your Gun" the choice was "Almost Like Being in Love" and from "Brigadoon" "If This Isn't Love."

The final group was the quartet's own selection of their world-wide favorites. "Nola" was most effective with the opening played as an obligato on the piano. "The Blue Room" was a fine vehicle for the expressive baritone voice of Mr. Rand Smith, a recent soloist in the "Zeigfeld Follies". "Ol' Man River" from Show Boat, with a bass solo was one of the highlights of the concert; and "Singin' in the Rain" completed the scheduled program. However, the Revelers were generous with their encores, encouraged by the insistent applause. "Dinah" was a new version of an old favorite, featuring a tenor obligato; and a burlesque version of the "Quartet from Rigoletto" made an amusing finale, bringing to a close an evening of satisfying music.

Wharf Street Club Crowded At Annual Bun Feed to Hear Municipal Candidates

One of the best bun feeds ever to be held at the Wharf Street Debating Club took place on Wednesday evening when the candidates for Mayor, Hydro Commission, Aldermen and Board of Education were heard by residents in Foster Ward and a sprinkling of residents, who live uptown. The hall was all too small to accommodate the large crowd that wished to hear the issues of the day discussed and as usual the candidates got little chance to air their views due to the constant heckling and good-natured banter that was thrown about.

The Wharf Street Debating Club is an institution in this city. It was formed a good many years ago and last night, John Cornell, who was an original director of the organization, was in attendance. His presence was remembered by the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and congratulations were heaped upon him from all sides. When the first club was formed, a small building was erected and there in the shade of the trees, issues of the day were discussed, heated arguments were had but all in good rivalry with malice toward none. The members, realizing that more accommodation was needed, banded together and a fine addition was added but last night this room proved inadequate to hold the large audience. It seemed at times as if the walls were made of rubber.

Happy Social Hour

As usual, steaming hot dogs and soft drinks were served to all present and in this social hour after the meeting old friends and new got together in little groups to pass the time of day and reminisce about the big ones that got away last summer. Membership in this organization is a prized possession and all wished for the club continued success. Everyone's friend, Eddie George, was again chairman of the meeting and this is a position that has been held by him for many years. He has become an institution and is very capable in his role. Eddie, previous to the meeting, was presented with a new gavel bedecked with an array of brightly-colored ribbons and he used it on many occasions to keep peace and order and also to warn candidates that their time was running out.

Ex-Mayor George O. Tice was given the honor of opening the meeting and this has been his privilege for a good many years.

Mayor Follwell stated his aim would always be to make Belleville a bigger and better city and Mr. Storey, admitting he had no municipal experience, stated he would certainly do the very best to make Belleville a bigger and better city if elected.

Most of the speakers of last night were covered in detail at the meeting at the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday night and suffice is to say all were given a sympathetic hearing with heckling present on numerous occasions but in a good-natured way.

Speakers

Those who addressed the gathering were F. Russell Wotten and Harry Rollins, candidates for the Hydro Commission, and George Reid, a former commissioner; H. "Jack" Allin, George Brown, Fred Chamberlain, Arthur Cole, William Harvey, Charles L. Hyde, Arthur Keegan, Harry Knott, Everett Liddle, Orliff "Boiler" Lloyd, Urias "Sandy" Lummiss, Thomas Rees, Frank "Duke" Smith, Issac Stephenson, Claude D. Tice and Newton C. Wilbur, candidates for the Aldermanic Board, and Arthur Burke, Frank Creeggan, Harold Seldon and Dr. Austin Walters, candidates for the Board of Education.

Honorary members of the club, Raymond Zufelt, William C. Mikel and Maurice Callaghan, member of the Parks Board, were heard in short addresses and Arthur Rowland delighted with a solo as is his usual custom. The National Anthem closed another milestone in the history of the Wharf Street Debating Club.

A lifeboat was launched in which Gundersen and Aubert went along, and when the boat reached her they plunged into the icy water and managed to lift her into the boat.

This Couple Can Go South Without Bothering About U.S. Funds

They couldn't figure it out. The housing shortage hadn't been too bad for them during the fine summer weather, so to waken this morning to find themselves dispossessed was a little too much.

Yet there wasn't much they could do about it. There wasn't any sense appealing to the City Council, for that body could not understand their language any way. And if they could there was nothing the city fathers could do to remedy the situation, unless send them to Florida or some other southern spot.

The trouble was, that a great number of their relatives had moved in with them last Spring, to say nothing of a flock of offspring which had accumurated during the summer. It seemed a shame that such a large family should suffer, because of the whims of an interloper.

No Cost to City

They had their pride. They had not cost the city a cent, nor had they been a burden to other residents of their district. True, they were fishers by vocation, and had enjoyed a good summer of activity. But the sad part is, they had put nothing away. It had been a figurative "hand-to-mouth" existence. Prices had not bothered them for it took all the fish the family caught to supply the needs of themselves and the neighbors.

Occasionally they had had a variety of diet. One of their favorite food-seeking exploits was to follow fishermen in boats and if any food was thrown overboard, they immediately salvaged it. They were more or less honest. They did not deliberately steal, unless some luckless fishermen left a catch where it was procurable.

But now they are definitely "up against it." Winter, with its blizzards, ice and snow is around the corner. They cannot get the home they want until spring, unless they move to parts distant. True, they emit the occasional squawk, but these are exuded for personal reasons only. They are not looking for sympathy, and probably would not recognize it, if they were offered it.

Pals Left Earlier

They will likely leave in the near future. Their many friends departed a few days ago leaving no forwarding address. In other words the couple is alone in a cruel world. What will become of them no one knows, but it is a safe bet they will be back in the Spring in their old haunts, none the worse for their winter experience.

And the two lonely seagulls slithered and slipped their way across the frozen surface of the Moira River above the C.P.R. Bridge this morning, looking very disconsolate as a result of the sudden whim of the weather man who overnight converted their down-river habitat into a gleaming stretch of "unswimmable" ice.

DOZENS OF LETTERS ARE SHOWERING DOWN

Washington, Nov. 27 —(AP)— Dozens of letters charging irregularity and fraud in government war contracts are showering down on a Senate War Investigating Sub-Committee as the result of the Maj.-Gen. Bennett E. Meyers case, Chairman Homer Ferguson (Rep.-Mich.) disclosed today. "All of them will be investigated, you can rest assured on that," Ferguson told a reporter.

10,000 Dutch Settlers Being Moved to Canada

Ottawa, Nov. 27 — (CP) — The swelling ranks of [illegible] from war-torn Europe [illegible] a new future in Canada will soon be increased by 10,000 Dutch settlers who will take up farming from coast to coast and eventually acquire farms of their own.

Announcement of plans for the movement from The Netherlands aboard two ships chartered by The Netherlands government was made jointly last night by resources Minister Glen and Dr. A. S. Truisman, agriculture attache to The Netherlands embassy. The first group will arrive at Halifax next March.

The 10,000 will include Dutch farmers and their families, but just how many of them actually are farmers was not known here. They will be placed on farms across Canada with farmers whose applications for their services have been approved and who will provide living accommodation.

The families will pay their own passage but will be brought to the Dominion on two vessels chartered by The Netherlands government. The ships will make about 13 trips carrying approximately 770 passengers each time and the first arrivals will be at Halifax in March with the remainder arriving later at St. Lawrence River ports.

Movement of immigrants to Canada from The Netherlands began last March and approximately 3,000 Dutch farmers already have arrived and now are working on Canadian farms.

The 10,000 new immigrants will be in addition to the 20,000 persons Canada has agreed to admit immediately from displaced persons camps in Europe. About 8,000 of these are expected to reach Canada before the end of the year and will be engaged in various types of work.

In addition Canada has accepted 4,500 Polish veterans who undertook to serve as farmers in Canada for two years.

The only large group movement from the British Isles in the latter part of this year was undertaken by the Ontario government which planned to fly 7,000 residents to Canada. About 5,000 already have arrived.

Winter and Colds

With the [illegible] of winter reference to an old superstition concerning shuddering is timely. [illegible] to the [illegible] when one shudders [illegible] that [illegible] is walking on his grave." Modern science knows that this is false but [illegible] shuddering like shivering is not a good sign. It may be the evidence of a serious chill [illegible] how here it is to be [illegible] the person who is shivering [illegible] susceptible to infection. Every precaution ought to be taken to [illegible] says National Health and Welfare Services. Cold and damp weather will [illegible] people to such seasonable diseases as bronchitis, pneumonia and influenza and a cold which "hangs on" is a signal to see the doctor so that the trouble may be cleared up and possibly more serious attacks headed off.

In the matter of proper clothing it is advised, "Dress for the day, according to the climate." It isn't smart to ignore the weather. In the cold season the human body expends a great amount of energy in keeping warm if the proper kind of clothing is not worn. There is this caution to be observed, that authorities advise that it is wiser to wear heavy clothes outdoors only, for over-wraps may be taken off when on heated premises. The wearing of heavy underwear leads to discomfort indoors and does not make possible that addition of coverage required when going outside when the temperature is falling.

Canning Pack

The size of the commercial pack of canned fruits and vegetables in Canada is indicated in recent figures for various fruits and vegetables for the past two years. The figures show that the pack last year was larger than in the year 1945. A glance at the figures for some of the fruits and vegetables which are given for 1946 with the totals for 1945 in brackets gives some impression of the volume of the food which is preserved by the canning plants of the Dominion.

The pack of principal fruits in 1946 was as follows, in dozen cans ,totals for 1945 being in brackets: apples, 221,763 (129,080); apricots, 189,958 (59,285), cherries, 298,791 (86,927); peaches, 1,751,068 (1,057,032); pears 728,687 (559,882); plums, gages, etc., 1,264,414 (672,141); raspberries, 35,979 (37,395); rhubarb, 19,377 (20,882); strawberries, 12,908 (294).

The pack of some of the canned vegetables in dozen tins was: asparagus, 114,779 (156,150); green or wax beans, 2,630,790 (2,312,140); baked and lima beans, 1,227,823 (2,404,234); beets, 11,202,458 (811,709); carrots, 523,452 (1,065,744); carrots and peas combined, 208,431 (239,452); corn, 3,525,318 (2,935,735); peas, 8,073,577 (6,017,457); pumpkin and squash, 505,530 (201,055); spinach, 88,140 (61,925); tomatoes, 3,386, 645 (2,928,028). The pack of other products included foods for infants fruits, vegetables, soups and cereals 5,768,262 (4,065,707) dozen; sauerkraut, 198,529 (155,480); soups, 25, 281,435 (16,338,883); tomato juice, 7,719,363 (4,406,966) dozen.

What was the volume of the fruit and vegetables preserved and canned by the housewives in the urban centres and on the farms is not known, but the volume of these must reach a very high total.

Canada with her population of over twelve millions requires a large amount of food and the total pack by the canneries and in the homes would reach a high figure.

The figures quoted for the commercial pack give people some idea of the immense importance of the canning industry and of the private canning in the food economy of the country.

Bloodstock

The world's bloodstock buyers are looking forward to the December sales at Park Paddocks, Newmarket, in England, where they will be able to buy for their own studs some of the finest of Britain's bloodstock. It is not generally realized that the modern racehorse of every country in the world is descended from United Kingdom stock. No breeder today will risk crossing his stock with any horse of doubtful ancestry. Instead, they depend on the General Stud Book, published in London for 150 years, for the line of the horse. These volumes contain entries of all the famous racehorses, now scattered throughout the world.

Newspaper's Horses Retire

When the shortage of gasoline was most acute and business institutions and private citizens alike were striving to make the precious fluid go as far as possible, the Free Press enlisted the services of a pair of willing horses to distribute the newspaper to downtown news stands. Presently they were a familiar sight on the streets, and during the past four years or more they became something of an institution.

But now their time has come to retire, after doing their job faithfully and well. The Free Press is sorry to see them go, for good horses have personalities which no mechanical contrivances, however efficient, can match. They now retire to an old age of peace and comfort. — Winnipeg Free Press.

Place for Front Plate

Motorists are advised by the Ontario Motor Vehicle Licences Branch to check their equipment to make sure they have the front licence bracket to carry the new 1948 plates which are to be issued for front and rear of the vehicle. During war years, and including this year, only the rear plates have been carried on vehicles.

J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicle licences, explained that many vehicles, even new vehicles, are not equipped with the front bracket. Owners of older cars in some instances have been found to have discarded the front brackets.

Retirement Age

Britain's oldest burglar has retired. Jas. Ferguson, who is ninety years old, is quitting business after having received jail sentences totalling forty-five and a half years in the course of his long career.

A judge at Oxford commuted his latest sentence on condition that he retire into a Salvation Army hostel. In his farewell interview Ferguson disclosed why he was willing to retire:

"I can't run like I used to," he explained. "And besides I'm getting clumsy. I knock things over on the job. Anyway, country places are hardly worth breaking into now." — New York Herald Tribune.

Why Stand Up at Work?

People who like to sit while they work now have a scientific excuse to offer for their preference, notes Saskatoon Star-Phoenix. The United States Department of Agriculture estimates that standing takes 14 per cent more energy than sitting. This debunks the old saying, "only the lazy sit to work." It might be more sensible to say, "only the foolish stand to work when they could be sitting."

"SUMMA CUM LAUDE!"

Her grandpa now struts like a warrior's charger,
His head higher up and a little bit larger.
The work of the school year in glory has ended;
The children promoted and both recommended.
But, this from the head master, smiling as bowed he:
"Ellen Elizabeth—summa cum laude!"

Praise of the highest, recorded and reckoned!
Out of the first grade and into the second!
Hear the old grandpa so proudly repeat it;
This may be equalled but no one will beat it!
Surely for boasting the time should allowed be.
"Ellen Elizabeth—summa cum laude!"

Head master pinning the blue ribbon on her!
Oh, how her grandma had joyed in such honor!
Only the grandpa . . . alone there to view it,
Tears in his eyes, but believing she knew it,
Saying this over and over, so proud he:
"Ellen Elizabeth—summa cum laude."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What does "L.S." on legal documents signify?

L. S. on legal documents is the abbreviation of "locus sigilli," Latin for "the place of the seal." The Romans used to take off their signet or seal rings and imprint their seals on all documents and the present legal practice is a survival of that custom.

How did currants get their name?

Odd as it may seem, the good old English-looking word "currant" is a corruption of Corinth, the name of a place in Greece. A variety of small dried grapes widely grown in the Levant were called "raisins de Corinthe," raisins of Corinth, by the French, presumably because the commercial article so designated was originally imported from that city or region. As a matter of fact, raisins made from small, seedless grapes are still an important product on the Ionian Islands and for many miles inland along the shores of the Gulf of Corinth. Raisins from Greece are still sometimes known as "currants of Corinth." During the 13th and 14th centuries these dried grapes were known in England as "raisins de Corauntz," which was an attempt to reproduce the French name. By Shakespeare's time the word had assumed the form "currant." In the course of time it was transferred from dried grapes (raisins) to the common garden berries of the genus Ribes, to which gooseberries belong, because of a fancied resemblance.

Who was "the landlord of New York?"

William Backhouse Astor (1792-1875), capitalist, was known as "the landlord of New York" because of the great number of residential buildings in that city owned by the estate that he administered. He was the son of John Jacob Astor (1763-1848), a native of Germany, who emigrated to New York and amassed a vast fortune in the fur trade. John Jacob Astor II, the oldest son of the fur trader, was feeble-minded and the administration of the estate fell to his younger brother, William, who continued his father's policy of buying real estate in New York City until the greater part of the fortune was invested in lands and buildings, and who spent most of his life collecting rents and attending to other routine affairs of the business.

Austrian Treaty Placed at Top Big Four Agenda

London, Nov. 27 — (AP) — French sources said the foreign ministers council agreed to place the Austrian treaty at the top of their agenda.

The council approved the suggestion made Tuesday by Foreign Minister Bidault of France to take up the question of the Austrian treaty and then send it to their deputies, who are considering an accord in the light of French proposals on the German assets issue.

At the same time, the council placed the preparation of a German treaty, including frontiers and procedure, second on the agenda.

The meeting Wednesday was brief, occupying but two of the three scheduled hours.

The foreign ministers of Britain, the United States, Russia, and France are to begin German peace treaty discussion tomorrow.

Arsenic Looks Good to Mine Engineers

Flin Flon, Man., Nov. 27—(CP) — Attwood Knight, Colorado School of Mining graduate, is convinced he's solved a problem which has baffled mining engineers in Northern Manitoba for almost a quarter of a century.

The engineers have been trying to bring some of the medium-gold properties into production but have had to admit defeat because of the high percentage of arsenic in the ore. These attempts were reported to have cost more than $1,000,000 in the last 18 years.

Knight believes he has the problem licked. The big headache to the engineers has been the cost of roasting the ore to get rid of the arsenic which is too great to permit profitable mining.

However, Knight in two years of gruelling work tackled the problem from a different angle. Instead of trying to get rid of the arsenic he is just as much interested in recovering it as he is in recovering the gold.

He has directed expenditure of some $500,000 in making extensive and successful tests and in erecting a mill and refinery at the Douglas Lake site, a few miles west of Flin Flon.

The process, he says, is too intricate for a layman to understand. The ore yields about 6 ½ pounds of arsenic and just under ½ ounce of gold to the ton. After the refinery process is completed the white arsenic is 99 per cent pure.

Before going to work on the problem Knight made sure there would be a ready market for the arsenic. He has since received tentative orders from South America, Japan, Australia, France and several parts of the United States and Canada.

Pure arsenic has a number of uses, chief of which are in the manufacture of insecticides, the making of a new type of glass and in drugs.

Immigrants Attend Language Classes

Montreal, Nov. 27 —(CP)— A former colonel in the Greek army and a Polish soldier who spent two years in a Russian prisoner-of-war camp are fellow students at language classes being held by Montreal's International Y.M.C.A. and attended by persons from 32 nations.

More than 100 persons, most of them recently-arrived immigrants, are attending the courses and their instructors say it will be six months before they have a working knowledge of English and three years before they become fluent.

The Greek colonel fought against the Italians and was a leader of the resistance movement after the German invasion of Greece. He married a Canadian girl when she visited Greece 20 years ago and their two sons now are students at McGill University.

YOUR BLAMED DAD HE WAS RIGHT

One may be an awful crab if one has to start the day on bad coffee but an entirely different person if one is lucky enough to get coffee. Indeed, I believe and have long believed, that if the W.C.T.U. or other philanthropic association were to train suitable persons in the art of making coffee and set up little coffee dispensaries everywhere, it would serve the cause of temperance more effectively than by propaganda alone. Why does a drinker drink? Because he or she "want to feel better." That's how a drinker explains it, when he is sober, and as nearly as I can understand the problem is as good a reason as any. Well, I contend that a cup of good coffee makes anyone feel pretty good, and with a cup or two of good coffee for breakfast one is ready to start the day in cheerful mood. It just isn't likely that one feeling so cheerful will crave of a narcotic, it is?

Now comes Miss S. J. who says she thought of me in the midst of enjoying Voice of the Turtle the other night. Miss J. contineus:

. . . Why? One ironical remark by the leading lady: "Why doesn't coffee taste as good as it smells!"

(Make no mistake please, this is a letter written to me by a reader not my observation. I haven't seen or heard this Turtle thing, and I don't even know whether it is a movie, a play or an opera. But the leading lady has certainly raised a question which should be high on the agenda of the U.N. security council.

Miss J. goes on to tell how—

For years, before we began reading your column, relatives and friends smiled indulgently at Dad's "fanatical" method of making coffee, although they frequently admitted the improved taste. It is a satisfaction to prove through your sound teachings after all these years that Dad was and is right about it.

I take it that Dad brewed coffee in the intelligent way and the relatives and friends who smiled so indulgently were accustomed to witch's broth flavored with tannery drippings.

Every measure of freshly ground coffee—please note I say freshly ground and I mean just that, whether you keep coffee in a bag, a bin or an air-tight container—has just so much aroma in it. Some people, like the leading lady, don't seem to mind much if the aroma is almost entirely dissipated in the ambient air. Others, like W. H., Miss S. J. and her Dad, and a few million rabid teetotalers like me, prefer the delightful flavor in the cup.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Read it Again

Thanks for planting doubt in my mind as to the absolute necessity of operation for internal piles. Our family doctor treated me successfully in his office by the injection method with hardly any pain. However, I got the impression from your pamphlet that all piles can be treated in this way and you are going to lose a lot of readers unless you tell them that external piles cannot be so treated. (C.J.F.)

Answer—Thank you. How can I tell 'em if they can't or won't read the pamphlet when they get it? In the middle of page six you will find this:

Internal piles are readily obliterated by injection treatment . . without giving the patient enough discomfort to complain about. External piles cannot be so treated.

The pamphlet is available to any one who provides a stamped self addressed envelope and asks for it in writing (no clipping) by name It Is Stupid to Suffer From Piles.

Running Ear

Sister took your slip to druggist to get the solution for running ear, but the druggist stalled and just couldn't find the necessary ingredients. Finally she went to an ear specialist in ———, who gave her a prescription, which our druggist filled in a few minutes—and what do you know, it was the same identical solution you had suggested in your leaflet! (W.S.)

Answer—Leaflet available on written request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope.

Remember Burns Food Or No Food

Stirling, Scotland, Nov. 27 — (CP)— Food shortages have discouraged those responsible for organizing Burns suppers next year but the Burns Federation has instructed them to carry on, because the commemoration is more important than the meal.

Food Minister Strachey will be asked to lift the regulation limiting public banquets to 100, provided the meal consists chiefly of haggis and other unrationed foods.

BY THEIR COLOR

In the ancient Roman theatre, actors wore symbolic colors: old men, white; young men, purple; parasites, grey; courtesans, yellow.

Operation of one of the largest dope rings in the U.S. was brought to light when a hard-working "mule" or carrier of drugs dropped dead while making a delivery. The "mule" has been identified as Ralph Masey, a man of many aliases, who died of a heart attack while the transcontinental airliner which he was riding into Los Angeles from New York was nearing its destination. Police who combed through his shabby luggage found two pounds of pure heroin, worth $800,000 on the retail market. Lieut. W. L. Yoakam, of the narcotics bureau, who said the police had been tipped the shipment was on the way, is shown looking at some of the dope.

"Crying Eyes" Provides Clue To Lost Tribe in Argentina

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ

Buenos Aires, Nov. 27—(AP)—"The case of the crying eyes" is a first-class mystery of what happened to 100,000 or so people who lived in northern Argentina up to 5,000 years ago.

There are plenty of clues, but they don't add up to anything. A long time ago — before the Incas and other American Indians arrived to keep records — the Chaco - Santiagueno tribe lived up on the borders of the province of Santiago del Estero.

Where they came from, how long they lived, and what happened to them are questions still unanswered.

Two French archaeologists, the brothers Emile and Duncan Wagner, found the first trails of the lost civilization 50 years ago. Duncan has since died, but Emile, now director of the provincial museum, is still asking questions and looking for answers in the burial mounds.

"The "crying eyes" are a unique decorative design found on the burial urn. There is a rough depiction of the human face. Parallel lines descending from the eyes represent tears. Probably the decoration was the stylish thing to show how a man's relatives mourned him when he died. Archaeologists haven't seen anything like it anywhere else in the world.

One thing seems fairly certain: the tribe had no contact with any of the other Indians who inhabited America before Columbus came. Their decorations and tools were different from their nearest neighbor, the Incas. This probably indicates they lived long before the Incas.

Link With Troy?

One of the clues — and it is not much help — is a similarity between decorations found in the ruins of ancient Troy and those found in Santiago del Estero. The Chaco - Santiaguenos used small round button-like spinners and so did the Trojans, who lived about 5,000 years ago. These buttons were fixed to the end of a length of yarn and spun to convert it into thread.

Spinners from Troy and Santiago del Estero have similar designs: an S-shaped figure interlocked at each end, a field of dots in a semi-circle cut into the edge of the discs, or an arrow design.

Many of the clues which archaeologists usually depend on do not exist in the fan-shaped area northeast of the city of Santiago del Estero where these people lived. Usually the deposit of earth or wind-borne dust over the burial places gives some idea of how long ago the burials were made. But in that flat country the Salado and Del Dulce rivers frequently have changed course, washing away the top layers of soil over wide areas.

The lack of war weapons gives a slight clue to what may have happened to the tribe. The Chaco-Santiaguenos had light knives and axes, good enough for hunting but no good for war. They may have been quickly overrun by a much primitive tribe, strong enough to kill their enemies but not bright enough to keep a record of it.

Apparently the Chaco - Santiaguenos lived in tents or mud huts—structures which have disappeared with time. Nearly all the remains have been found in burial mounds. To build these, the earth was mixed with some other substance and pounded to make a hard floor. The burial urns containing the ashes and occasional normal-sized bones were placed on this floor and stones piled around them. Then earth was heaped over the stones to the height of about six feet.

3,000 DEER SHOT

Lindsay, Nov. 27 (CP)—Hunters killed more than 3,000 deer north of Bracebridge during an open season which ended Wednesday, Inspector A. M. Hodgson of the Lands Department Office here said today. In addition, three moose, 112 bears and three wolves were counted on outbound hunters' cars.

Surgical Nursing Methods Talk Given Nurses

The third lecture in the Refresher Course series for graduate nurses, was held in the Ritchie Memorial residence. The subject of the lecture was "Modern Methods of Nursing Surgical Patients". Dr. Geo. H. Stobie was the guest speaker.

By means of equipment and illustrations Dr. Stobie gave a very interesting and instructive lecture on the nursing care of surgical cases.

Tribute was paid to the other branches of science which have done so much to make surgery safer, i.e., the knowledge of blood culture, vitamin deficiencies and their various treatments.

The tragedy of the patient who tolerates illness too long was pointed out. These suffer from mal-nutrition, lack of minerals and vitamins, decreased fluids, as well as the primary illness. All these conditions tend to lower the individual's resistance to surgery and make an extended period of convalescence.

The surgical reduction of obstruction was explained and some of the more modern apparatus used was on display. Nursing care of burns and wounds was briefly mentioned.

Modern Drugs Helpful

Modern anaesthetics are also of very great value in early mobilization of surgical patients. Dr. Stobie explained briefly, the value and use of Penethotal, Curari and spinal anaesthesia.

X-ray plays a major role in the reduction of fractures, and the pictures are used to clearly show the use of the Smith Peterson Nail in surgical reduction of fractures.

The method used by Dr. Truetti applying the principle of rest to assist nature in the healing of compound fractures brought to a close a lecture of definite benefit to the nurses present.

Mrs. C. Howie thanked Dr. Stobie for the interest he had taken in the Refresher Course by preparing a lecture of such high educational value to the nurses attending.

Dr. E. G. Kennedy will address the last meeting this week, and is speaking on Pre and Post-Operative Care.

Talent, Beauty Win World Trip for New Zealand Belle

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z., (CP)— The old saw, "beautiful but dumb", can't be applied to New Zealand's beauty queens. In fact a beauty contest in this Dominion is something of a cross between a radio quiz, a Rhodes Scholarship selection and a domestic science examination.

That at least is the impression given by the quest just concluded which was conducted primarily to raise funds to send food to Britain. The requirements which the judges had to take into account were possibly the most comprehensive ever laid down for such a contest.

They were instructed to select a girl not only of attractive personality and appearance, but also one with cultured, artistic, sporting and homemaking qualifications. A talent for leadership was required as well as a good knowledge of New Zealand's history, geography and cultural traditions. In addition she had to be photogenic and have broadcasting talent and the ability to make impromptu and set speeches and to meet people with charm and poise.

The contest, which raised over $40,000, attracted a large number of entries. The candidates were narrowed down to nine district finalists who were given an exhaustive series of tests. Two of the nine finalists were Maoris one of whom was among the last three in the running.

The winner, 21-year-old Mary Wootton, of Christchurch, will visit Canada next year as part of her award. First she will fly from Auckland to England, where she will be given a screen test at the J. Arthur Rank studios and will have a wardrobe designed for her by Norman Hartnell, creator of Princess Elizabeth's wedding gown.

On her homeward journey she will cross the Atlantic by one of the Empress liners of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and after touring the breadth of the Dominion, will board a plane at Vancouver for the flight back to New Zealand.

Expenses of the tour will be paid by a group of companies backing the contest, and the winner has been given $800 for sundry expenses.

Miss New Zealand is five feet, six inches in height, weighs 130 pounds, has grey eyes and long golden hair which she wears in a coronet braid. She has a radiant smile and a pink and white complexion. An enthusiastic member of the Christchurch Repertory Theatre, she has played leads in several productions. She is a doctor's receptionist, but would like a stage career.

To win the contest she had to pass a series of exacting and unexpected tests put to her by the judges. Candidates were suddenly introduced to a judge representing the Queen (one of them lost her head completely and said "Pleased to meet you"). They were confronted with an immigrant coal miner anxious to hear the worst about New Zealand's liquor laws and the price of beer and with a demand to make a speech on a radio hook-up to the whole of the British Commonwealth.

They were asked to describe how they would prepare a meal if their future husbands unexpectedly brought an important client to dinner when they had only some cold mutton, a few carrots and some macaroni available. They had to be ready to give thumb-nail accounts of New Zealand to classes of schoolchildren in England and Canada. Photographs of the girls were taken in day and evening dresses, but bathing suits were barred.

Authority Tells How to Grow Old Without Any Regrets

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, (AP)—If you're under 45, you would be too young to get the scholarships or job-hunting aid planned by a new organization, the Association for Successful Aging.

But you would benefit from its proposal to teach people, in their youth, how to grow old successfully.

The association, putting emphasis on age, is headed by Dr. George Lawton, 47, phychologist, author and student of the problems of aging. Its 35 founding members range in age from 30 to 80 years.

Their goals may set a pattern for the future. There now are 10,000,000 Americans over 65, half of whom are dependent on their children or the community, Dr. Lawton said.

By 1980, the census bureau estimates, there will be nearly 60,000,000 over 45, and 19,000,000 over 65—accounting for 35 per cent of our population.

Unless something is done to make grandfather and grandmother feel useful and happy, less frustrated and out of things, by 1980 the army of grandparents could form a bitter and powerful political pressure group, Dr. Lawton warns.

"Our goal is bigger and better lives for older people, and we do not intend to seek bigger and better pensions, or to join any political group," he declared.

Work or Happiness

"We want to help older people find jobs or useful activities, something that will make them feel as important and necessary as when they were successful bread-winners in their younger days or were raising children.

"We want to break down arbitrary rules that say a man or woman is useless and must retire at 65, or kicks them out of jobs before then. We don't seek favors for older people, but we do ask that they be treated as human beings, on their merits. Simply providing food and shelter is not enough. The objective is to fill the second 40 years with as many satisfying, happy, and useful experiences as the first 40."

In the association's view, people need work or some useful hobby to remain mentally and physically healthy. Moreover, many need jobs and income to live in economic and social independence after retirement.

Objectives in the association's constitution include: establishing scholarships to train some persons over 45 in new trades or professions; creating employment agencies specializing in finding jobs for older people; esablishing recreation centres and clubs for middle-aged and older persons; plan housing for older persons.

In youth, Dr. Lawton says, people should begin preparing for old age by developing many and varied interests, training themselves to be alert to new ideas for outlets in the arts and crafts, and even learning a "spare" vocation or two if they are working in jobs that require mainly speed and strength that may be lost with advancing years.

Won't You Come to Tea

Afternoon tea is perhaps the most simple as well as a most pleasant mode of entertainment. A cup of tea, well made and accompanied by thinly sliced buttered bread and a cookie, is all that is necessary for a delightful little party.

As the holiday season draws near, it is well to have the cookie tin filled, so one is prepared to extend an invitation to the friends who drop in for a little chat when they are home for a weekend or longer, or for the neighbor who brings her knitting over to check on the intricacies of the pattern. It is nice, also, to be ready to call up several cronies in the morning and invite them to bring their various bits of Christmas fancy work over to sew together and enjoy a little refreshment.

The Home Economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture have some cookie recipes which may be called "party fare" as they are a bit richer and sweeter than those we have been having during the last few years.

Meringues always make a hit, and contrary to common belief, they are easy to make. The oven temperature is the important point. Long, slow baking to dry out the mixture, but not brown it, is essential.

When making meringues there is another cookie which uses egg yolks. The difference in texture and flavor of the two types makes them excellent companions.

Extra egg yolks may be utilized in custard or salad dressing.

Meringues

4 egg whites
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 cup fruit sugar
1-2 teaspoon almond extract

Beat egg whites with salt until stiff. Beat in sugar very gradually. Add flavoring. Drop meringues in a lightly greased pan with a teaspoon or pasty tube. Bake 30 minutes in a slow oven, 250 degrees F. Turn off heat and leave in oven until completely dry. Makes about 3 dozen small cakes.

Thimble Cookies

1 cup shortening
1-2 cup brown sugar
2 egg yolks
2 cups pastry flour
or 1 3-4 cups all purpose flour
2 teaspoons vanilla
1-4 teaspoon salt

Cream shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add egg yolk and beat well. Mix in flour, vanilla and salt. Form into balls, place on a greased cookie sheet and dent the top with a thimble. Bake five minutes in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. Then dent again. Bake 15 minutes longer. Put jelly or jam in the depression while still hot. Makes 3 dozen cookies.

Date Roll Ups

1 1-2 cups chopped dates
2-3 cup water
2-3 cup granulated sugar
1-2 cup chopped nuts
2-3 cup butter
1 1-4 cups brown sugar
2 eggs
3 cups pastry flour
or 2 2-3 cups all purpose flour
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-2 teaspoon soda

Cook dates, sugar and water until thick—about 10 minutes. Add nuts and cool. Cream butter. Add sugar and cream well together. Add beaten eggs and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients. Chill thoroughly. Divide mixture into two parts. Roll separately into two rectangles about 1-4" thick. Spread each with date filling and roll as for jelly rolls, into two long rolls. Chill. Cut into 1-4 inch slices. Bake in a moderately hot oven 375 degrees F., for about 15 minutes.

Makes approximately 4 dozen medium cookies.

SCULPTOR SCULPED

Montreal — (CP) — A plaster bust of noted Canadian sculptor Emmanuel Hahn by a Hamilton artist, Mrs. E. B. Holbrook, has been shown here at the Royal Canadian Academy. Mrs. Holbrook will spend next summer at the University of Syracuse studying under Ivan Mestrovic, famous Yugoslav sculptor.

BOASTS FAMILY TREE

Halifax — (CP) — Harold A. Garrison has family records dating back to the earliest days of Halifax. Among them is the original passport granting permission to his great-great-great-grandfather to leave France to come to Nova Scotia. The document, now yellow with age, still bears the official war stamp.

Fashion Flashes

VERY FAR to one side go many of the newest hats. Designed for dinner wear is a hat of black velvet, the slanted side accented by pink aigrette feather fancies.

THE EVENING SCENE finds much pink, especially for important dance frocks. Pale pink satin, patterned with large coin dots in matching pink, is made up into a strapless gown. The waistline is belted with narrow magenta velvet ribbon which holds in place a cluster of pink rosebuds tied with the sash ends. Below the waist the skirt gathers into a full, deep pouff, then extends in soft folds to the floor.

LOOK ALIKE accessories are important. Black velvet is used for a side-swept hat of black velvet trimmed at the slanted brim with ermine flowers. With it an ermine edged velvet stole to dress up a plain suit or coat.

NO MIDDLE OF THE ROAD length for shoe heels, say the stores. Girls who have lived in flats, want smart flats to go with their dressup duds while women who favored the spectator-height heel for all but formal wear, want that heel much higher for wear with the new long skirts.

IT'S EASY to do a dressup job with a ballet-length crepe or velvet skirt and a pretty blouse. A good blouse design is in white crepe with an outline yoke done in squares of shiny and dull gold sequins. The full sleeves are held by sequined cuff bands.

THE TREND is to special gloves to set-off special costumes. Nice for wear with late afternoon clothes is a black doeskin glove with a cuff that is worn turned back, or over and flared, making the glove a shortie or a four-buttoner. The cuff is edged with gold kidskin piping and the kidskin covers the cuff-link button.

Best-Dressed Beauty Almost Broke at 79

Halifax, (CP)—Countess Antionette Tyszkiewcz, once acclaimed one of the most beautiful and best-dressed women in Europe, is visiting here with United States Consul-General and Mrs. Alfred Kliefoth. The 79-year-old descendant of one of Poland's first families soon will leave to join her son in Montreal.

"Two wars are too much," she said recalling vividly how she and her family had suffered at the hands of the Germans. Now almost penniless, she was once a wealthy woman. She was forced to leave her fortune behind when fleeing to England during the Second World War.

Absentminded Women Main Woe to Hotels

Vancouver, (CP)—A survey of Vancouver hotels reveals that the absentminded professor probably majored in home economics, because she was most definitely a woman.

"Women are the worst forgetters," one desk clerk said. "One telephoned in for us to hunt under the bed for her glasses."

Another classic example was the woman who asked for her tooth-brush—forgotten on the bathroom sink—to be forwarded to her.

"I suppose it was attachment to the old brush," an elderly housekeeper sighed. "Just the way a man clings to his old shaving brush."

River Otter Reefer

By PRUNELLA WOOD

SLEEK river otter is a rare fur which is seldom seen and even more seldom recognized when it is seen. But the fur is a good one, and it is becoming as fluffier furs are not, to some figures.

This river otter coat has a reefer or coachman cut, double breasted, and both buttoned and bound about the lapels with brown felt to chime with the fur's color.

Where to Place Salad Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

When the salad is served at the beginning of a meal, either at luncheon or dinner, where should the salad fork be placed?

D. L.

Since the silverpieces should be placed in the order in which they are to be used, and forks should be placed at the left of the plate, the salad fork for the salad served as a first course should be the outside silverpiece at the left of the plate.

Removing the Tea Bag

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

When using a tea bag in making a cup of tea, where should I put the tea bag after I have finished with it?

Doris E.

When your tea has reached the proper strength, remove the tea bag from the cup, carefully, and place it on your saucer . . . on the side of the saucer nearest to you so that it will be as inconspicuous as possible. A wet used tea bag is not a thing of beauty!

Must Specify Kind of Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am planning to give a shower for my best friend, for whom I am to be maid of honor. I can't seem to decide what kind of shower to give, whether "kitchen" "linen", or what. Would it be proper for me just to write 'Shower for—— (then the girl's name), or must I specify the kind of shower?

Dolores S.

No, it isn't correct just to write "Shower for——", because that leaves the guests in a quandary as to what kind of gifts they are expected to bring. If you can't decide what kind of shower to give, why not write "Miscellaneous Shower' on your invitations?

Who Gives a Girl Her Hope Chest?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I already have several items (such as dining-table linens, teasets, towels which I have embroidered with my monogram) with which I would like to start a hope chest. I am not engaged but I do "go steady" with a young man whom I like very much. Who is supposed to give a girl her hope chest, her parents or could a boy friend buy it for her?

Gloria S.

A girl's parents may buy a hope chest for you at any time she wishes one, either before or after she is engaged. Or the girl may buy her own hope chest and begin to collect linens and so forth in it whenever she wishes. A boy friend should not give her such a "meaning-full" gift . . . but when she becomes engaged, her fiance may give it to her.

This Group of Girls has the Right Idea About Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

We are a group of girls who are planning a birthday party which is to be attended by couples. We are completely uncertain as to the correct method of inviting the various individuals. One of us recently went to a party which the girls planned and each girl invited her companion for the evening. However, some of us disagree with this arrangement, consider it bad taste. We believe that every person should receive a written or verbal invitation from the hostess. If this point of view is correct, please advise us as to the proper way to give the invitations. What is the proper form? And how can we clearly acknowledge the couples?

A Group of Girls

How refreshing it is to know that some teen-agers have such a fine and sure sense of taste in the sending of invitations. Congratulations to the girls in your group who believe that "every person should receive a written or verbal invitation from the hostess". That's just what party-courtesy demands. The hostess herself may invite the number of boys she wishes; or she may invite some or none, thinking that her girl guests may prefer to invite their own partners for the evening. But if the girls are to invite the boys, the hostess should ask each girl for the name and address of the boy she invited, and the hostess then writes a note (or telephones) seconding the girl's invitation.

If a note, it may read (and this form "acknowledge" the couple):

Dear Tom Smith,

Betty Brown says you'll come with her to my party on Saturday evening, December 6th., at 8 o'clock . . . and this is to tell you how happy Mother and I will be to welcome you. I'm sure we'll all have fun!

Cordially,
Peggy Peters.

BEAUTY

Is Your Hair Healthy?

In one respect, providence has been kind to women. They do not have to worry about getting bald. Hair specialists have no answer to this phenomena except to hazard a guess that women take better care of their hair than do men.

If a woman became afflicted with a hairless pate and could not find comfort in demountable tresses, she would retire to some dark wilderness and remain there the rest of her days. To cavort about after the fashion of some of those skittish old bald-headed boys would be unthinkable. And most of them have huge bay windows besides, poor things. Evidently they depend upon charm to take the place of handsomeness.

One specialist said that he believed that the daily shower has a bad effect upon the hair, not that water does harm in itself, but it removes the natural oil from the shafts; they dry out, finally shed. Continued shedding may mean that the papillae from which the shafts emerge get tired of carrying on a useless job and so go out of business. All scalp and hair specialists stress the need of oil to keep scalp and tresses in a healty condition.

The hair is exceedingly sensitive and resents neglect and harsh treatment. It shows it by being ill-natured or by clinging to the scalp. If your locks have tantrums, there may be a reason.

Do not underestimate the value of purposeful brushing. It stimulates the scalp, hustles up the flow of blood to every little hirsute root. With improved circulation, the nerves are nourished and strengthened and new life is imparted to the growth; it will take on new lustre and will thrive.

It is impossible to be too fastidious about the shampoo medium that is used. Harsh soaps can ruin the hair, causing the shafts to break, often producing an irritation of the scalp from which an infection can develop. The soap should be melted, should stand for several days before being used.

Liquid soaps can be purchased at drug stores and cosmetic counters. Usually it is best to dilute them with warm water, as they are considerably concentrated.

Use a bath spray and a strong current of water; it will wash away the suds better than the shower that pounds directly on the crown of the head. The shower may not do a thorough rinsing job at the sides or nap line. Keep lifting the hair as the water flows through it. Cream and oil shampoos are becoming more and more popular. They are rinsed away easily, give a gloss to the shafts.

In one respect, providence has been kind to women.

Fashion Flashes

FLUFFY WHITE FOX is perfect for evening wear. For southern wear one designer shows a wide stole and big muff of white fox lined with pink silk. A similar design, but of silver fox, is lined with rose colored velvet.

BIG SUCCESS of the season is the ankle length dinner suit, delightful for smart theatre wear. Silk satin in burnished copper makes a charming suit. The fitted jacket with a softly flared peplum is worn over a lace bodice posed over flesh colored marquisette, which is made with a very deep scooped out oval neckline banded with the copper satin.

ALWAYS RIGHT is the expert use of black and white. A beautiful hat has a wide, upflaring brim of white panne velvet, and a crown of black Lyons velvet. The hat is worn just back of the hairline. Under the softly rolled brim, at each ear, is a flower-like pouff of the white velvet.

THE DEMAND for the good fur-trimmed suit is big, and most shops report that women like this suit well done but not overdone. Dark brown wool crepe is used for a charming dress and matching jacket, the latter trimmed with a narrow, rolling shawl collar of ermine.

A Wowman Who Can't Forgive

Sad as it is, when a wife has had to go through the grief of her husband's infidelity, there are times when one can't help wondering why some husbands ever stay home. For there are wives so unintelligent in their way of handling such a situation, so foolish in their subsequent attitude toward it, as to make one feel the erring husband is a long-suffering man indeed if he stays home and settles down. Such wives, I would say, have only themselves to blame if they drive their husbands right back into the arms of the women they recently left.

Take the one who tells her story in the following letter:

"My husband and I have been married 10 years," she says, "and have three lovely children. We always prided ourselves on our ability to get along until I heard rumors about his running around with other women. And one night I actually saw him with one.

"Since then, I have been so unhappy I just don't know what to do. I think I should leave him if I ever wish to get my pride back. But then again I must think of the children.

"On the other hand, however, it might be better for the children if we did separate, because I constantly bring up the subject and remind him of what he had done, and I know that is bad for the children. As hard as I try, I can't forget it. It is constantly on my mind. I am not even a good mother any more because I am always irritable and cross around the children, pitying myself now for being tied down to them.

"My husband doesn't want a separation. He says he loves the children and me, but that to me is almost impossible to believe. I just can't see how our marriage can ever mean anything again.

"He seldom leaves the house now, but when he is at home all he does is read and sleep. He seems pretty much indifferent at home. How can a man who says he loves his family be so indifferent toward them and put them through such a scandal? I don't doubt but that he does love us in his selfish way. But he needs an eye-opener and I don't quite know how to give it to him without making a bad situation worse.

"He is very good to us financially, but that girl is always between us. He says he never thinks of her except when I mention her and that he certainly was never in love with her, but how can I ever trust him again? Should I leave him and gain back my self-respect, or live with him with this barrier always between us? I still love him very much, but I am sure I could get over that in time better than his infidelity."

Now, what chance has this couple to build up their life together again with the wife continually throwing her husband's mistake into his face all the time? She says that he stays home practically all the time now, so apparently she has nothing more to worry about. But, instead of being cheerful, she harps continually on something that seems to be over and done with.

She seems to feel thta pride and self-respect will not be satisfied until she leaves her husband. To my way of thinking, it would show a great deal more of pride and self-respect if she were content to bury the past and concentrate on making such a happy home for her husband and children that he would never want to leave it.

As things are at present, this wife is simply indulging herself in an orgy of self-pity and resentment, thereby making not only herself but her husband and children thoroughly miserable. Only time, of course, can tell whether or not her husband will continue to stay at home with her instead of seeking the company of other women. But her present behavior would certainly do little to hold him and much to drive him away again.

Certain Types Of Oils, Greases Being Admitted

Ottawa, Nov. 27 (CP)—Lifting of import restrictions, effective today on certain types of oils and greases not manufactured in Canada and on fibre glass which is used in Canadian manufacturers, was announced last night by Finance Minister Abbott.

Amendments to the list of imports banned under the government's recently-unrestricted importation of lubricating oils and greases composed wholly or in part of petroleum, refined petroleum jellies and oils for toilet, medicinal, edible or similar purposes; petroleum greases and otherwise provided for, in containers of more than 25 imperial gallons or of 250 pounds in weight.

Officials said that lubricating oils such as that used in automobiles was not affected and still was on the banned list, since it is manufactured in Canada. The lubricating oils and greases now lifted from the import ban include special types such as specialty oils for use in possibly airplane and Diesel engines.

In making the announcement the minister said that following discussions with the industry, it was decided that some relaxations of the restrictions were necessary because a greater part of the imports were essential industrial or technical types of lubricants which are not produced in Canada.

Paint Phobias Away Says Woman Artist

Vancouver, (CP) — Dorothy Henzell Willis, member of the new Canadian school of painting known as "the Calgary group" has attracted considerable attention with her art at the University of British Columbia.

This year she is giving weekly classes to adults in a workers' education class and to pre-school children at Acadia Camp where her trailer is parked. The camp is made up of a group of former grounds.

The intense, pipe-smoking Dorothy, who has taught creative art to pupils ranging in age from two to 75, tries to follow Gertrude Stein's dictum: "You haye to see more than you see."

One of her startling canvases illustrates a 12th century Arabic stanza: "When the bird of sleep tried to meet in my eyes he saw my eyelashes and was startled, frightened by the nets."

The eyelashes puzzled her for a long time but she finally got an inspiration—dental floss which she glued to the painting.

Sand, sawdust, wool and leather have all been called into use at various times by this ingenious artists.

Recurring bad dreams have been the subject of some of her latest work. Once painted she finds that the dreams never return.

"Inhibitions and phobias can also be painted away. I painted myself out of a fear of cats."

Pictures in her current show include: "Fish Swimming Through Green Seaweed," constructed out of bits of leather and string; "Trauma of Birth;" "The Cow in the Corn;" "Coffee Pot Found on the Beach," an egg tempera; and "Water Tower at Night."

She came from Vancouver 2 years ago from Edmonton, via Toronto.

It Swims, Moans, But What is It?

By LESLIE BROADIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, —(CP) — Residents of the little town of Gundagi in the southwest of New South Wales believe they have discovered a freak animal to rival the platypus.

The "thing" has been seen by more than one of the townsfolk and each has verified description given by the original discoverers, Ern Elphick and Phil Slater.

It is said to have a long black body covered with hair and a thick swan-like neck, but no head. Two floppy ears hang from the upper part of the neck and it spouts water from a point near its rump.

It makes a sound like the low moaning of a bull and swims with its neck about a foot out of the water.

Elphick and Slater, who are described by friends as "almost teetotallers," were on a fishing trip three months ago when they saw the strange creature in a lagoon about seven miles from Gundagi.

Since then several people have gone out at night with spotlights attached to their automobiles to hunt for it and all have reported seeing it. One man fired several shots at it with a heavy calibre rifle without results.

Local bookmakers are taking bets on what the creature is. Some maintain that it is a seal escaped from a circus; others say it is an amphibious sheep; but the favorite guess is that it is one of the local boys taking a swim.

Southgate Grateful For Canadian Food

London, Nov. 27 —(CP)— The mayor of London's Southgate borough has released a "letter for Canadian papers" expressing the district's gratitude for a consignment of gift food received from the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

"The quality of the food and the excellence of the packing are deserving of the highest praise," he said, after describing how the gifts were distributed among 7,000 aged and needy persons.

"After eight years of very restricted diet, it is impossible to convey to you how welcome are the delightful and varied additions that come from Canada and the other dominions and colonies.

WOLF HUNTER HIRED

Tulliby, Alta. —(CP)— Farmers and stockmen of this district 142 miles northeast of Edmonton have engaged a hunter to destroy Prairie wolves which have been plaguing their stock. Each farmer and rancher pays 13 cents a head of stock into the fund. The coyote hunter is paid a bounty of $25 for each animal destroyed.

TO SPEAK HERE

Lt.-Col. Alan Cockeram D.S.O.

The Progressive Conservative M.P. in Ontario's York South riding, Lt.-Col. Alan Cockeram, D.S.O., a distinguished soldier of two wars, is to address the Belleville P.-C. Association Friday night.

Colonel Cockeram contested the riding as a Conservative in the federal election of 1940 and was elected by a majority of over 3,500 votes. He resigned his seat to allow the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen to contest a by-election there. He returned to the field in 1945 and was returned as M.P. defeating the C.C.F. incumbent, J. W. Noseworthy.

A native of England, he was born at Topsham, Deyonshire, Dec. 6th., 1894. He came to Canada in January, 1912, and was employed with the Canadian Bank of Commerce until the outbreak of war.

When in the Brockville branch of the bank he obtained a commission in the 41st Brockville Rifles but being unable to obtain an appointment with the 1st Division as an officer he reverted to the rank of private and joined the 21st Battalion. In this capacity he served in Canada, England and France until April 1916, when he returned to England for a commission.

Gazetted to 2nd. Lt. in the 1st 1916 he served in France with that regiment until February 1917, when he was transferred to the 21st Battalion with the rank of lieutenant.

Wounded in August 1917, he served as G.S.O. 3 at Headquarters at the Canadian Shorncliffe Camp while on sick leave. Regaining his health he returned to France in March, 1918, and remained with the 21st Battalion until the end of the war. He was wounded again in August 1918.

On demobilization on May 24, 1919, he resumed his position with the Canadian Bank of Commerce and was sent to their New York office. Subsequently, he became assistant auditor in the head office and a branch manager. In 1927 he left to join the staff of F. M. Connell, mining engineer.

During peacetime he served in the militia with the Irish Regiment of Canada and was given command of that unit in 1937. On the outbreak of this war he reverted in rank to join the active army with the rank of major, second in command of that unit. After two years he was demobilized in June 1942.

At present he is secretary and director of a number of mining companies.

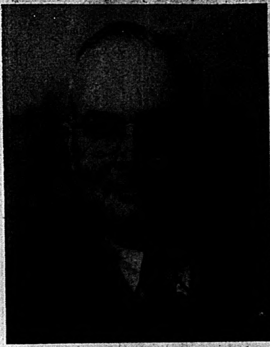
TIME FOR A CHANGE !

ELECT D. L. STOREY

MAYOR OF BELLEVILLE

I very much appreciate the honor of being nominated as a candidate for the office of mayor of the City of Belleville, at the same time, I fully realize the responsibilities that go with that position and the time that will be required to be devoted to City business.



Sincerely believing that it is TIME FOR A CHANGE I offer my services in the interest of better and more democratic administration of the municipal affairs of Belleville.

As many of you know, I am chairman of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association, in addition to my business activities. May I, at this time, also ask your support of this worthy cause. Our less fortunate people deserve and should receive our help.

I believe the City of Belleville is destined to become a city of even greater importance and our city government must fit itself for the problems and the opportunities that will arise in the months and indeed years to come.

We can no longer expect to get by with a "hit and miss" policy at the City Hall. What we need is a good business management. This can only be had from citizens with business experience, offering their services as mayor and aldermen.

I have over thirty years' business experience. If you elect me to the office of mayor I shall exercise my responsibilities in accordance with the best business procedures—Belleville today is bigger business than ever—and to grow bigger its affairs must be properly and efficiently managed.

When times are quiet, our permanent city officials can take care of things very well, but in time of expansion, it is quite a different matter. The city's business must be directed by men who have wide experience and vision to guide the citizens in following the best and most acceptable procedures and policies for the greater good of this city and its people.

These are the days that will count most in building an even better City of Belleville. True, this cannot be done in a day, but it is time for a change and we cannot start too soon.

We must plan a co-ordinated scheme that will fit into a definite pattern. First we must review what is done with the money you pay in taxes—we must make every cent and every dollar count. I promise a thorough investigation of our city's financial position and what is done with the money. And too, what best to do in the future. I promise to discuss this with the citizens at frequent intervals so that you shall know.

I promise to investigate the question of sewage disposal, industrial sites, residential districts, etc., and see that nothing is done in a haphazard manner.

I understand that a great deal of money has been spent in many directions already but no real master plan is yet forthcoming. I think the public should be appraised of what is proposed and their opinions and suggestions obtained. After all, they pay the shot, and all the brains in the community are not always enclosed within the Council Chamber walls, that is why I believe in public discussion of municipal matters from time to time.

Our tax rate has arisen steeply in the past few years, I appreciate the fact that we cannot have improvements without spending money; however, it appears that we have spent much money and received little for it. Let us search for all the facts so that you shall know what has transpired. The City Hall is not and cannot be a closed corporation which keeps the people in ignorance of what goes on.

Let Us Look at the Record!

WHAT HAS HAPPENED IN RECENT MONTHS AND YEARS . . . LET'S ASK A FEW QUESTIONS !

1. We voted for an incinerator $90,000. This contract has never been let, and working as I am in the building industry, can assure you that every day this contract is not placed will put the cost higher. Don't be surprised if the cost of this will not be double what was originally estimated.
2. Did you read that we had a Town Planning Scheme in which I understand $15,000.00 has already been spent—for what?
3. What about the Fire Department. They require another shift of fire fighters and need an increase in pay. Why is this held up? Now we are expanding, Belleville will require two fire halls.
4. We will be asked to spend $60,000.00 for an addition to Belleville's Home for the Aged. What are the plans and provisions for this excellent work?
5. The City of Belleville has well over a million dollars in debentures and these have to be paid off. What is the policy involved in the proper and orderly liquidation of this large sum of money?
6. How much over draft are we to face at the end of this year?
7. Every $12,000.00 spent by your council costs you, as taxpayers, one more mill on your tax rate. Do you know that whether you are a home owner or a tenant, when taxes go up, so does rent.

   It is poor policy to look ahead for tax money, and rely too much on funds that will be coming in next year, revenue that is to come from new factories and homes being built in the city. Experience has shown that a city with a cash reserve, is prepared for emergencies that arise and is the city that prospers and goes ahead.
8. The Industrial Commission, evidently, has tried to bring industries into Belleville. I believe this commission should be directly responsible to the council and that one of the aldermen should be its chairman. This would then permit the council to know what is being planned and to control the expenditures of the commission.
9. Industries. I am heartily in favor of bringing to Belleville all the industries we can secure to make Belleville one of the largest manufacturing centres in the Province of Ontario: Every town and city is now getting its quota of industries and this is the time to go ahead. We should have a more progressive and withal efficient policy on this important development.
10. Post war plans. What will happen when we tackle the new schools, and the many post war plans that were so freely suggested, and just as freely neglected, if an unprogressive administration is elected for 1948-'49.

If you, taxpayers, want business management and strict economy with efficient spending in the coming two years, for which there is a crying need, my services are at your command. The city's motto—"Economy is the best revenue," shall be my motto. If elected I shall work towards giving Belleville the best municipal government it has ever had.

Christmas-Time Bazaar and Tea Well Patronized

The spirit of Christmas cheer and goodwill was evidenced in the cordial welcome extended to all visitors at the Christmas-time bazaar and afternoon tea in the parlors of Holloway Street United Church yesterday. This festive event was sponsored by the entire congregation of the church with Mrs. L. F. Hopkins and Mrs. Don Fraser as general conveners; while guests were received by a representative group of ladies.

In the tea room, sponsored by the "Fellowship" and "Energetic" clubs, the atmosphere of Christmas hospitality was augmented by the Yule log in the grate of the red brick fireplace, under the picturesque mantel arrangement of miniature Santas, silver bells and tall white tapers in ruby crystal candelabra, against a background of evergreen branches.

Similar groupings adorned the piano top and the window ledges between the attractive burgundy drapes,—the whole softly lighted by shaded lamps and the glow from the lights on the picturesque Christmas tree.

Mrs. Don Fraser and Mrs. Ted Poste invited guests to the tea room where the long tea table with its lovely cream colored lace cover was unique in its appointments, centred by tall red tapers in silver holders as a background for Santa in his sleigh, drawn by reindeer prancing through a grove of snow-laden evergreens. Silver tea services for the dispensation of the cheering beverage, with silver and crystal trays of a mixed variety of sandwiches and delicious dainties, completed the attractive arrangements.

Pourers for Periods

Pouring during the first period were Mrs. S. Nighswander and Mrs. MacFarlane; and during the second period Mrs. A. Campbell with Mrs. C. A. Perkins, while Mesdames A. Dilts, G. H. Craig, N. Meldrum, Don Ferguson, L. A. Daugherty, Arthur Daniels, H. Bonter, Ed. Shorts, Cameron Hitchon and the Misses Myrtle Barnum and M. Moorcroft were busy serving the guests seated at the dozen small tables, whose snowy white covers were centred with red tapers in low poinsettia holders. Mrs. R. A. Wyatt was the convener of this enticing tea time salon.

Plates and tea urns were replenished by Mrs. O. Wagar, Mrs. D. McAllister, and Mrs. G. E. Stickle; while the kitchen committee personnel were Mesdames George Elliott, Janet Twiddy and M. E. Fergusson.

Treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. George Greatrix and Mrs. Davidson.

Beautifully Decorated

The larger room accorded to the booths of the bazaar was made attractive with various colorful combinations, creating a festive atmosphere of gaiety and cheer.

Members of the W.M.S. and W.A. organizations sponsored the home cooking booth, decorated in pure white with touches of contrasting black. Here Mrs. Hitchon and Mrs. Dobbs, with their assistants, were kept very busy disposing of delicate cakes, (large and small), delicious pastries, sugar cookies, brownie muffins, fluffy biscuits, crusty buns, and fruit-filled squares to rival the best commercial confections. These two societies were also responsible for the large four-sided booth trimmed in blue and white, which occupied the central floor space, displaying all kinds of useful household articles, novelties and fancy work, including knitted wear for adults and children, doll's clothes and kitchen gadgets. Mrs. L. Reid and Mrs. E. Moynes were in charge of this booth.

Behind hangings of delicate rose and white the "Fellowship Club" were sponsoring a table of beautiful growing plants, including different species of begonias, foliage, ivies, cacti, violets and geraniums. Miss Barnum and Mrs. Davidson were the conveners.

Christmas Colors Evident

Christmas colors were evident in the booth displaying Yuletide decorations, Christmas cards and Scripture calendars, with C.G.I.T. leaders Miss Mary Potter, Mrs. Wiggins and Mrs. Chesher as conveners, assisted by members of the senior group. The Young Peoples Union was in charge of an adjoining "White Elephant Table," also gay in the traditional red and green of Christmas.

The "Children's Centre" occupied all of the stage at the front of the room, where Mrs. Regensberg and Mrs. Poste were in charge of gifts for tots of all ages;—lovely knitted garments for the newest bundle from Heaven; dainty dresses for the littlest lassie, and sturdy shorts and shirts for the junior laddies; in fact all sorts and sizes of day-time and night-time wearables. Specialties in "The Centre" were many pieces of useful small sized furniture, and matching miniature duplicates from "Toyland."

Country Store Crowded

The red and white "candy booth" was convened by Miss Dorothy Craighead and Mrs. M. Burt, representing the Sunday School and Mission Band. Colorful containers of tempting candies were finding ready sale, and a centre of large pop-corn balls attracted the attention of many youthful purchasers.

"The Country Store" was crowded with customers anxious to secure some of the more or less "hard to get" merchandise offered for sale on the artistically arranged "counter" behind the yellow and brown draperies. Beside the usual commercial products and staples were prize packages of home canned jams, jellies, fruits and relishes; also fresh eggs and home-made bread. This popular booth was sponsored by the T.O.G. Club, and the "Ida Martin" Mission Circle with Mrs. Rex Chaplin, Mrs. R. Doxsee, Miss Beth Davis and Miss Hazel Smith in charge.

The "Apron Booth" with its red and white festoons and hangings, was convened by Mrs. W. Symons, Mrs. W. Adams and Mrs. L. Wilkes representing the W. A. Here the merchandise was so attractive in colors and styles that the stock was soon diminished.

A very large crowd attended this unusual "whole family" project, and the unprecedented success of the venture has proven the worth of co-operative effort among church groups and organizations. Sponsors of all departments report the results as exceptionally gratifying.

Zooming Prices Pose Headaches For Housewives of France

By MacFee KERR

Paris (Reuters)—A loaf which doubled in cost between July and September and a bread ration which has been cut lower than during the German occupation symbolize today the French housewife's hard struggle to feed her folk adequately and keep within her budget.

Between July and September bread, which plays a big part in the staple French diet, rose from about 10 cents to 25 cents for a two-pound loaf. On Sept. 1, the bread ration was cut from nearly nine ounces to just over seven per person per day.

The price was typical for a whole series of goods and services ranging from haircuts to coffins. Scarcely a facet of human life here has been left untouched by the rising spiral of prices.

The government's price index reflected this tendency by reaching a new high of 1090 in September against 998 in August, the basis being taken as 100 in 1938.

One result of the bread ration cut was a bigger demand for other starchy foods, such as potatoes.

Throughout the countryside, unlicensed potato dealers began buying up big stocks in the hope of big profits during the winter.

The government intervened to requisitioned large quantities of potatoes and to prohibit sales to unlicensed dealers. Nevertheless, the price rose to eight cents a pound in the middle of October for low-grade potatoes against five cents a month earlier. Today good quality Dutch potatoes may sometimes be bought—but on the black market at 15 cents a pound.

Open Two Days a Week

Another difficulty the housewife faces is that butchers are allowed to open their shops only two days a week following government orders designed to maintain livestock at a higher level.

The butcher too charges high prices—a steak may cost anything from $1.80 to $2.50 a pound.

French vegetables have been rising in price and are likely to be beyond a modest purse during the inter. At the beginning of September dry vegetables such as peas and lentils were 20 cents a pound; they rose to 65 cents a pound in mid-October.

Not only the fundamentals of living but the trimmings too have gone up in cost. Early this autumn hairdressers were allowed to raise their "tip" (which is obligatory) from 10 to 14 per cent of the bill.

You cannot even die cheaply now, for Parisian undertakers have been authorized to charge 280 per cent of their 1938 rates.

At the other end of the scale babies cost more to feed, for milk has risen to 25 cents litre (about 1 3-4 pints). Milk has, moreover, been increasingly difficult to get.

In the economics of daily life there seems to be just one bit of good news for French households—a good grape harvest which brought wine off the ration at the end of September. True, the price of unrationed wine is higher: from 30 cents a litre for red wine when rationed it went to 60 cents unrationed. Since then it has steadied around 45 cents—not so much more than when rationed.

CLOSE DOORS TO U.K. CARS UNTIL QUOTAS WORKED OUT

London, Nov. 27 — (CP) — A Canadian trade spokesman confirmed a report in Wednesday morning's Daily Graphic that Canada has "closed her doors to British cars until quota figures are worked out" but said he had few details with which to amplify it.

The Canada House spokesman said regulations barring shipments of British automobiles to Canada have been effective since Nov. 18 and will remain in effect until the conclusion of quota negotiations now in progress in Ottawa.

Presumably the ban was caused by the new import restrictions in the Dominion.

GERMANY GRAVEYARD OF TANGLED STEEL

Washington, Nov. 27 —(AP)— A picture of industrial Germany as a vast graveyard of tangled steel, with enough scrap to supply the entire world, was drawn today by Representative Charles Kersten (Rep.-Wis.). "We are critically short on scrap and paying $40 a ton for it in this country while Germany has so much scrap lying dead and forgotten it could end the world shortage," he said in an interview.

Youth Credited With Saving Lives Of Two Infants

Hamilton, Nov. 27 (CP)—A 17-year-old youth was credited with saving the lives of two infants early Wed., when he dashed into a blazing one-storey cottage in the Bridgeview Survey, east of Hamilton, to snatch seven-month-old Larry Fairchild and his three-year-old sister, Sheila Marie, from the flames. Both children were unhurt.

The children's parents and two other adults occupying the stucco cottage were treated for burns in hospital here. The cottage was destroyed.

A neighbor, Mrs. J. V. Jones first noticed the flames and her son, Edward, smashed a window to rouse the occupants. The youth found the Fairchilds blocked off from the children by smoke and broke into the babies' bedroom through a window, carrying them to safety.

HOME BUILDING LAGS

Vancouver — (CP) — R. C. Pybus, president of the Vancouver General Contractors' Association, says that home building has dropped sharply during the last six months. He blames the slowdown on high costs of materials and delays in delivery.

Thrashing O. K. For Erring Wife

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 27 — (CP)— In the eyes of the law of both the black and the white, Yamba, a full-blooded aborigine, was justified in giving his unfaithful wife, Biddi Biddi, a severe thrashing with his nulla-nulla, (a heavy native club). But the white man's law decreed at a native court at Fitzroy Crossing, West Australia, that he had no right whatever to use his spear on her as well.

The judge condoned the clubbing, but held that Yamba had inflicted grievious bodily harm on his wife with the spear and sent him to jail for four months.

Biddi Biddi had just returned from a long "walkabout" with a young buck of Yamba's tribe when the chastisement took place.

To Gilbert Isles In Tiny Sailboat

Vancouver, Nov. 27 —(CP)— Three men in a 35-foot gaff-rigged sloop with bright new canvas are in Vancouver planning to sail to the Gilbert Islands to do missionary work among the natives.

Jack Maier, Harold Gray and Marvin Norsted, all of Bellingham, Washington, pooled their life savings to purchase the vessel and came to Vancouver where they hope to obtain aid from groups sympathetic with their missionary work.

Maier was adrift 32 days in a small lifeboat with 15 others after a transport was torpedoed in the South Pacific two years ago. During their 1,875-mile trip to the Gilberts, first land they sighted, Maier said he decided that his life had been saved to bring religion to the island natives.

NOTICE
Re CANNED GOODS

●

Publicity on the canned goods situation gives a wrong impression as to the cost to the retailer. The prices as listed through the press are factory prices. To these must be added Dominion Government Sales Tax of 8 per cent, cost of freight from cannery to wholesaler, and wholesalers' service charge to retailer. The publicity also mentions that canned goods are cut to Nov. 17th level. We, your BIG stores wish to say that our prices were never raised after that date and the cost of some of the items on this year's pack were greatly in excess of the prices now given.

Royal Winter Fair Closed For Another Year

Toronto, Nov. 27 (CP) — The largest "big top" in the world, the Royal Winter Fair and horse show with 25 acres of agricultural exhibits under one roof, today was packing up for another year after last night's grand climax featured by a march past of Canada's farm wealth, prize livestock and ace horsemen of four nations.

Spectacular horsemanship resulted in victory for the United States Army team in the International Challenge Trophy, with Mexico's Military Stars placing second, Eire third and Canada fourth.

Although over-all attendance was below last year fair officials pointed to the increased number of exhibitors and entries as showing growing interest and enthusiasm for the Toronto show.

Chief innovation this year was the award of world grain championships for prize-winning exhibits. Officials said Canadian agriculturists for years had pressed for world titles at Toronto on the basis that "the best grain in the world is grown here in Canada."

Mrs. Amy Grace Kelsey, 55-year-old farmer's wife from Erickson, B.C., won the owrld wheat trophy for her entry of reward wheat. The oat trophy went to Albert Robbins, 60-year-old bachelor of Laura, Sask., and the barley trophy was shared by Bill and Craig Brown, brothers of Cassils, Alta.

Apart from the daily judging of all classes of farm produce and livestock and other animals, interest nightly on the international horse show in which the Mexicans performed brilliantly throughout and were topped by the United States entry only on the final night's riding.

Dollar Position Of Australia Deteriorating

Canberra, Nov. 27 — (CP) — Prime Minister Chifley has told the parliamentary labor party that Australia's dollar position is deteriorating daily and further severe import restrictions from dollar areas will have to be imposed soon, Reuters news agency said today.

The report came as Canada's import ban on Australian canned fruits shocked Queensland pineapple growers. The growers said first news of the embargo, caused by Canada's own import restriction policy imposed last week, was cancellation of a Canadian order for 3,000 cases of canned pineapple packed from the winter crop.

Australian authorities later confirmed Canada had placed a ban on imports of all canned pineapples.

Reuters quoted Chifley as saying he would make a statement to parliament on the dollar position shortly and added that proposals for import restrictions were expected to be ready for submission to the cabinet within a few weeks.

B. Flewell Smith, general manager of the Fruit Marketing Committee, said he realized the Canadian action was taken to conserve dollar credits but it would mean the loss to Queensland of her main overseas market with a volume of more than $3,000,000 annually.

SPAIN REVISES POORLY PLANNED EXPORT PROGRAM

By HENRY BUCKLEY

Madrid, Nov. 27 — (Reuters) — Spain is revising her post-war export program which gives every appearance of not having been planned with sufficient care.

The first concrete step towards this revision came with the official announcement that all "combined accounts" have been suspended.

The "combined accounts" system was aimed at stimulating exports by allowing exporting firms to retain the foreign currency produced by their merchandise shipped abroad and to bring in imports with this money.

But apparently some checking up recently revealed that export licences granted for almonds during 1947 in connection with these "combined accounts" totalled twice the quantity of a normal annual almond crop in Spain and prompt action was taken to suspend this system.

In the case of almonds the result of this move by exporters to get foreign currency had led to a sharp rise in prices in Spain and at the same time almond prices had been forced down abroad by excessive offers in the main markets for these nuts.

Another unsatisfactory feature of the export field is textiles, which — although exports are enormous above pre-war figures — have not made the advances which could have been made if production costs had been kept down.

As high production costs are due in part to high wages and social reforms, there is a difference of opinion between the labor ministry and the ministry of industry and commerce as to policy on this question.

Generally speaking, the criticism directed against the ministry of industry and commerce is that it has not concentrated sufficiently on the main necessities and has allowed too much non-essential industrial development to take place in the last couple of years.

For instance, neither of the nitrogen plants initiated by the National Institute of Industry some years ago and vitally needed for fertilizers to step up food production, has yet been completed.

It is only fair to Spain to say that in 1943 the Germans offered to supply complete mechanical equipment for these plants to boost Spain's production of fertilizers to 100,000 tons a year. In return the Germans asked for 100 tons of copper. Spain declined the offer.

Another chance to obtain from Germany large quantities of machinery for cellulose plants for modern textile production was missed during the war when the Reich offered to send this machinery against peseta payments. But the bureaucrats of the National Institute of Industry took 18 months to decide to accept — and by that time the deal was no longer possible. Much of this machinery is understood to be lying crated in German factories today; but there appears to be little chance of Spain obtaining it.

VETERAN SHOOTS D.V.A. DOCTOR, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Office of dead pensions medical examiner was in the Aylmer building, Ottawa. Threats to doctors of veteran's affairs department are not uncommon, it was disclosed.

Only a few seconds elapsed before persons, attracted by the sound of the shots, rushed into Dr. Bowie's office. Both the Doctor and Page were beyond help. Here Dr. Bowie's body is removed from the building.

Dr. M. R. Bowie, pension examiner, was shot and killed in his Ottawa office.

Henry Page, who shot doctor, then himself, moved to Ottawa in September.

Eye-witness of double shooting, Jack Robertson, was in nearby waiting room.

Two Hunters Rescued After Boat Founders

From Salmon Lake comes a story of near-tragedy, narrow escapes and rescues that culminated a successful hunting trip of a party of Campbellford nimrods.

Alfred Burgis and Joseph Smith, of the Northumberland county village were members of the party that had brought down its quota of eight deer.

The two men loaded the deer into a skiff, and proceeded along an ice-sheathed creek leading into Salmon Lake, followed by the remainder of the party.

Bucking the ice of the creek, the sides of the craft were punctured by jagged ice, and the boat suddenly swamped. The men jumped clear of the skiff as it foundered and were able to cling precariously to the inch and one half coating of ice.

The remaining members of the party who arrived some time later, picked the men up in an exhausted condition. Burgis was unconscious and was being supported by Smith.

Their friends rushed them to shore where a fire was built and the men revived. Burgis is convalescing from his immersion while Smith seems little the worse for his experience.

All the deer and other hunting paraphernalia were recovered from the water.

62 Years' Growth Makes World Port From Shabby Dock

By ERWIN FRICKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Nov. 27 — (CP) — Sixty-two years ago a two-masted, square-rigged sailing vessel — the brig W. B. Flint — scudded into one of the finest natural harbors in the world and dumped 800 tons of tea from China on Vancouver's ramshackle wharf.

That started something.

Ships from every maritime country in the world have been whipping in and out of here in increasing numbers ever since.

Port Manager K. L. Burns now reports, "Vancouver's maritime commerce in the first nine months of this year has made the best showing of the last 10 years."

From the 800 tons of China tea, imports have swelled to 3,830,324 tons of goods for this year's first nine-month period from Great Britain, Sweden, Denmark, France, the Belgian Congo, Italy, Greece, South and Central America, Holland, Belgium and the United States.

Exports have soared from the first shipment of 50,000 sacked bushels of grain in 1909 to 3,120,049 tons for the first nine months of this year. Grain alone amounted to 42,416,208 bushels.

The Dominion's exports to the Antipodes and Asia have more than doubled since 1939. One result is that the Australian government this month sent F. R. Gullick to Vancouver as trade commissioner to Canada.

Grain Movements Down

Despite the 10-year high of more than 21,700 vessels that came to Vancouver between January and October, some shipping officials have expressed concern with the light delivery of grain from the Prairies this fall, resulting in a loss of thousands of dollars to the port.

However, the closing of Great Lakes ports by ice will swing the delayed grain movement to Vancouver's year-round ice-free harbor.

Last year, 20 ships were idle here awaiting grain cargoes due to a box-car shortage but railway officials say there will not be a recurrence this year.

Another off-key note sounded by vessel owners is the nearly non-existent Chinese and Japanese trade. The return of ships to this once highly-lucrative run depends on the settling of China's shaky financial structure and the emergence of Japan as a trading nation once again.

It was Oriental trade — and opening of the Panama Canal in 1915 which realigned world trade routes — that thrust Vancouver into prominence as a world port and distributing centre.

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE WEAPONS AGAINST REDS

Sherbrooke, Que., Nov. 27 — (CP) — C. Bruce Hill of St. Catharines, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, warned members of the Eastern Townships Boards of Trade yesterday about the perils that face business in Canada. In a plea for well-organized Chambers of Commerce in all communities, he stressed the fact that they are one of the strongest weapons against communism and radical socialism.

Mrs. J. Carr closed the meeting with prayer, after which the hostess served delicious refreshments.

TABERNACLE Y. W. GUILD

The Young Women's Guild of Tabernacle Church met on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, Dufferin Ave. Mrs. Coulter presided and following the regular business Mrs. R. Wardle conducted the worship service. "Do Jobs and Families Mix?" was the topic of discussion directed by Mrs. Wm. Harrison, assisted by Miss Dane and Mrs. H. Seldon.

The question "Should Married Women Work?" arouses instant controversy. But it is not simply a matter of men against women. The battle lines in such a debate do not form up on the basis of sex. It is quite possible that there are more women who strenuously oppose the taking of a job outside the home, where it is not an economic necessity, than do men.

Mrs. Harrison stated that the married woman who works from choice may not be a satisfactory employee. She frequently demands special concessions, and changes her employer, without hesitation, until she finds one who will grant them. She is sometimes extremely independent in her attitude, and un-co-operative with her fellow-workers. Other women in the plant or office may resent her as unfair competition.

Miss Dane dealt with the advantages of a married woman working outside the home. It was felt she would bring a perspective to her family life which the woman at home lacks. The additional income, which, if not actually needed for running expenses, may be spent on education, travel, recreation, holidays, or on other means of expanding the life of the family. As her children mature, they will form new relationships and become less dependent upon her. There is also the conviction that family life gains if both parents are in jobs, because household duties must then be carried out on a much more co-operative basis. The contention is that many marriages would be happier if a spirit of partnership entered them more fully.

"How Much Does the Home Suffer?" was the question asked by Mrs. Seldon. It was felt that if the mother becomes engrossed in an outside occupation she almost inevitably gives her household occupation only the fag-ends of her time, when she is physically or mentally exhausted. She is under continued strain, and that strain communicates itself to her family. The child is not free to call on his mother when he needs her, and may lose the feeling that home is a secure haven in the face of trouble. A woman has not the physical and nervous stamina to do two jobs well. If both people are meeting the tensions of the outside world, a wife may fail to give her husband the support he needs in his job. Housework and children, if not actually neglected, are likely to receive only haphazard care.

In the November Chatelaine Byrne Hope Sanders says, "If we know of their lives; if we watch them in crowded street cars at the end of a tiring day; if we see them struggling with their marketing; or starting in on another day's work when they reach home, we will realize that it's a mighty hard life for any woman. Very few would undertake it unless they had excellent reasons."

Refreshments were served by the hostess committee and appreciation expressed to Mrs. Buchanan for her hospitality.

The Issue at Corbin Lock

And A Proposal for Settlement

The Issue

The Corbin Lock Company in their full page ad. in Monday's paper didn't say ONE word about firing men with,

9 years,
6 years, and
5 years

service with the Company without warning or adequate reason.

THIS IS THE ISSUE ON WHICH THE DECISION TO STRIKE WAS MADE BY THE WORKERS OF CORBIN AND NOT BY LOCAL 533 U.E.-C.I.O.

This issue is still perfectly clear despite the efforts of Corbin Lock to confuse it. We demand that the sixteen U.E.-C.I.O. members who were dismissed without notice on October 3rd be immediately reinstated.

Local 533, U.E.-C.I.O. has never asked the Corbin Lock Company to recognize it or to negotiate a contract beforecertification.

It was announced in a leaflet on October 3rd that an application for certification HAD been made to the Ontario Labor Relations Board. At quitting time on the same day our brothers and sisters were fired.

Many companies do recognize the U.E.-C.I.O. and bargain with it before certification. Negotiations for a contract are now under way in Belleville with a leading manufacturer through an elected committee of the workers and a U.E.-C.I.O. representative without certification.

The U.E.-C.I.O. has tried to help the workers of Corbin Lock and will continue to help them and all other workers to organize and will fight with all its strength against indiscriminate firings and intimidation by any Company.

As an example of the type of intimidation that was practised by the management of Corbin Lock we reproduce below a sworn and witnessed statement by a Corbin employee as to a conversation which took place between the employee and a senior official of the Company:

> "While I was employed at the plant about two weeks before the firing of the employees, which was responsible for the strike, I was called into the office of a senior official of Corbin Lock, who in the course of conversation between us told me that he did not want a Union in the shop and that he could do a lot more for the workers than the Union could. This was said after a talk with him about the organizing of the Union in the shop of which I had been accused of participation."

The Proposal

As further proof of the statements made here we reproduce our proposals for settlement of the Corbin strike presented to the Company as recently as Nov. 19th through the good offices of Mayor Follwell.

"Nov. 19th, 1947

"The Corbin Lock Company of Canada Ltd., agrees that in reopening their plant no discrimination will be shown towards any employee. All employees who were on the Company's records as employees as of October 3rd, 1947, shall be given the opportunity of returning to work at the Corbin Lock plant before any new employees are hired. In recalling employees back to work it is understood that they shall be recalled in accordance with their seniority in their department.

"It is further agreed that the Company will open the plant on Nov. (date left open), 1947 and that all former employees as referred to above will be recalled not later than (date left open).

"In order that normal production may be resumed within a reasonable period of time, the following proposals are made in good faith:

"1. That every effort be made to see that there are no recriminations as between foremen and other officials and strikers and between one group of workers and another.

"2. After all former employees have been recalled to work the two parties (company and union) shall request the Provincial Department of Labor to conduct a vote to determine the wishes of the Corbin employees with respect to whether they want to bargain collectively with their Company through the U.E.-C.I.O."

WE LEAVE IT TO YOU

Our position as we have stated it here is clear and factual. We have cleared away the smoke screen that the Company attempted to spread in order to obscure the real issue of the strike.

You have seen here our proposal for settlement which we set out for presentation to the Corbin management through the Mayor. We have hundreds of signatures on file demanding a settlement from Corbin management. If you agree with our position as set forth here we ask you to join with the majority of the citizens of Belleville by telling the management of Corbin Lock that they are making a serious mistake in rejecting the above document.

Prince Dung Maung Cherenzi-Ling, claiming to be the highest Buddhist religious authority, fingers his prayer beads as he stalks along in serene dignity, accompanied by an apostle. This "living Buddah" came to Rome ostensibly to find converts for his religion and to be received by Pope Pius XII. The "living Buddah" decamped — dignity intact —from his swank Roman hotel when it was discovered he was a mere living Cuban, with little knowledge of the language, habits and religion of mysterious Tibet, his alleged land of origin, and has not yet re-appeared for that promised audience with the Pope.

DEVIL'S ISLE REPATRIATION DRAWS TO END

Liberator of Ex-Convicts at French Penal Colony Pays Last Visit to Island

Montreal, Nov. 27 —(CP)— Brig. Charles Pean of the Salvation Army, preparing for his sixth and last visit to French Guiana, said here that within 10 months the last group of ex-convicts who were forced to live animal-like existence in France's outpost penal settlement will be repatriated to their homeland.

The 700 liberes, some of them freed from infamous Devil's Island, are the last of thousands who served sentences and then lived and suffered with no hope of repatriation.

Nearly 2,000 men have been sent home and rehabilitated by the French government through the Salvation Army.

Brig. Pean, known as "the man who conquered Devil's Island," said that of the first group of more than 800, "only three found themselves back in prison for committing new offences."

In addition to the 700 awaiting repatriation, another 700 must finish their sentences but they are in the main camp on the mainland and not on Devil's Island, "which now houses nothing but 400 coconut trees."

Back in 1928 when Brig. Pean first visited the settlement there were 6,000 convicts and liberes working and whiling away the time in a tropical climate. The Brigadier lived among them and was stricken with malaria and dysentery.

The settlement was instituted in 1852 when France started "banishing" criminals sentenced to hard labor. After serving their terms, their chances of returning home were negligible. Some escaped, but they numbered less than one per cent of those who tried.

Now France sends those sentenced to hard labor to a new and modern penitentiary on the Island of San Martin de Re, near Bordeaux, where they have opportunities for social and spiritual education.

Compressed Air Newest Device In Safety Mine

By ROBERT SUITS

Duquoin, Ill., Nov. 27 —(AP)— Compressed air is substituted for explosives to break coal in a comparatively new mine operating here with the most modern safety devices.

Less than 50 miles from Centralia, Ill., where an explosion resulted in the deaths of 111 coal miners last March, this mine has equipment described by its superintendent as unsurpassed anywhere in the United States.

The mine is typical of modern mining methods employed in various parts of the country. It is the New Kathleen which produces 5,000 tons of coal a day.

The mine had experiences a rock fall in one room the day before a recent inspection by newspapermen. But the pile of rock and shale bore a heavy coating of rock dust.

This rock dust — pulverized limestone deposited with a blower hose — coated every inch of the roof, walls and floors of the mine tunnel, which under the reflection of electric cap lamps shone as bright and clean as a hospital corridor.

Rock dusting is a safety measure required by law in Illinois and most other states. When the powdered limestone is blown into the air by an explosion the stirred up dust tends to localize or smother the blast.

The compressed air device carries fresh air to the workings and in event of an explosion furnishes fresh air to trapped miners.

The method is more costly than explosives, however. The superintendent of the Centralia mine at a hearing after the explosion estimated initial cost of installing the compressed air system would be $20,000.

A huge cutting machine with a flat probing finger edged with a revolving chain eats straight into the wall of solid unmined coal at floor level. Then it moves sideways so that the entire wall of coal will be undercut.

This leaves space at floor level into which the coal above can be forced by the sudden blast of compressed air.

After a hole is drilled into the wall of coal the compressed air device — a hollow steel shell or tube four inches in diameter and equipped with a piston and valve mechanism — is inserted.

The compressors, located outside the mine above ground, develop a pressure of 10,000 pounds a square inch. The air goes into the mine in small pipes and is carried to the working face by one-half inch copper tubing.

After the air is admitted to the steel tube, pressure in the line between the tube and the control mechanism is released. The compressed air in the tube is released suddenly through several small holes with such force that the coal is cracked or broken along its veins for several feet in all directions.

Burr's

Burr's — Mr. and Mrs. Richard Soble and family, Ameliasburg, were the recipients of pleasant news through the columns of the "Globe and Mail" where they noted their son's name, Russell Soble, had been listed on a plate, among the names of twelve Canadians who gave their lives at Putte. This plate was given to Premier King as he was leaving for England, from the residents of Putte, to be taken by him as a wedding gift to Princess Elizabeth in honor of the Canadians who had given their lives there.

Mr. Basil Ainsworth, who was a member of the hunting party at the camp of George Oram succeeded in bringing down a deer and a fawn on his first day out. Mr. Murney Parks also got a deer. Two bears were shot by the group.

Mr. and Mrs. William Chatwood who have been engaged on the farm of Mr. Omar Diggins the past season, have purchased the farm formerly operated by the late Walter Cunningham, 4th of Ameliasburg. They intend taking up residence there in the spring when they will be joined by Mrs. Chatwood's parents of Devonshire, England. Several neighbor men assisted with a plowing bee for Mr. Chatwood last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Blakely entertained for dinner a party of twenty-three guests at their home Thursday evening. Euchre afforded the enjoyable pastime with Miss Doris Blakely and Mr. Arnold Foster winning the favors. Mrs. Blakely was assisted by her daughter, Miss Doris Blakely, and her mother, Mrs. Merritt Adams.

Mrs. J. E. Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Morley Moran, Mary, Marie and Larry of Crofton, with Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Spencer of Centre, were Saturday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Spencer, Lloyd and Donna.

Mr. Rodney Burr, Belleville, was a weekend guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Burr.

Mr. John Webb, Belleville, was a Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burkitt.

WHAT A PLACE FOR A PORTAGE!

New Yorkers, who are said to be surprised by nothing, stared when this young man sauntered along a downtown street with a canoe on his head. The Empire State building, too, is surprised as it looks down from background. He is Peter Burtt, Canadian veteran of World War II, who just completed a 6,000-mile paddle from Victoria, B.C., to New York. He began two years ago and came by inland waterway. He says he did it just to adjust himself to civilian life after seven years of war.

13 Paratroopers Nucleus of Canada's New Airborne Army Graduate At Joint Army-Air Force School

Written for The Canadian Press
By CAPT. J. D. DONOGHUE
Army Public Relations,
Western Command

Rivers, Man., Nov. 27 —(CP)— A class of 13 paratroopers, latest of the nucleus of Canada's new airborne army being trained at this joint Army-Air Force school, proudly wore their graduation insignia today. And every one was willing to admit there was nothing like those five graduation jumps from 1,000 feet to produce thrills, chills — and butterflies in the stomach.

The five jumps climaxed four weeks of rigorous training for the class of 11 soldiers and two airmen.

Trained to the finest of physical condition and their minds conditioned to their work, tension mounted as the trainees strapped on their parachutes for the jumps that climaxed days of work from the 256-foot steel jump tower and the "mock-up" tower, closer to the ground, but which they say presented the greatest mental hazard. They get the sensation of height yet the ground looks dangerously close.

As the trainees entered the plane for their first actual jump each attempted to appear unconcerned but yawns and laughs off pitch betrayed their nervousness.

For one, Pte. F. Barley of Port Arthur, it was both his first ride in a plane as well as first jump from one. On completion of his test he had made five flights in an aircraft but had yet to land in one.

Reactions were varied but all the students agreed that jumping from a plane provided the biggest thrill they'd ever had — either in or out of the army.

As for those "butterflies in the stomach" — well even a group of qualified jumpers who joined the class for refresher jumps confessed they get 'em too, despite the number of jumps they have already made.

The graduating class included: Craftsman F. M. McLaughlin, Milton Heights, Ont.; Pte. B. C. Buckwald, Eganville, Ont.; Cpl. R. S. Goldsmith, Sarnia, and Sgt. L. A. D. Helman of Owen Sound, the latter a member of the R.C.A.F.

Owners Oppose Any Toll System On Seaway Plan

Toronto, Nov. 27 —(CP)— The Dominion Marine Association, representing owners of 125 lake vessels, today allied itself with the Lake Carriers Association of the United States in opposing any toll system on the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway Plan.

Announcement of the association's stand was made in a 3,000-word petition being sent to Canadian Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier over the signature of Secretary George R. Donovan and released here today.

The association contended that if tolls were levied, the St. Lawrence waterway would have to compete for traffic with the New York State Barge Canal which would be toll-free.

A toll of $1.25 a ton proposed by the United States government, which would mean 3 3-4 cents a bushel on wheat moving through the St. Lawrence system, would place the St. Lawrence route beyond competition with the New York State system, the association's petition added.

The petition quoted statistics showing a toll of $3.71 a ton would have to be collected to carry the project.

This would affect the cost of living of every man, woman and child on the continent, and would surely be a factor toward inflation."

The petition suggested that the increase in water-borne freight rates would also result in an increase in freight rates of other carriers.

"Water-borne commerce has a dual purpose — it not only gives cheap transportation but sets competitive rates for other carriers in the areas which it services," the petition concluded. "Any attempt to collect tolls on water-borne commerce would automatically increase the freight rates of other carriers and would reflect itself in the disruption of business and the cost of living."

Britain Planning Utility Airline

Bristol, England, Nov. 27 (CP) —Bristol Aeroplane Company, now building the huge Brabazon I airliner, has been entrusted by the supply ministry with the development of a "general utility" airliner suitable on medium-stage routes anywhere in the world.

The aircraft, which should be available in five years, will have piston engines in the prototype, but will be adaptable to airscrew-turbines.

Specifications call for a four-engined aircraft with a payload of 11,000 pounds, made up of 32 passengers and their baggage and 2,750 pounds of freight. It will be pressurized, have a stage range of 1,354 miles and should be capable of 320 miles an hour.

Four-Day Weekend Seen in Maritimes At Christmas Time

Halifax, Nov. 27 —(CP)—Many store employees, office workers and tradesmen throughout the Maritimes are looking forward to an extra Christmas present this year—a four-day weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows that many department stores in Halifax, Moncton, Sydney, Fredericton and Saint John plan to remain closed Saturday, Dec. 27, as well as Christmas Day and Boxing Day, Dec. 26, and other businesses are tending to follow suit.

However, most grocery stores are expected to remain open Dec. 27 to avoid weekend wastage and to meet public demand. Going for the four-day holiday scheme in the biggest way were Halifax businesses. They had already been granted a request by city council to make Boxing Day a civic holiday.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The death of two well-known city and district sportsmen, John J. Burke, formerly of Belleville and George A. Welch, Picton, who passed away on Sunday and Monday respectively recalls the good old days when hockey players were 60-minute men, the boys disdained powder puffs, professionalism was unheard of, (by the public) and the fans backed their squads with fists as well as lettuce.

* * *

The late Johnny Burke was one of the lads who wore the Belleville colors in those stirring days back in 1905-6- and 7, when horse-drawn street cars rattled through the streets, the Belleville Kilties band was spat-high in Front Street mud as they skirled their way; there was a hotel every dozen feet; eggs were a dime a dozen, you could get a free lunch with every schooner of suds, and the only price controls were those governed by the local magistrate every Monday morning.

* * *

The Belleville arena in these hectic days stood where the Bridge Street armouries now rears turrets. Later it was moved by owner Dick Arnott to a Turnbull Street site. In these dimly-lit buildings the hockey squads of the day battled their way to victory or defeat. And many the fist fight took place among the fans who took their winter sport as seriously if not more so than the warriors on skates.

* * *

It was in those days that Johnny Burke with his mates did yeoman hockey service for this city. There was Ken Phillips who wore the pads, Jim Conley and Billy Pepper who guarded the blue line; Lane (Spangenburg) Chamberlain who did rover duties with Billy Allen in centre ice and Walter Reeves and Burke patrolling the wings.

* * *

Players in these days did not have the benefit of heated dressing rooms. They changed into hockey garb at their hotel and went to the rink in full paraphernalia. This fact recalls an event which took place here, which may seem amusing now but was not so funny at the time. The Brockville team was here to play the Belleville squad and according to the custom of the times had changed into hockey gear at the Hotel Quinte. During the game the hotel caught fire and the luckless Brockvillians lost every stitch of their "civvy" clothing in the blaze.

* * *

The late Dick Arnott, who owned the arena in those days also managed the team and many the anecdote is told by fans of that era anent his colorful sportsman.

* * *

The late Johnny Burke lived with his father and brother at the Headquarters Hotel, one of the many city hostelries of the time and which was located on Front Street where Clarke and Myles butcher shop now stands. It was operated by Johnny's paternal parent Dick and his uncle John. The late Dick Burke was careful that minors did not enter his saloon, and his favorite method of telling their age, or at least so he told them, was to walk out in front and say to them "Let me see your teeth." By this time he had a good idea of their age, but the gag always worked.

* * *

Don't look now — and don't say you weren't told. But don't be surprised if you see or hear of a basketball team from the suburbs of this village hanging around when championships are being given out next Spring. Pretty broad statement perhaps, but a guy can dream, and after all, the dream may come true.

* * *

Up around Albert College way there is a trio of basketball gentlemen, who are past masters in the art of dunking the ball in the basket. And, an excellent authority has it, that this doughty trio of courtmen will form the nucleus of an intermediate team that if properly bolstered should go a long way down the basketball trail.

* * *

The gentlemen of the court of Albert are none other than Don Huyck, former Western football star, Johnny Hayman, who has starred so often on Western U quintets that even the ball scintillates when he touches it, and Harold McFadden, also a London laddie, who rates tops among the knights of the round basketball table.

* * *

Already they have gathered a few courtiers around them, among them being Clare, Wright and Woods of the "towners", and a few others. They have played a couple of exhibition games with a Trenton five and on each occasion have come out on the long end of the score. In fact, Mr. McFadden went on a scoring spree in one of the games and when the smoke had cleared away he had amassed a total of 23 points.

* * *

The team will definitely enter an intermediate grouping and any city players desirous of trying out for the squad are asked to contact Don Huyck at 2250. He will give them information regarding practices, etc.

* * *

Huyck and Johnny Hayman are coaches in their own right, and will take over the intermediate and senior college COSSA basketball squads. The juniors will be under the able supervision of Athletic Director "Pete" Beach. Two girl teams from the college will also be entered in COSSA junior and senior groupings.

* * *

During the Christmas holiday a team form the college will tour Western Ontario and will play a series of five or six exhibition games with teams in that district.

* * *

It is understood that Belleville will not enter a team in the intermediate ranks this season, and if such is the case there should be some good players available for the Albert College squad. Coach Don Huyck is anxious to get the pick of the basketball crop and all players, past present and potential are requested to report to him for tryout practices. As far as an intermediate basketball championship around these parts is concerned, "Long time no see."

* * *

And please don't forget those stirring hockey battles at the Arena tonight when Napanee takes on the Belleville Juniors in the curtain raiser and Campbellford battles Tweed in the nightcap. Both games should be thrillers and the fans are assured of some wide-open hockey when these teams clash.

* * *

Then, of course, tomorrow gleaming, there is the resumption of the feudin', fightin' and fussin' that has always characterized hockey battles between Peterborough and Belleville teams. The Petes Legionnaires under the doughty, scrappy Ned Vitarelli will be the guests of the Belleville ANAFS, which doesn't make any difference, as long as the teams represent Perdue's hamlet, and this village. Should be some neat goin's on in Walt Gerow's igloo come fishday evening. Game starts at 8:30.

* * *

ON POUNDAGE BASIS BOMBERS EQUAL TO ARGOS

Winnipeg Team Averages 192 Pounds Against 193 for Argonauts

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 27 — (CP)—On a poundage basis, Winnipeg Blue Bombers will give up little to Toronto Argonauts in the Dominion football final Saturday and — if players were evaluated like steers — that would make the 5-1 odds quoted against the western champions seem an overlay.

The Bombers average 192 pounds, according to figures released from their Grey Cup campaign headquarters at Hamilton. That figure is just a pound less than the over-all Argo average of 193 pounds and bears out coach Jack West's assertion that this is a huskier team than either of the Bomber squads Argos drubbed in the last two east-west classics.

The slight Argo weight advantage extends to the starting 12s of both teams, with the Dominion champions topping the Bombers by 197-195 pounds on the average.

The Argos look slightly better statistically in a comparison of the scoring totals over the season. Conceding that each faced different opposition, the Scullers scored 140 points while giving up 122 in the 12 games of the regular Big Four league schedule and Bombers scored 83 points in eight Western Canada league games, the same number that was scored on them.

The Argo scoring average here works out to 11.7 points a game against 10.4 for the Bombers while Argos were scored on an average of 10.2 points a game and the Bombers 10.4.

Even more significant on the past performance charts, however, are the records of the two teams against each other. Although both teams undoubtedly have improved, the two pre-season exhibition games that Argos won 16-9 and 11-0, probably mean more than last season's 28-6 beating Argos handed Winnipeg.

The Bombers planned to hold their last practice today at Hamilton, visiting Niagara Falls Friday and coming to Toronto a few hours before game time at Varsity Stadium Saturday. Coach Tedder Morris, who put his team through an afternoon workout yesterday, said there would be evening practices tonight and Friday.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By DOUG GREEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Nov. 27 — (CP) — More than one western sports writer still is bemoaning the disallowance by the Western Interprovincial Football Union at Calgary Stampeders' protest over the second game of their western championship final against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Tom (Calgary Albertan) Moore's column on the subject might as well be draped with crepe. As it is, he's "turned the rules" and headed it with a black-bordered inscription reading:

"R.I.P. Western Interprovincial Football Union." Below is the melancholy proverb, "Much law but little justice."

"Undertaker" Moore feels that the Union's disallowance of Stampeders' protest "wrote an obituary for the league."

"There has been a growing conviction among many Calgary football fans that Calgary and Regina are a couple of gridiron suckers graciously permitted by Winnipeg to spend money rounding out a circuit that will give to the western senior title some sort of official status when it is ultimately either purchased or stolen by Winnipeg," he says.

"Too often has the season wound up with Bombers not only holding the crown — which no one would begrudge them in fair competition — but with an aroma akin to that produced by rotting turnips hanging over the final."

"This year is no exception."

Hec (Calgary Herald) MacLean has added his voice to the dirge:

"To say that the Western Conference is in a rut is an understatement. Regina scraped the bottom of the barrel this year only to be eliminated by Calgary, while Stampeders were knocked out by Winnipeg Blue Bombers on what the foothills entry feels was a raw deal by referees."

Hec continued:

"In the spring of this year they were talking about leaving Winnipeg out in the cold and hooking Regina and Calgary in a league with Alberta and Saskatchewan Universities. Exhibition games indicated that the college boys weren't in the same class as the seniors, but we'll bet there is some serious discussion about a 'new deal' this winter."

"Every year since 1935—except 1936 — Regina and Calgary have just been practice dummies for Bombers. The latter club has gone east to take the gravy and left the other two clubs behind to console title-hungry fans."

Steve Wochy Is Proving Jet in Rockets Lineup

Philadelphia, Pa.—Those in the know in hockey will tell you that Steve Wochy was one of the most sought-after young stars in professional circles just before the training camp sessions swung into action this season.

He landed in a Philadelphia Rockets uniform, turned in a hat trick (against Washington Lions) in his second game on home ice and soon emerged as one of the real scoring stars of the team.

In his first 15 games, he had collected 11 goals and had assisted on five others to accumulate a grand total of 16 points, a little better than a point-a-game. This has endeared him to Philadelphia's hockey fans who are quick to point out that, as the season progresses and Wochy really gets rolling, he'll most likely wind up with some record or other for his season's take in goals and points.

A husky right winger standing five feet nine and weighing 165, Steve is a fast skater and wields a sharp stick when he gets in for a shot at the nets. What's more, he has Johnny Mahaffy, a very clever ex-Buffalo Bison and 9th high scorer in the league last season, as his centreman.

As a member of the fast-skating Indianapolis Caps in 1946-47, Steve played in 56 games, scored 21 assists and figured in the making of 24 other tallies for a season's total of 45 points. He spent only four minutes in the penalty box all season. He was one of the outstanding players on a club that included such top-notch scoring aces as Cliff Simpson and Les Douglas.

Steve broke in as a pro with Detroit Red Wings. He played 49 games in the National League, followed by six in the playoffs in 1944-45. The following season he was with Indianapolis and then Omaha in the United States League. Recalled by Indianapolis last season, he was soon doing some fancy shooting.

Christened with the almost unpronounceable name of Stefan Wojciechowski, Steve became a real favorite with sportswriters, copy readers and linotype operators — not to mention radio sportscasters when he shortened his name to Steve Wochy.

Steve was born on Christmas Day in 1922. He played with Port Arthur West Ends for three years as a junior; with Port Arthur Bearcats for one year as a senior and another season with St. Catharine's seniors before he joined pro ranks.

He is married and the daddy of a young son, Stefan Gregory. His home is in Fort William, Ontario.

Two Teams End Three-Game Losing Streaks

(By The Associated Press)

Both St. Paul and Dallas ended three-game losing streaks in the United States Hockey League last night, the Saints earning a 4-3 win over a stubborn Kansas City team and the Texans beating Tulsa Oilers 7-3.

Oilers' defenceman Harry Dick got five penalties in last night's game and Texas took advantage of the 10 minutes he spent in the penalty box to unleash scoring spurts.

In the game at Kansas City, the St. Paul attack was led by Cino Rozzini who got two goals, including the winner.

Dallas and Tulsa will meet at Tulsa again tonight, and Omaha will play at St. Paul in the league's other game.

Chicago Black Hawks Down But Definitely Are Not Out In N.H.L. Race, Defeat Bruins

Gaye Stewart Scores Two Goals in Five to Two Victory

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Chicago Black Hawks may be down but they're definitely not out.

Hawks still have a long way to go before they can be rated as a "contender" in the National Hockey League race but they certainly aren't the door-mats they were in the early stages of the season when they dropped seven games in a row.

To prove the point, Hawks took a fall last night out of Boston Bruins at Chicago in the circuit's only scheduled game. Hawks won 5-3, building up a big lead and then coasting through to victory. The loss left Bruins tied for second place with Toronto Maple Leafs with 18 points, one behind the leading Detroit Red Wings.

The victory meant to change from the cellar position for Hawks. It boosted their point total to nine, three away from New York Rangers.

Hawks nosed out in front of Bruins in the first period last night on two goals by Gaye Stewart as opposed to one supplied Bruins by Joe Carveth. Then they went to town in the second period for three scores — by Roy Conacher, Alex Kaleta and Johnny Gee. Bruins rallied for goals by Carveth and Ed Harrison in the last period.

Although the game failed to change the standing, there could be a reshuffling of the teams from tonight's play involving Maple Leafs against Montreal Canadiens and Bruins at Detroit against Red Wings. Any shift would involve Wings, Bruins or Leafs since Canadiens, in fourth place, are too far away to displace any of the top three clubs with a single victory.

Canadiens received good news yesterday when goalie Bill Durnan, injured in last Saturday night's game against Rangers, turned out for practice himself ready to go between the posts against Leafs tonight. Jerry McNeil of the amateur Montreal Royals has subbed for Durnan since he was put out of action with a skate-gashed forehead.

BOYS CAME TO SCHOOL IN GIRLISH GARMENTS

Byron, Ill., Nov. 27 — (AP) — Everybody looked twice at a 'new look' in women's wearables.

The reason for the amazement was that boys were wearing girlish garments.

Boy students came to Byron high school in print dresses, skirts and sweaters. The lads explained it was a simple and direct retaliation against the girls' habit of wearing jeans.

Principal E. J. Haire, taking the turnabout calmly, said he did not care what any of the 125 pupils wear "as long as they study."

You Have to be Rugged — Marlboro seniors don't fool around in practice, as witness above. Preparing for Friday's visit of Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen, the Marlies whipped through a tough session in which speedy Ike Hilderbrand, the upside-down gent, attempted to beat his teammates, defencemen Harry Psutka (2) and Dean McBride (4).

Sports Shorts from Britain

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 27 — (CP) — Soccer spectators have found it does not pay to indulge in hooliganism at games in Britain.

The Football Association, controlling body of the game in this country, clamped down on the Romford club in the Isthmian League and ruled its ground must be closed for a two-week period "as a result of a misconduct by spectators."

Newspapers applauded the F. A.'s decision. The London Star said editorially the F. A. was "wise" and that "crowd rowdies have been far too much in evidence" at games this year.

"Spectators who behave like hysterical children ought surely to stay away," it added.

The Oxford-Cambridge boat race has been arranged for Wednesday, March 24, next year with the start provisionally set for shortly after noon.

An official said it was hoped the Home Office could regard the choice of a mid-week date as a special case because it was "being rowed in the morning" and that, anyway, the race is an annual event.

Don Welsh, captain of Charlton Athletic's cup-winning football team last year, has been appointed manager of Brighton in the third division, southern section of the English League. Welsh was a big help in Charlton's promotion from third to first division football in two seasons.

Football fans at Fishponds, who regularly go to the public library to scan action pictures of big-time footballers in various newspapers are perturbed. All photographs are covered by a network of rubber-stamp marks.

But a library official cleared the mystery. "We found that schoolboys were cutting every football picture from the papers so we have started to stamp them out before the papers are put on the reading stands."

One reader pointed out this still deprived fans of their photographs, but the officials had an answer ready: "They can still read what's on the back, can't they?"

Bishop Bernard Heywood of Watford, Hertfordshire, has his own ideas about "horizontal heavyweights."

"I saw an account of a prize fight in which the loser got £10,000 ($40,000)," he said. "I could have done that — all you have to do is lie down."

He described the manner in which money was distributed in Britain as "most peculiar."

Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 27 — (CP) — Out of football's dusty archives comes a tale of one of the gridiron's strangest plays — a kind of jet-propelled blocked kick by a halfback who went over, not through, the line of scrimmage ... It happened in 1933 and the fellow who did it was a 148-pound backfielder named Gil Lefebvre ... Playing for Cincinnati Reds of the National Professional League, Lefebvre had heard football beginners wonder why teams did not try to block kicks, particularly on the point after touchdown, by having one lineman stand on the shoulders of another.

Acrobatics

An expert acrobat, the Cincinnati half decided to try a variation of that theme ... he hooked up with Les Kaywood, a 230-pound guard, and worked out a routine whereby Kaywood would stand with his back to the line, hands cupped just below the waist ... Lefebvre ran forward as the ball was snapped and sprang from Kaywood's hands into the air in an attempt to knock down the kick.

Human Projectile

Well, the "human projectile" play worked in practice, so the pair tried it in a game, and presto — one blocked kick ... the next time the infuriated opposition designated a lineman to crash into Kaywood, an easy target with his back to the play ... but the two worked out a wrinkle to offset that defence ... two players were assigned to guard Kaywood and leave him free to carry out his duties of launching Lefebvre.

Results

As the story is related by Wilbur (N. Y. Sun) Wood, the projectile play, probably ultimately discarded because of the need for split-second timing, worked three times during the season, one of the successful blocks making the difference between a victory and a tie ... On that basis, it's difficult to figure why the play was dropped ... Maybe the other teams started hiring the man on the flying trapeze to swing from the goalposts and bat down any punts that came his way.

Baz Bastien Sensational in Hornets' Win

(By The Canadian Press)

At Pittsburgh last night Baz Bastien was nothing short of sensational as Hornets edged Indianapolis Capitals 2-1. A goal by Peanuts O'Flaherty gave the Wasps the decision, after Sloan of Hornets and Podolosky of Caps had each scored once.

In American Hockey League other games staged last night, Springfield beat Philadelphia 3-2 and Cleveland downed Buffalo 6-3.

Harry Frost, who first saw the light of day in the hamlet of Deer Lake Ont., was the hero for Indians as he scored with less than five minutes to play. Other Springfield markers were picked up by Bob Thorpe and Keith Allen, Phil Hergesheimer scored both Rocket goals.

Buffalo, by virtue of their setback, drop five points back of the league-leading Hornets. Barons goal-getters were Joe Cooper, Roy Kelly, Jack Lavoie, Fred Thurier, Bob Solinger and Johnny Holota. Jerry Brown bulged the twine twice for Bisons with Tod Campeau slamming home one goal.

The Woodland Caribou, neither as wary nor as swift in avoiding danger as the White-Tailed Deer, falls an easy prey to hunters, largely through its own sense of curiosity. Although completely protected by law in Canada, it is in perhaps more imminent danger of extermination than any other of our big-game animals. Only through the strict observance of conservation principles will this animal survive. The success of conservation measures depends on informed public opinion. HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The lost weak end in every deal is found in the final contract. Good bridge rules tell your pair where to stop and go. Confidence in each other will do the rest.

Look at our pair of hands shown here:

My south hand passed. It should have opened with a bid of three spades. But in an uncontrollable mood to discover who has what kind of cards needed by me, I passed.

Partner in the north opened with a bid of three clubs. Such a bid shows a definite type of suit in a definite type of hand. Players who pay no heed to such things can start saving unused fats.

In answer to my partner's opening of three clubs, out of me came a bid of four no-trump. From a partner who has passed a chance to open, such a response is like a bolt out of the blue. You can see why.

A three club opening shows a solid suit of exactly seven cards. With these cards are not as much as a high card elsewhere. Such an opener must have exactly six losing tricks in the three other suits.

Four no-trump is the ace and king requesting convention. It is employed only when a player desires to reach a slam. And to make a slam a pair must be able to take at least 12 tricks between them.

Partner said he could take seven clubs and nothing else. To make a slam, therefore, my hand contains stuff sure of taking five tricks outside of clubs. Quite a promise for a non-opener.

Partner took me at my word. He read me for a club entry. Also a long suit and a void or singleton. His reply was five hearts; Kibitzer convention that shows one ace and one king.

His king and ace must be in clubs. This told me we were missing the spade king. My bid was six spades. Which looks like a lawdown. But not so fast. Lemmee tell you what happened.

Gotham's Gaiety Will be Restrained in 1948 Festival

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 27 —(CP)— Plans for celebration of New York's golden anniversary next year have been shorn of glamor.

No "world-of-tomorrow" moving sidewalk will undulate up Park Avenue to transport myriads of sightseers viewing exhibits commemorating the 50th anniversary of the merging of the five boroughs comprising New York.

They've even toned down the name of the celebration, changing it from "jubilee" to "anniversary." The Oxford Dictionary gives one definition of jubilee as "exultant joy," while anniversary is defined as the more prosaic "yearly return of a date."

"New York will have fine, dignified celebration in keeping with the times," said a member of a special mayor's committee which rejected the proposal to use 11 blocks of stylish Park Avenue to display some of the exhibits.

The rejection followed a two-week-long bowl of protests from business men, property owners and tenants of Park Avenue. However there was a section of the ctiy's 7,500,000 residents who wanted to undulate the avenue.

Newspapers took for-and-against stands. The staid Times described the project as "comprehensive and boldly conceived."

But the World-Telegram cracked editorially: "Let's be our age; let's not be silly."

Ambitious Scheme

It all started last month when Grover A. Whalen, chairman of Mayor William O'Dwyer's Julibee (Anniversary?) committee presented grandoise plans for a six-month-long exhibition including an international ballet and folk dance festival, an international air exposition and a world fashion show. All these are approved.

Whalen is an old hand at staging glamorous affairs. He was president of the 1939-40 World's Fair on Flushing Meadows—now the site of the United Nations Assembly — and all hands agreed that it was a super-super spectacle. But it was a financial flop.

The uproar began when Whalen issued his plans for 1948.

All is relatively quiet now with the $700,000 appropriation for the Park Avenue display chopped from the $1,836,000 proposed budget. Whalen hoped to show a profit of $1,913,250.

Meanwhile the international aspect of the celebration has been highlighted with the dispatch by the mayor, of a letter to King George VI, stamped with the first cachet marking the event.

The design of the stamp depicts the old Dutch Stadt-Huys where, 284 years ago, the act was passed that officially named the city in honor of the Duke of York.

Appropriately enough, the King — an ardent stamp collector —also held that title when he ascended the throne.

CHAPTER 8.

He took her out and rudely shoved her into the waiting taxi, telling the driver to "step on it." He had very little to say on the ride downtown. She sat huddled in her corner of the seat, still wondering what reason Henn had for phoning Webb, a man he so thoroughly disliked.

When they entered the lounge of Hennington's hotel, Webb's manner abruptly changed. He set his face in a smile. He doled out light chatter all the way up in the elevator, seemingly with the greatest of ease. He stood before the door of Hennington's apartment, and used the knocker.

There was no response, much to Webb's relief. Any one might have gone in since he left this place—ruined his plans.

He scowled, said to Kay, "This is queer. Where are the servants?"

"It's their night off," replied Kay, familiar with the running of Henn's elaborate establishment.

"Oh!" came from Webb, in pretended surprise.

He turned the knob and swung back the door.

Lights, which Webb had not dared to extinguish, still blazed brilliantly from an overhead electrolier. He stepped into the room, closing the door behind Kay.

He wheeled at her sudden scream. "Henn—oh, Henn—what is it?" she cried hysterically.

She started to kneel beside the body on the floor, but Webb yanked her back, exclaiming, "Kay! There's been—a—a—it looks like murder!"

She recoiled against him, sick and faint. She mumbled horror-stricken. "Quick! We must do something!'

He seemed rooted to the spot. He asked, "Who could have done —"

"Look! That paper—that envelope beside him!" she cried.

The shaking Webb managed to lean down, snatch up the envelope and give it to her. Together, they read the inscription.

"It's—it's addressed to me!" Kay gasped.

"Looks as if he might have committed suicide—written you a last note."

She did not reply. Her unsteady fingers were unfolding the letter.

Webb pretended to read it with her over her shoulder.

Swiftly it flashed through Kay's mind what had happened. She was sick with fear, with unbelief. Chuck?

Webb further corroborated her terrible conviction by saying, "Chuck Nourse—he came here — they quarreled. Insane with jealousy—he must have killed him."

"Oh, we mustn't let this leak out—we must—we must save Chuck!" she exclaimed, pitiful in her extremity.

"We'll manage that," he agreed promptly. "I'll —call the police. We'll say we came here for cocktails and found Henn dead. You destroy the letter. No one will ever know—no one but you and I."

"Yes, yes," she sobed miserably, "Just you—and I."

Webb stepped gingerly around Blare's still form, picked up the telephone on the other side of the desk and called the police.

"We'll—we'll wait," he said stupidly to Kay, now huddled in a chair.

"Yes—we'll wait," she mumbled miserably through her tears.

He suddenly thought of something. He forced himself to kneel [illegible] dead man. With his handkerchief he wiped off the wrist where—earlier in the evening he had touched him. He got up, wiped off the telephone, the corner of the desk his fingers had just touched, the doorknob.

"Fingerprints," he whispered hoarsely. "Chuck—he might have used the phone—felt Henn's pulse. How frightful it all is!"

Kay sobbed louder.

He went to her, possessively patted her shoulder.

"There, there, my darling — don't take it so hard. The police will be here soon —we must shield Chuck."

He had called her his darling. It was not so much the words as the inflection. She cringed, felt afraid, like a trapped creature.

Then he seemed to realize that this was not the time to show his hand. He began pacing the room, furtively watching her out of the corner of a bloodshot eye. Even in his highly excited state he could realize how beautiful, how very desirable she was. Yes, she was worth going any length for.

The police arrived soon and began pelting them with questions. Kay carefully explained who she was, told of her engagement to Hennington Blare. They remembered her, had seen her pictures in the newspapers.

The police were considerate. They allowed Kay and Webb to go, evidently believing their story or having come here for cocktails and finding Blare dead. They were requested to remain within call. They might be questioned further within the next few days. To this both Kay and Webb readily ocquiesced.

"Anything to get away from this horrible room!" thought Webb.

"Anything to shield that certain other man—about whom the police must never know," was Kay's wildly excited mental prayer.

Webb led Kay away. He put her into a taxi, got in beside her, visibly relieved. Now he was safe, safe! He had been apprehensive about the police.

He laughed aloud, an uncontrollable, hollow laugh.

Kay flashed him a quick, penetrating glance. She had stopped crying.

"How can you—laugh?" she asked, cringing.

He tried desperately to think of a plausable excuse. He said, "Nerves, I suppose—after what we've just been through."

He rubbed the top of his egg-shaped, nearly bald head, avoiding her eyes.

She had nothing further to offer. She felt numb, incapable of motion. Finally, with a ragged pitch of desperation in her voice, she whispered to Webb, "He cwouldn't have done it—Chuck couldn't!"

Webb winced as if she had struck him. His nostrils diliated, his face became ugly with suppressed emotion.

"Don't be foolish, Kay—we found the—the evidence. What more do you want?" his voice was coarse.

She drew away from him into her side of the seat. What little courage she had had a few minutes before was ebbing rapidly.

Webb said finally, "Why not come home with me, dear? Mother might be able to comfort you."

"Thanks—no," she replied shortly. Even one of her mother's oldest and dearest friends would ask questions. She must be alone. She must decide what to do. Chuck—oh, Chuck!

"But you can't remain in that big house alone with servants at such a time as this, he insisted. "There will be so many details—arrangements. After all, you were Hennington's financee." He thought exultantly, "But you're no longer his—no longer!"

"Yes," came from her, on a sigh," I know. Aimee will attend to everything. I can't see any one—just now."

On arriving at her home, Webb turned her over to Sartin with elaborate orders, saw Aimee, gave her further orders.

Kay was incensed in spite of her bewilderment Webb seemed to take it for granted that she would allow this—that he was now her right-hand man. A thread of alarm shot through her numbness.

At last, she got rid of him at the entrance to her upstairs suite. He had insisted upon coming up with her and Aimee.

He said to Aimee, "See that she has hot coffee immediately. And don't leave her an instant. She's had a shock."

Aimee's sharp little black eyes snapped. For once she forgot her French, and said "Yes sir," in strong Irish accents. The man was acting as if he owned her mistress, and she knew how many times he had been put off by her, snubbed. The whole business of this night was peculiar.

Ignoring Aimee's presence, he said to Kay, "I'll be calling you, darling."

Kay looked up at him in dumb reproach. He bent to her, mistaking her silence for something far different. He swept her into his arms, kissed her full on the mouth before she sensed what he was about. He wheeled out of sight. She was his.

Furious, she wiped off his kiss with the back of her hand. She suddenly came alive, madly alive. She said to Aimee, "If that man ever comes here again—"

She hesitated, remembering the trrible secret that he and she would shar eternally. But did this give him license to possess her Merciful heaven! Her heart sank. Already, he had shown her.

"Never mind, Aimee—I'll have to see him the next time he calls. It's — a matter of business—and —and important."

"Yes, mademoiselle," came from the puzzled Aimee, "I'll see that Sartin brings up the coffee."

She left the room, determined to get Sartin's version of the night's unusual happenings.

Kay walked slowly across the white evlvet carpet, flung open a window, stepped out on the balcony. The scent of roses directly beneath her was too heady to be borne. She shivered, hopelessly turned back into the room.

Aimee hurried back to her mistress, her curiosity unsatisfied. Sartin could tell her little. So Aimee could only help Kay out of the clinging folds of the green gown, get her into a soft helliotrope negligee.

Sartin brought coffee and served it with elaborate concern, but Kay was scarcely conscious of his presence. She drank the hot liquid because it might give her courage for what she had to do. Then she sent both servants away and locked the door.

She closed the window blinds and sank into a chair. She pulled Chuck's letter from her girdle, where she had hastily hidden it. Yes, it was Chuck's handwriting.

A wave of nausea swept over her .For an instant, she was too ill to do what she had intended to do. She finally got hold of herself, drew the note from the envelope, holding it shakily before her blurred vision.

This note also was unmistagably in Chuck's handwriting. It was a peculiar bold type of writing, the type that only a man of strong character, of vital personality, would be capable of executing. No weakling, no common murderer would have such a style of penmanship. That Chuck was a criminal was unbelievable. Yet—the note had been found beside Henn's body! It was evidence that should threaten her love for Chuck Nourse. Yet it didn't. Even though she was furiosly trying to put herself into this state of mind, she couldn't.

She poured over the words he had written, the straightforward cinceerity of them Thesy broke her heart anew. She read them again, trying to blaze them on her memory.

"Darling:

It is because of my great love and respect for you that I implore you to reconsider the step you are about to take. Please think of the long years ahead, which might prove a heavier burden than your loveless heart could bear.

Not style but score is what counts in championship revolver shooting. Fifty of Ontario's top-flight police marksmen took part in the Ontario Police Revolver Championships, held in Fort York Armouries by the Toronto Police Rifle and Revolver Club yesterday. Four, whose styles varied more than that of women's skirts, are shown in action above. They are, left to right: R. Spencer of Toronto; Syd Hillard, O.P.P., Toronto; T. Matthews, Fort Erie, and W. Webb, Fort Erie.

Canadian Legion To Run Program Of Sport Events

(By The Canadian Press)

A province-wide winter sports and recreation program sponsored by Ontario command of the Canadian Legion is about to start, Legion officials announced yesterday. It includes hockey, basketball, and bowling.

The organization also issued these final results of its summer and fall sports program:

Toronto won the senior A softball crown and Cobourg took top honors in the B group. St. Thomas placed first in golf, while Chatham ousted Peterborough in a sudden-death game for the soccer title.

The sports program is supported by a committee of representatives of the executive and council of the Ontario command. District representatives include: W. King, Chatham; Russ MacLeod, Preston; Geo. Gimblett, Peterborough; Joseph Lesser, Sudbury, and H. J. Belland, New Liskeard.

Brooklyn, Dodgers hope, to be able to announce their 1948 manager before the close of the Major League baseball meetings Dec. 20, President Branch Rickey said at a press conference yesterday. Rickey said he has no meetings scheduled with either suspended Leo Durocher or Burt Shotton, who handled the Dodgers last summer.

Eric Green and Jimmy Adams, members of the British Ryder Cup team, defeated Frank Stranahan and Dick Chapman of the United States Walker Cup team 2 and 1, in an international exhibition golf match at Pinehurst, M.C., yesterday.

"Definitely interested" in a possible east-west junior football final, Secretary Harold Bailey of the Ontario Rugby Football Union said last night that further consideration will be given after the O.R.F.U. declares a champion.

The Canadian Greyhound Racing Association, championships, previously scheduled for Scarboro, near Toronto, Nov. 15 and 22, will not be held until next spring due to weather conditions, J. A. Rainthorpe, President said yesterday.

Now—She Doesn't Feel Tired The Way She Used To

...And WHAT a Difference In Her Figure and Pep!

The pepless, exhausted feeling, common to many women, is often due to low blood count. Lack of sufficient red corpuscles, resulting from iron deficiency, may be robbing your body of vital oxygen. And you must have plenty of oxygen to help explode your energy and give you "going power". Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with blood count up, most people regain that glorious feeling of health and energy that gets them out of the old rocking chair into the activities they need to help restore a youthful, fit appearance. Don't delay—ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills at once.

Largest out-of-town representation at yesterday's championships was from St. Catharines city police force. The St. Catharines team, Bern Hamnett, Bill Watson and Robert Wood, finished second to a Toronto Police Department squad in the team aggregation competition.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself with a satisfied expression, and ma said, Where ignorance is bliss, William, it's folly to be wise.

So they tell me, pop said, and ma said, You're a living, smoking proof of it, so keep right on blessfully smoking.

I will, thanks, pop said, and ma said, But still, perhaps I'd better tell you, just to keep my own conscious cleer. I cleened out your humidor this afternoon, she said.

A humidor isn't supposed to be serviced except by its lord and master, but thanks just a same, pop said, and ma said, I used soap and water.

You used what, for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, Well naturelly I didn't notice there were cigars inside until after I'd thrown the soapy water in. Of course, I dried them off the best I could, but I'm afraid the soap couldn't of improved their flavor, she said.

It hasn't seemed to of affected them in the slightest, pop said. And he blew a smoke ring, and ma said, Now William, you're just saying that for the benefit of your own ego because I cawt you smoking a soapy cigar without even noticing the difference.

Not at all, my dear, I'm just saying it because there hasn't been a cigar in that humidor for a munth, pop said, and ma said, William Potts I think you're just awful. I was looking for a personel example of the power of suggestion over the imagination, to report at the next meeting of the litterary chapter of the Dawters of Cleopatters, and if you knew better all the time, I dont think it was very nice of you not to say so, she said.

And she made him take her to a horsey Western so she could imagine it was a sentimental Eastern.

TIES FOR FIRST SECOND, THIRD PLACE BROKEN

Windsor Spitfires Jump to Top Spot by Beating Young Rangers

(By The Canadian Press)

Ties for first, second and third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop were blasted apart last night in a four-game scramble.

Windsor Spitfires slipped easily out of their top spot tie with Oshawa Generals by breezing to a 9-1 triumph over Toronto Young Rangers in Toronto, leaving Rangers without a victory or tie after 11 starts.

Most critical Junior A game of the night was the Toronto Marlboro-Stratford Indian clash at Stratford, where a 32 overtime victor yfor Marlboros split what was formerly a second-place tie and put Marlboros in number three place. Indians moved into a fourth-position tie with Barrie, the Flyers having triumphed 8-4 over St. Catharines Teepees in a home game In the remaining Junior tilt, Galt Rockets scored 5-2 over Toronto St. Michael's Majors.

The sole Senior A contest of the night saw Stratford Indians come from behind to stave off Hamilton Pats for a 4-4 tie which put them in fourth position.

The Windsor-Young Rangers fracus opened a double-bill at Maple Leaf Gardens with an uncontested scoring spree by Spitfires that faltered only when Young Rangers squeezed in a single goal in the third period by Doug Ashbee. The score then read 6-1 and Spits went on to rin-gup another three tallies. Jimmy Hay and Gord Haldy rammed home two goals apiece for the visitors, while Jim Uniac, Max Quackenbush, Jack Taylor, Doug McKay and Bert Giesbrecht took care of the rest.

Rough and Tumble

Kroehlers and Marlboros scrapped their way into overtime through a rough and tumble contest that featured 17 penalties, including six majors. Stratford started the scoring with a single tally by Daniels in the first frame and another by Armstrong in the second. Marlboros hit back and tied it up with goals by Ford and Speers, and that's the way things stayed until Timgren wrapped it up for Marlboros in overtime.

The Flyers-Teepees fixture was a 3-3 tie at the end of the first period. Red Favero and Gill St. Pierre snapped the knot in the second and Barrie went on to ring the bell three more times in the final frame as against St. Catharines' single additional tally. Jim Maxwell was tops for Teepees with two goals and Favero and Paul Meger led the Flyers" attack with two apiece.

In the nightcap Hyle Gibson started the Galt ball rolling in the first frame and St. Mikes came back strongly in the second to score twice with Ray Barry and Biran McAllister taking the honors. In the final, Norm Wbesier, Pete Tkachuk and Wiggie Wylie notched three counters to salt the game away for Rockets.

The night's most startling display was at Hamilton, where Stratford Indians of the Senior circuit scored three goals within 45 seconds of the final frame after Pats had tallied three times. Eady ,Zuke and Walsh accomplished the come-back trick for Stratford. Hamilton made it 4-3 with a goal by Barlow, but Indians evened it up again on the strength of a shot by Long and overtime play was scoreless.

Tonight's card shows Oshawa at Galt in the Junior "A" loop with no games scheduled in the Senior League.

U.S. Suffering Headache From Canadian Plan

By CHARLES MOLONY

Washington, Nov. 27 — (AP) — The United States government which owns more than 60 per cent of the world's gold and is worrying about the prospect of getting more, is suffering an additional headache from a Canadian plan to encourage gold production.

Treasury Secretary Snyder yesterday told a press conference that the United States is "discussing" the scheme with Canadian officials, apparently trying to get it dropped or at least to keep the extra gold out of the United States.

The plan, to come before the Canadian parliament shortly calls for a bonus of $7 an ounce to Canadian gold-mining concerns for gold mined over and above their normal production. Canada figures on using the gold to help pay its trade debt to the United States.

Already, gold is pouring into the United States from various parts of the world at a rate of more than $2,000,000,000 a year, steadily swelling the huge money supply, which the government concedes is a major factor in present inflation and high prices.

Officials see no signs that the inflow will let up during the next year or two and Snyder said the treasury is considering action to keep it from adding further to the money supply if inflation reaches an "emergency" stage.

Not Change Value

He emphasized that the treasury is "not even considering" changing the gold value of the dollar, which has been $35 an ounce since 1934. That is the standard price the United States pays for foreign gold, and it continues to buy foreign gold partly because if it quit, the worth of the present $22,500,000,000 United States dollar pile might be shaken.

Canada does not contemplate selling gold outside its borders at more than $35 an ounce, although it plans to subsidize its miners with a bonus of $7 an ounce for extra production, making the price paid then $42 an ounce.

At Ottawa, finance department officials recalled that Finance Minister Abbott in announcing the plan to help boost gold production, said administrative details had to be completed, including obligations under the international monetary fund. Additional details would not be made known until they are placed before parliament, opening Dec. 5.

While the United States appears to think that the $7 subsidy would greatly increase Canadian production, big Canadian mining companies do not share the same view.

The companies arranged to meet Mr. Abbott last week to impress on him that $7 an ounce would not be adequate to spur production. The meeting, however, was postponed until next Friday.

Any move by the United States to stop buying gold from Canada would be unprecedented.

Had Weak, Nervous Stomach Limbs, Back Pained Badly

"Got Bad Headaches, Had No Energy to do My Work," Says This Woman; Tells of Grand Relief After Using Syntona Herbal Compound.

To persons who suffer from stomach disorders, constipation, nervous irritability, fatigued run-down feeling or aches and pains throughout the body, this message will be of special interest. It is typical of men and women who have found prompt, effective relief by using Syntona Herbal Compound and comes from Mrs. Eleanor Lyons, 405 King Street East, Hamilton, Ontario.

"I suffered from a weak, nervous stomach for several years and my entire system had become run-down," said Mrs. Lyons. "Gas, bloating, indigestion and sour acid risings after my meals was almost a daily occurrence for years. I got bad headaches and my back and limbs pained very badly. By the end of many days my nerves would be so on edge I couldn't sleep, and I constantly felt fatigued and worn-out and had no energy to do my work.

"After trying everything I knew of without getting any benefit, I heard about Syntona, so I got some and began using it. From the very first bottle my stomach felt more settled and I could eat better. As I continued taking it, more and more I could feel the benefits that I was getting. Now I eat all my meals without any discomfort afterward, my nerves are calmed down so I enjoy sound, restful sleep, and the aches and pains are relieved for the first time in years. As a result I feel more energetic and built-up and am able to do my work without tiring as I did before."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

Two Men Perish At Millbrook As Cottage Burns

Johnson Fair, Age 84 and Transient, 56, Are Victims

Peterborough, Nov. 28 — (CP) — Johnson Fair, 84, and Reuben Todd, a 56-year-old transient, perished early today in the flaming ruins of Mr. Fair's one-storey frame house at Millbrook village, 17 miles from here.

Mr. Fair lived alone and it is believed the second body was that of a transient who had spent the night there. The bodies were found in the ruins by Provincial Constable Jack Perry.

The fire, of undetermined origin, was first noticed at 5:15 a.m. by Walter Challice, who lives across the creek from the dwelling. He phoned the telephone operator who sounded the village alarm and called members of the volunteer fire brigade.

When the fire truck reached the scene, the cottage was in inferno of smoke and flames. Water was pumped from the creek, but it was impossible to save anything.

No inquest will be held.

EASE HYDRO BAN ON SHOPS UNTIL CHRISTMAS DAY

Merchants Allowed 100-Watt Lamp in Each Show Window Effective Dec. 1st.

Toronto, Nov. 28. (CP)— A partial relaxation of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission's ban on display-window lighting was announced late yesterday, effective Dec. 1-Dec. 25.

During that period the Commission will permit one 100-watt bulb for each self-contained show window facing the street from 4 p.m., to closing time daily "but not later than 9 p.m."

These exemptions cover Southern and Northeastern Ontario. The Commission announcement added:

"Restrictions in the use of electricity in the Thunder Bay System (Lake Superior region) will apply only during the hours from 8 a.m., to 4 p.m. daily."

The Commission introduced province-wide restrictions on use of power for outdoor advertising and decorative purposes earlier this month.

The Commission emphasized that savings in the use of electricity still are "urgently" needed from all classes of consumers to reduce extensive power cuts still being imposed on industry.

It said the exemptions are being made "to provide a small measure of relief" for merchants. The Retail Merchants Association has given an undertaking that all merchants will cut their interior lighting by an amount equivalent to or greater than that permitted under the exemption.

The Association has agreed that if the exemptions result in an increase in the amount of electricity used by merchants, the exemptions will be withdrawn.

Police Sergeant Is Exonerated In Dog Shooting

Windsor, Nov. 28 — (CP) — The case of Butch, the brown-spotted mongrel collie which was shot dead when he snapped at Police Sgt. Arthur Irwin Oct. 28, was officially closed today.

The Windsor Police Commission was unanimous in exonerating Sgt. Irwin in connection with the incident which set off a storm of pro and con public opinion in Windsor.

Previously, on hearing evidence, Mayor Arthur J. Reaume and other members of the police commission had agreed there was no reason to shoot the dog. But after hearing several couples testify that the dog was a nuisance and that he made a habit of running out at people passing in the street, the commission decided Sgt. Irwin might have been doing the right thing.

Mrs. Andrew Gardner said she had been afraid to pass the home of Russell Rousseau, the dog's owner, before Butch was shot.

"One night after midnight when I was returning alone from a show the dog ran at me and I was afraid to pass," she said. "I stayed down the street for half an hour until a man came along and escorted me past the animal."

Mrs. Gardner said her 72-year-old father was attacked on two occasions by Butch.

Anthony Pieber said he saw Sgt. Irwin shoot the dog. He backed up the officer's testimony that the dog first made a lunge at the sergeant, then attacked a second time when Sgt. Irwin kicked at it.

Mrs. Gardner and Pieber's wife agreed that Sgt. Irwin should be commended for shooting the dog.

Halifax Doctor Causes Furore Over Bicentennial

Halifax, Nov. 28 — (CP) — A letter to the editor in which Dr. H. Benge Atlee, prominent Halifax surgeon and author, urged Haligonians to observe their 1949 bicentennial as "a year of humiliation" rather than one of "celebration and self-gratulation" has brought a stinging reply from former Mayor Allan M. Butler who charged that the doctor "has sat in the stands" while civic leaders have "made our hits, runs and errors."

The doctor's letter followed the resignation of Mr. Butler from his $4,000 a year job as secretary-manager of the celebration. Mr. Butler, a chartered accountant who earlier had estimated the pageantry of the planned bicentennial summer would cost $250,000, said he quit because his committee had failed to grant him money and "citizen control."

Dr. Atlee suggested the money might be used to improve a college campus, clear slums, build a public library or a school auditorium rather than to "entice a large number of naive suckers to come here to spend a lot of Canadian and American dollars."

He suggested that Haligonians in 1949 "turn away finally from the sinful civic living that has blackened our faces these two centuries and really do something worth celebrating."

The Halifax Mail commented:

"The $64 question, however, is whether to mark the occasion in an atmosphere of midways and carnivals or by constructing a memorial library, civic auditorium, or some other useful addition to the city which would stand as a lasting monument . . . For our money, we favor the latter course."

Prefrontal Brain Operation Advocated For 'Fear of Pain Greater Than Pain'

Chicago, Nov. 28 —(AP)— A prefrontal lobotomy brain operation to relieve a "fear of pain greater than the pain" itself was advocated today by two renowned neuro-surgeons for persons suffering from painful incurable diseases such as advanced cancer.

The operation, employed for several years in mental disorders characterized by excessive anxiety, severs communication between the frontal brain lobes and the underlying thalamus.

Writing in the journal of the American Medical Association, Drs. Walter Freeman and James W. Watts of Washington, who have performed more than 400 prefrontal lobotomies, said: "It would seem . . . the emotion component, the consciousness of the (affected) part and the anticipation of the future disability, contributes to the distress of the patient.

"In many cases the attitude of the patient toward his disease is more disabling than the disease itself; the fear of pain, greater than the pain.

"'With prefrontal lobotomy the physician now has it in his power to relieve the fear, the anticipation, and to render the illness more tolerable to the patient. Since this can be done without significant impairment of the intellectual capacity, it would seem that prefrontal lobotomy might be a very considerable boon to the large number of patients whose life will not be long but will, nevertheless, be made miserable by suffering."

The prefrontal lobes are the brain centres of foresight and insight that distinguish man from lower animals. The thalamus or "emotional" brain tissue governs a person's unconscious and automatic functions.

DISABLED TANKER BEING TOWED IN BY RESCUE SHIPS

Left Helpless in Gale Due to Engine Trouble

Kingsville, Ont., Nov. 28 — Just one hour before her engines would have stopped through boiler trouble and fuel shortage leaving her helpless in a gale of wind and rough seas, the small Canadian tanker Bruce Hudson with a crew of 15 men was taken in tow early today east of Point Pelee in Lake Erie.

Hours after her first distress calls cracked through the storm the disabled vessel was located by the freighter Imperial Midland and the American tanker Rocket, which had scoured the heavy seas with their searchlights in the darkness. The rescue tug Atomic from Amherstburg was also at the scene.

It was after midnight when word came that the rescue vessels had succeeded in placing a tow - line aboard the stricken tanker, then believed to be in dangerous proximity to the shoals of the Canadian shoreline.

The Hudson, which sent out repeated messages during the evening, had reported she was unable to make port without assistance. En route from Port Stanley to Toledo she first called for aid when 40 miles east of Detroit and subsequently she was driven miles eastward in the blizzard.

Her distress signals were first heard by an American Coast Guard station near Chicago and subsequently other U. S. stations, Canadian Department of Transport receivers and amateur wireless operators were tuned in on her calls for aid.

The Imperial Midland and the Rocket were the nearest vessels and they changed course to search for the Hudson. Which of these vessels had accomplished the difficult feat of attaching a towline — the Hudson herself had no towline — was not immediately learned. Once she had been secured however, it was expected the Hudson would be turned over to the tug Atomic's tow.

The Hudson had been in trouble the day previously but managed to make Port Stanley where temporary repairs were affected, after which she started out for Toledo. She is one of the two small tankers owned by the Lloyd Tankers Ltd., of Toronto.

Lorain, O., Nov. 28 (AP).—The crippled oil tanker Bruce Hudson was being towed toward shelter at Toledo, O. today by the American tanker Rocket following a rescue battle of several hours against heavy seas and a blinding snowstorm, shipyard officials reported.

The Rocket was hugging the shoreline of Lake Erie while making the 50-mile tow accompanied by the Imperial Midland. The two tankers were expected to arrive at Toledo between 2 and 3 p.m. E.S.T. today.

No injuries were reported in the 15-man Hudson crew, and officials said the storm-tossed lake had settled to a slightly rolling surface, with high winds diminished to normal.

CREW OF CARGO SHIP FEARED LOST

Paris, Nov. 28 (Reuters)—All the crew of seven except one man of the 169-ton French cargo ship Roger Juliette were feared to have lost their lives after the ship ran aground today on a reef off Frontignan, southern France. It was thought one member was still alive because a man was reported to have been seen clinging to the mast by coast watchers who were unable to reach the ship because of huge waves whipped up by a strong gale.

Palestine Police Garrison Reinforced for Security While U.N. Decision Awaited

Jerusalem, Nov. 28 (Reuters)— The Palestine police garrison here was reinforced by about 100 men from outlying districts today as a security precaution while the Holy Land awaits news of the expected United Nations General Assembly verdict tonight on the Palestine partition plan, a semi-official source said.

Palestine Arab leaders received instructions from Arab headquarters in the Lebanon to travel there immediately the U.N. verdict is given, it was reported by informed Arab sources here.

Many of Palestine's estimated 650,000 Jews planned to hear the decision by radio.

Many flocked to the Wailing Wall in the city of Jerusalem to join a special prayer, led by the Chief Rabbi of Palestine, Dr. Isaac Herzog, that "the nations of the world will recognize the justice of the Jewish cause."

A few hours before the partition decision was expected, about 1,450 singing and cheering Jewish official "quota" immigrants reached Haifa from detention camps in Cyprus aboard the ferry ship Ocean Vigour.

Despite the importance of the U.N. verdict, it was not expected there would be any relaxation of strict observance of the Sabbath, starting tonight, to allow special editions of the Hebrew-language newspapers to be published.

The Extreme Orthodox Jews would not even be permitted to listen to the radio when the first star of the night appears in the sky over the Holy Land.

Predicts Vote for Partition

New York, Nov. 28 —(CP)— Dr. Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil, president of the United Nations Assembly, predicted in conversations with reporters today that partitioning of Palestine would be approved by a narrow margin in the Assembly vote expected later in the day.

He said his information indicates the "Soviet - American" plan to split the Holy Land into separate Jewish and Arab countries would win approval by a minimum of 31 to 15. He said the margin might be as much as 31 to 13.

A two-thirds majority of those present and voting is required for approval.

Dr. Aranha's prediction came as supporters of the partition plan were accused of using "pressure" tactics to influence the vote.

The charges were made on the Assembly floor by Pakistan, Cuba and Iraq — all opponents of the plan to split the Holy Land.

No individual countries were mentioned in the accusations, but Cuba and Iraq referred to some "great powers." Russia and the United States are the only big powers vigorously supporting partition.

Pakistan, Cuba and Iraq stood firm in opposition to the plan.

Fighting Breaks Out at Rally Held by Mosley

London, Nov. 28 (AP) —Three persons were summoned to appear in court today as the result of fighting which broke out in London's east end last night when Sir Oswald Mosley, prewar Fascist leader, held a Jew-baiting rally in the Bethnal Green district, where many Jews live.

Police were called to disperse demonstrators who flocked in from all directions as soon as Mosley began to speak.

Firemen with hoses stood ready to quell a riot as the milling crowd engaged in fist fights over an area of half a dozen blocks.

As Mosley spoke a sound truck circled the school and a voice from the loudspeaker shouted "we don't want Mosley in Britain."

Mosley told his audience, many of them women, that Jews enjoy special privileges in London. He asserted that "gangs of Jews" were permitted to drive about London in cars with the object of breaking up meetings of their political opponents.

SAYS POPE PREPARES IMPORTANT ENCYCLICAL

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Nov. 28 —(AP)— Reports circulated today at the Papal summer residence and in Vatican City that Pope Pius is engaged in preparing an important encyclical on world social conditions.

May Have Found Cause of Recent Fires in Planes

Washington, Nov. 28—(AP) — Lt.-Col. Henry T. Myers, president Truman's personal pilot, said tests have shown that recent fires aboard two Douglas DC-6 planes may have been caused by gasoline sucked into the cabin heating system from an overflowing tank in the wing.

All DC-6s, including the president's plane, "Independence," were grounded after the fires. A DC-6 operated by United Airlines crashed in flames near Bryce Canyon, Utah, on Oct. 24 with the loss of 52 aboard. An American airlines DC-6 made an emergency landing Nov. 11 at Gallup, N. M., after fire had broken out on the ship.

Myers said his information came from investigators for the Civil Aeronautics Administration, Douglas Aircraft and American Airlines. They have been making tests at the Douglas plant in Santa Monica, Calif., where Myers is taking the "Independence" today for a check-up.

Saving of Power 100,000 Kilowatts So Far Says Hydro

Toronto, Nov. 28 (CP) — Power restrictions and voluntary savings have resulted in an increase of 100,000 kilowatts a day in power available for industry in Ontario, M. J. McHenry of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission estimated today.

Mr. McHenry said the Commission was "shy 250,000 kilowatts on the average day" before the power restrictions went into effect, Nov. 10 and that he hoped further savings could be effected on a voluntary basis.

Primary demands during October totalled 2,169,734 kilowatts an increase of 3.5 per cent over October 1946, a Commission report revealed.

LABOR RETAINS EDINBURGH SEAT IN BY-ELECTION

U.K. Conservatives Hold Howdenshire

London, Nov. 28 (CP).—Retention of parliamentary seats by a Conservative candidate in Howdenshire, Yorkshire, and by a Labor candidate in Edinburgh East was announced today following tabulation of ballots at by-elections held yesterday in the two constituencies.

At Howdenshire, long a Conservative stronghold, G. W. Odey polled 23,344 votes for the major opposition party compared with 9,298 for the Labor candidate, Tom Neville, and 3,819 for the Liberal candidate, J. E. Wilson.

Odey's plurality of 14,046 votes compared with a plurality of 10,187 gained in the 1945 general election by C. W. Glossop, Conservative, whose resignation because of ill-health forced yesterday's by-election.

In the general election Glossop polled 21,348 votes against 11,161 for Neville and 5,669 for Wilson.

In Edinburgh East, which had been considered fairly safe for Labor, the Government Party candidate, T. Wheatley, polled 16,906 votes compared with 11,490 for D. Matthews, Liberal National and Conservative candidate; 3,379 for J. Junor, Liberal; and Mrs. Mary Dott, Scottish Nationalist, 1,682.

The Labor Party plurality in Edinburgh East thus was 5,416 compared with its plurality of 5,817 in the by-election in the same constituency in October 1945.

The by-election in East Edinburgh was made necessary by the appointment of G. R. Thompson to a judicial post. In the October, 1945, by-election, Thompson won 15,482 votes against 9,665 for Lt. T. G. D. Galbraith, his Conservative opponent.

Bandit's Bullet Grazes Lip Of Car Owner

Toronto, Nov. 28 —(CP)— Police today searched for two armed gunmen who robbed a grocery store, forced a motorist from his automobile, wounding him slightly with a pistol bullet when he attempted resistance, and made their escape in the stolen car in suburban York township last night.

James E. Kelly told police the two youthful gunmen entered his store at closing time, covered Mr. and Mrs. Kelly and a customer with their revolvers and emptied the till of approximately $70.

The motorist, William Leeds, said one of the bandits fired two shots, one of which grazed his lip, when he grappled with one of them as he was forced from the wheel of his car. Leeds told police he then stood in the middle of the road trying to block their escape, but the automobile sped past as the gunmen attempted to run him down.

The stolen car was recovered by police two hours later at a west-end Toronto intersection.

Red Influence in W. Germany Seen In Decline From Several Factors

By JAMES DEVLIN

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 28— (AP)— Western Germans appear reconciled to establishment of a western German state while hoping the country eventually will be united.

Creation of such a state has long been expected in the event the Allied Big Four fail to reach agreement at London on Germany's future.

German politicians—especially Communists—have been emphatic in demanding unity of all Germany, but other considerations rate high with a cross-section of Germans interviewed in the American zone and the Ruhr area in the British zone.

Fear of Russian participation in affairs of Western Germany, often openly expressed, appears to be a common denominator among average Germans of the west. It is a feeling which coincides with rising American and British popularity and the apparent waning of Communist influence in the western zones.

People from various walks of life gave this impression.

Much as they are interested in borders, they are more immediately concerned with the same problems that have plagued them for the last two years — food, clothing, housing, the revival of industry and reconstruction.

They hope, but with scant expectation, that the Big Four will give Germany unity under a German government to be chosen by a free election.

They would prefer to see western Germany get started as a going concern under such powers as were in agreement on policy.

They would worry later about the possibility of eastern Germany being included.

The seeming decline in Communist influence in western Germany appears to stem from a number of factors.

One is that German war prisoners returning from the east are generally bitter and outspoken against Russia — this in a country where word-of-mouth gossip and rumor spread quickly.

Another is that thousands of Germans from the Soviet zone, as officially announced by the British authorities, have fled from the Soviet zone to work in the Ruhr mines — obviously impressing the western Germans that conditions must be better on the western side of the border.

France Calls Up 80,000 Conscripts In Strike Crisis

15 Divisions to Meet Threat of Civil Strife

Paris, Nov. 28 (CP). — The French government today called an additional 80,000 conscript troops to the colors to help meet the emergency caused by a wave of strikers which slowly are strangling the country's economic life and informed quarters said the cabinet is considering mobilization of striking railway workers, dockers, miners and mill workers.

The cabinet call-up decision, reached in a session of more than four hours, brought to 15 divisions the total of military forces called up within a week to deal with the threat of civil strife arising from Communist-supported strikes involving 2,000,000 persons.

The decision followed an announcement that 66 police commissioners, each in charge of a district, were dismissed by the government. There was no official explanation. The Communist newspaper, L'Humanite, called it a "purge".

Premier Robert Schuman's new cabinet announced that the second half of the 1946 class of conscripts was being called into uniform. Half the class of 1947 was called up last week.

The Ministry of War refused to confirm a report that French troops on duty in occupied Germany were being brought back to Paris to reinforce local forces.

Mobilization of the railway men, dockers, miners and mill workers would mean the men thus called up for service would be under military law and liable to immediate proceedings against them if they refused to work. Special legislation would be necessary for such a measure.

Shuman is known to be afraid of letting the Communists gain control of the French police.

Proofs of Energy

Armed with a fresh vote of confidence, he met with his new cabinet under the chairmanship of President Vincent Auriol to consider means of fulfilling the promise he made to the Chamber of Deputies early this morning that "proofs of the government's energy" in combatting the ominous wave of strikes would be displayed before the day is ended.

His government, less than a week old, won a narrow victory in the Chamber at 4:15 a.m., the final count showing 322 for him and 186 against, with 83 abstentions. His own party, Mouvement Republicain Populaire, and the Socialists backed him, the Communists voted against him and Rightists abstained.

Informed sources said the cabinet would work on a plan by Schuman calling for some regulation of the right to strike, including secret votes by workers before issuance of a strike call.

Cost-of-Living Bonus

A decree in today's official journal called up for military service some groups of 20-year-olds hitherto exempt. Another decree gave the force of law to a government decision to have all workers in private industry paid a 1,500-Franc ($12) cost-of-living

Town in Orkneys Votes for Pubs, Rest Vote Dry

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 28 (CP)—The barometer often swings to "windy" in Scotland's Orkney Islands but yesterday Stromness went "wet" as well.

This was no meteorological reading—the citizens of the town of 2,364 population voted in favor of pubs and licences after 27 thirsty years.

It was a close fight—405 Orcadians ballotted "wet" against 328 teetotal ballots.

But elsewhere it was a "dry" day. At Kirkintilloch, Dumbarton (population 16,25.), 4,016 abstainers stayed of 3,106 others who had plumped for repeal—after 27 years.

Then at Kilsyth, Sterling (population 10,364), 3,133 of them obtained an even bigger majority over 1,833 "wets" after which they celebrated with tea and buns.

Look how the battle went in Kirkintilloch where 73.2 of the electorate splashed to the polls in a driving rain:

Eight hundred voted within the first hour. Leaders of the "dry" campaign were outside every booth taking names as people entered and dashing back and forth to headquarters for checking.

The "wets" were scared at the early success of their opposites and rushed 20 automobiles on to the road. Their loudspeaker truck tailed one used by the "drys" through town trying to counteract the propaganda it was broadcasting.

Three hours before the polls closed 200 "drys" formed themselves into a "commando" of canvassers and roped in electors who had not yet exercised their franchise.

The issue may be only a storm in a wisky glass to the rest of the world but in the Orkneys it will take more time than an Atlantic gale to blow itself out.

Definite Decrease In Wolf Death Rate Noted

A definite decrease in the wolf death rate of Hastings County is noted in 1947 from that of last year, according to statistics released today by County Treasurer Ross Bailey.

Forty-eight wolves have fallen victim to the guns of hunters and trappers thus far this year, as compared to seventy shot or trapped in 1946.

While considerable of the animals shot this year were despatched in the northern sections of the county, a large number were killed in Madoc, Huntingdon and Hungerford townships.

With but a month to go, and winter in the offing, Treasurer Bailey doubted that the number of wolves accounted for in 1946 would be equalled this year.

The county pays a straight bounty of $35 for each bona fide wolf pelt.

Atomic Science Saves More Lives Than Were Lost in Jap Blasts

Cecil Forbes Hanna of Walla Walla, Wash., said in the article that the lives have been saved by radioactive "tracers" used in medicine to combat various diseases and disorders.

Aspiring Candidates, Members Of Board of Education Heard By City Schools Associations

Aspiring candidates to the Board of Education, and present members were given an opportunity to speak at a meeting held on Thursday evening in the Collegiate library under the auspices of the combined Home and School Associations of the city. All speakers stressed their appreciation to the Associations for sponsoring a gathering of citizens who were interested in the educational progress achieved and in the future plans of the Board. Mrs. G. G. Wright, President of the Collegiate Association presided, and selected the speakers by drawing the names from an envelope.

Mr. Arthur Burke who appeared as an unsuccessful candidate last year and is again offering his services stated that he always felt the essential things in life were worth fighting for, and nothing is more essential than equipping our boys and girls for their life's work. Many new services will have to be provided with the expanding industries which are coming to Belleville. With many years of municipal training he pledged his co-operation with the rest of the Board.

Dr. Austin Walters felt that a meeting of this nature stimulated interest in educational matters and created an interest between teachers and parents. Dr. Walters is making his initial bid as a candidate, and stated he made no extravagant promises, but offered his time and talents. He felt it was necessary to interest ourselves is government if we were going to have the democracy we wanted. Education was the basis for good democracy, and he urged those present who, by their presence, showed that they were good citizens, to be even better by being sure that their neighbors got out to vote.

Appreciates Opportunity

Mr. Frank Creeggan who has filled a vacancy which occurred on the School Board, appreciated the opportunity this gave him to serve with the present Board. He stated that every member is working in the interest of the people. He advocated watching expenses when equipment was to be purchased, as these costs are much higher than in normal times. It was necessary to have happy and contented teachers for the best results. He thought the Board should spend the money at their disposal with discretion.

Mr. Harold Seldon is a candidate for re-election. When he appeared before a similar meeting two years ago he suggested that there was too much business being crowded into one meeting. This had been remedied and now there are three regular meetings a month. Secondly he noted the apparent lack of espirit de corps among the teachers in regard to the Board. The Board has now adopted regular impartial salary increases and accumulative sick leave which has tended to improve relations, and which gives the Board an improved standing with the Teachers' Federation. Some teachers had been forced out due to lack of suitable housing which was unfortunate, but altogether there was a higher level of understanding between the Board and their employees. While it was true that the Board of Education was partly responsible for the higher taxes, it must be remembered that the cost of coal and school supplies, repairs, other fixed expenses had gone up. Teachers also had to have higher salaries to pay the increased costs of food and clothing. However the Board had had no major expenditures for the year.

Traffic Supervised

Miss Josephine Tickell who is a candidate for re-election stated that while candidates for municipal office could give concrete evidence of their stewardship, a member of the School Board also serves a useful purpose, equally involved but they offer something more intangible, that cannot be so easily valued. Traffic supervision which had been inaugurated symbolized the training for life behavior, and created a respect for law and order.

The Board of Education is building bridges, metaphorically speaking, between teachers and trustees, and between management and labor. All need schools and adequate teachers to meet the problems which will confront their children. Lasting values make for ultimate satisfaction when you pay your taxes. There is a variety of personnel on the School Board with different viewpoints, but all questions receive full discussion. Two qualifications are necessary for a member, persons who are willing and able to give their time, and persons who are willing to face up to the questions that will arise.

Not a Candidate

Mr. Alex Nathan who is chairman of property and supply, gave an account of his own department, although he is not a candidate this year. Property for the erection of a new school had been surveyed, but at the present time the accommodation was adequate, due to new rooms having been added last year.

Mr. George Wishart who is Chairman of the Board is not a candidate but he felt a responsibility to give an account of the year's work. The two important facts were, 'What are the policies of the Board?' and 'How efficiently are these policies being carried out?' The policy is to help provide conditions under which there may develop a generation of young people who will become moral, useful and happy citizens. The teacher is the most important agency for setting the pattern of the developing boy and girl. We must pay enough money to get and hold teachers who are well-trained, interested, and can be respected by the students. "In this age when (I believe, falsely) one's success is judged by his money-making ability, children will not respect a member who cannot maintain a standard of living comparable to people of similar qualifications. We are trying to assist in the production of useful citizens by providing a wide variety of courses. In the Public Schools we have completed the household and shop departments; a Junior Commercial department, and a speech correction department. To be Chairman of the Board has been a rich and gratifying experience."

Gives Year's Report

Mr. Enos David was not up for re-election, but he gave a report of what had been accomplished. The Board was entrusted with maintaining certain standards of education, and this community must keep in line with other places of its size, and provide adequate salaries. But the Board must pay attention to the dollars and cents. With a staff of ninety and a total staff of one hundred and ten the pay roll was a big item. Mr. David felt the health services were inadequate, but so far the health unit has not materialized.

Question Period

The other candidates called were not present.

In the question period which followed it was brought out that soil erosion was taking place on the Collegiate campus, and the foundation of the old school was coming to the surface. The reason this had not been remedied was that a retaining wall along Church Street which would have to be built would cost about $15,000.

In answer to the question whether it was fair that a city the size of Belleville should have one man to act as Public School Inspector, Administrator of the Board, and Secretary-Treasurer it was stated that Mr. Dulmage had been hired as an assistant to Mr. Kells, which left Mr. Kells more freedom for Public School inspection. Also a re-definition of the duties of employees of the Board was being drafted.

Queried on Building

Queried about the building program, it was stated that a property on Yeomans Street had been obtained from the City Council with a view to a building in the future. As the city is expanding to the west and the DVA building projects are in this vicinity it was felt that this would be the logical location, since a new school will eventually have to be built. However the present accommodation is adequate, and as the Royal Commission is sitting at present, it was felt a new type of school would probably be necessary as a result of the findings of the committee, so that Belleville is fortunate that it has no immediate need of a new school.

Comparable salaries with other municipalities of a similar size were discussed, and it was felt that Belleville rates on an average with like places.

Some discussion arose regarding injuries received at schools which are now covered by insurance, and it was felt that this service should not be abused as it appears to be at present. Some understanding should be arrived at with parents and teachers cooperating.

The meeting was closed with the National Anthem.

Oxford, N. S., Nov. 28—(CP)—Mayor D. W. Wood of this Cumberland county town of 1,000 was the only official left today after he decided to accept resignations of the entire council.

Resignations resulted from criticism of council's having called in R. C. M. P. to police the town. A large proportion of citizens had signed a petition protesting the change. Council members said they felt such interference was unwarranted.

SECOND PAYMENT EASIER

Butte, Mont., Nov. 28 — (AP)—A woman handed the county treasurer 17 cents in paying property tax for the first half of the year on a small parcel of unimproved farm land.

Belleville, Suburban Planning Board Program Reviewed at Meeting

Work program of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has been progressing very well considering the many delays encountered in collecting detail from which to develop the over-all plan for the city and its suburban area.

This was revealed to members of the board at a meeting of the board held Thursday night at the city hall to review the work accomplished and to decide on future development. Town planning engineer C. A. Meadows, of the firm Meadows and Critoph, was present at the meeting and showed slides of general planning schemes in other cities.

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board came into being in February, 1946, when city council designated the firm Meadows and Critoph to draw up a long term plan for the city. Personnel of the planning board were appointed in August, the Board taking office in April of 1947. This board consisted of three members from Sidney township; three from Thurlow township and three from the city of Belleville. The planning Board officially took over the planning area upon motion from Belleville city council on July 7, 1947.

Duties of Board

Duties of the Planning Board as defined by the act are as follows:

1. The Planning Board shall investigate and survey the physical and social economic position in relation to the development of the Planning Area and to perform such other duties of a planning nature and they be referred to the Council without limiting generalities of the foregoing. And to:

(a) Prepare maps, depicting the technical information and other material necessary for the study, completion, and solution of problems or matters affecting the development of the Planning Area.

(b) To hold public meetings and to furnish information for the purpose of obtaining co-operation of the citizens of the planning area determining the solution of problems and matters affecting the development of the area.

(c) To consult with any local board under the jurisdiction of the Planning Area.

(d) To prepare a plan of the planning area and recommend it to the Council for adoption.

(e) To recommend from time to time to the Council the implimentation of any of the features of the initial plan.

After the completion of the plan and recommendation by the Planning Board it is then submitted to the Councils concerned.

After the plan is adopted by the municipality it is then submitted to the Minister at Queen's Park for his approval.

If this plan meets with the approval of the Minister, it then becomes the official Planning Area.

Regular Meetings Held

Regular meetings have been held by the board since April with business being dealt with which comes properly under their jurisdiction. The first step was to determine the amount of money which the Planning Board would have to expend. This was accomplished by determining the amount left in the city account to the credit of Meadows, Critoph and Company and requisitioning the two rural municipalities for an amount in proportion to the benefits they would receive. Under this arrangement Sidney will pay 25 per cent, Thurlow 25 per cent and Belleville 50 per cent.

Meadows, Critoph and Company were then asked for a program of work in which they would state specifically the amount of work which would be done, itemized in separate pieces and priced in that manner. This amount of work was to be covered by a written agreement embodying the program of work between the Planning Board and the firm of Meadows, Critoph and Company. The program of work for 1947 is as follows:

1. Commence the maps of the city of Belleville and suburban planning area.
2. The study maps to be made on strong paper and substantially bound—at least three sets.
3. Make draft of land used, zoning by-law, and suggested zoning maps.
4. Make draft of building by-law.
5. Make draft of conformity by-law.
6. Make draft of street improvement.
7. Make draft of car parking lay-out.

Total amount, $2,000.

A point has now been reached in the development that requires the board to submit the plans to the various municipalities for their advice and approval. This will be done at the next meeting of the various municipal bodies, and if plans are approved, details will be mailed to the public. When plans for zoning by-laws are approved by the local administrative bodies an application will be made to the Municipal Board for a hearing and final approval.

bonus every month. Strike leaders already have said this does not meet their demands for higher pay.

The number of strikers was estimated today at 2,000,000. The central council of the public service unions appeared headed for a split after four Communist-controlled unions were defeated in a motion to call a general strike of government workers. They were voted down by six other government workers unions. The policemen's union abstained on the ground it was forbidden to strike Economic Ministry Workers, General Administration Workers, State Employees and Postal and anyway.

The four defeated unions — Wire Communications Workers—voted to call a strike on their own.

Food was running low in the big central markets of Paris, the newsprint supply was dwindling swiftly and the government ordered all papers reduced to two pages daily.

Robert Lacoste, minister of industry, announced last night that if the coal strike continued there would be no electricity in Paris by Tuesday. Gas pressure already was low because of stoppages at gas works.

Ports and the merchant marine remained idle and most heavy industry was seriously crippled.

Following the address a question period followed. The speaker was thanked by Robbie Clarke.

President Don Williams presided at the meeting, Nick Nicholson was Sgt. at Arms, and Roy Wilcox, song leader. Jim Dunn of Ottawa was a guest of the Club.

Next Thursday, Gord. Henry, Regional Director of the Y's Men International will pay an official visit to the club.

[illegible] of Car Horns

"There's [illegible] blowing of horns of cars. [illegible] your horn," is the advice of [illegible] of the Ontario Department of Highways to impatient and unthinking [illegible] who misuse their automobile horns. He thinks that at least seventy-five per cent of this blowing is unnecessary and explains that the horn is meant as a [illegible] signal to be used in emergency cases at the driver's discretion. It is not meant as a substitute for good manners or common sense.

The official emphasizes that relying on the horn to clear a path is a dangerous and selfish practice and in particular he scores the motorist who, without checking speed, expects children to scatter out of the way at the sound of a horn. He believes this type of driving is a menace to public safety and should be dealt with harshly.

He also scores the use of the horn for purposes the inventor never intended it, as for instance, letting one's date know when he is waiting outside, showing annoyance when blocked in traffic, tooting at someone whose actions irk him, applauding a ball game, providing raucous accompaniment for a party and blasting a way through traffic.

Unnecessary use of the horn is likely to cause confusion to a pedestrian or other motorist. Anyone, driver or pedestrian, knows of instances when there is a whole congress of horns tooting and he would be a wise person to know what they are all blowing for; whether it is in a sense of irritation because someone is in some one else's way, or whether it is a motorist at considerabel distance from a crossing, blowing unnecessarily for a pedestrian who has plenty of time to reach the other side of the road. Of course there are needs for the horn, but not all the other causes listed above where there is no danger and no emergency.

Too much sound is not good for anyone, motorist or pedestrian or the people living along the street.

Horns are required on all motor vehicles and rightly so, but the Highways official feels that they are being used to the detriment of safe driving and that drivers should be using their heads more and automobile horns less.

Their Work Appreciated

Citizens of Belleville and this district will regret that Major G. Earle, commandant of the local corps of the Salvation Army, and Mrs. Earle will be leaving Belleville to reside in Oshawa in consequence of the Major's retirement on the completion of more than forty years' service in the Army in his native Newfoundland and in Canada. Major Earle and Mrs. Earle have in their stay of over two years here become vitally associated with the life of the city and have rendered in Belleville service of a nature known to every citizen from the long and familiar story of the work of the Army. There has been a long line of faithful men and women who under the banner of the Salvation Army, have served God and their fellowmen and have left an indelible impression upon the lives of thousands of the comunity and district. Major and Mrs. Earle belong to that faithful company who have served so well.

The organization they represent is one of the greatest agencies for the inspiration and redemption of men and women and the dedication of the lives of young and old to the true course of living. The self-sacrificing spirit and character of all the officers who have directed the work of the local corps here have been deeply recorded in the memory of the people.

Serving the highest principles of life, the Salvation Army has in fact conquered the world. The men and women who have devoted their lives to service in this organization, which was the great inspiration of the founder, the late General William Booth, have had reason to feel that they have done much good for the vast numbers who have come under their influence.

All citizens of Belleville and residents in the countryside about this city will join in wishing the Major and Mrs. Earle long life and continued good health for many years. Belleville will have memories of them and they will have unfading memories of this community which they have helped to build in the religious and social realm.

The Unrepentant Germans

Mr. Norman MacLeod, writing from Germany for the British United Press, tells us the Reich is full of ex-soldiers who served in Hitler's army "against their real will," and had been forced to come to terms with the Nazi terror. Hitler's name today is mud, but this, reports Mr. MacLeod, is simply because he failed.

"Post-war Germany is really repentant only in the sense that she blames herself for having entrusted master-race destinies into the adventurous hands of a charlatan unable to carry them to their sacred fulfilment . . . The sense of German destiny remains unbroken."

Correspondents who visited Germany immediately after the Nazi collapse found that the average German deplored the war merely because the war had been lost, had no sense of guilt, accepted no personal responsibility for the blood and slaughter that had marked the expansion of Hitler's Reich. Apparently that spirit still prevails and of course it complicates greatly the problem of the Allies in making peace terms that will prevent Germany from taking the offensive again.

In recent months a number of letters have come to The Journal from German citizens in Germany who ask for help, help in goods and money. Not one of them has expressed the least feeling of guilt for the war or condemnation of Hitler. The unvarying note is of self-pity; they write as though they had been victims of an act of Providence against which they had no conceivable defence, and they have no shame in begging food of their conquerors. It seems never to occur to them that what they suffer they brought upon themselves, through their meek acquiescence in or eager acceptance of Hitler's grandiose dreams, and it appears from Mr. MacLeod that they are typical specimens, not exceptional. — Ottawa Journal.

Postwar Career

The weather-reporting service offers an excellent postwar career for Canada's littler fighting ships — and perhaps, some of the men who manned them.

The North Atlantic network now being inaugurated promises not only invaluable meteorological data for increase in flying safety, but a rescue service available in out of the way corners of the ocean for planes or ships that do get into trouble.

So we are glad to learn that Canada's first contribution to the fleet — the frigate St. Stephen — is off for a long trick of weather-watching at the bleak entrance of Davis Strait. — Montreal Herald.

Infection From An Old Hat

The man who can't bear to part with a battered snap-brim fedora or collegiate porkpie may break out with a stubborn multiple infection of the forehead, Dr. Samuel Standard of New York University warned recently, says Newsweek Magazine. "If he insists on wearing such a hat, he would do well to wash the band with soap and water, or have a new hat band inserted as the years go on," Standard said. This is almost exclusively a masculine weakness, he added. "Women rarely have this trouble. They don't mind buying a new hat occasionally." He warned, however, that the combination of powder puff, fingered money, tobacco dust, and handkerchiefs in a woman's bag also constituted a health menace.

This is the very perfection of a man, to find out his own imperfection. — St. Augustine.

The life of a grandpa is one of surprise.
There always is something to light up his eyes.
Some bit of achievement amazingly new
The children he dotes on have learned how to do.
For the proudest of smiles now at me take a look.
Ellen Elizabeth reads from a book.

Just over seven, and she called on the phone
And shouted the news: "I can read all alone!
I'll show you!" To say I was busy was vain.
She began an account of the President's plane,
And I didn't regret the few minutes she took.
Ellen Elizabeth reads from a book.

The life of a grandpa is one of delight
And thrills of all sorts that astound and excite.
Oh, often I say it: "I'm sorry for those Who miss all the joys every one of us knows."
Now, because it's too small, my hat stays on a hook.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why did the United States terminate diplomatic relation at Rome in 1867?

The United States was represented at the Papal Court in Rome by a charge d'affaires from 1848 to 1854 and by a minister resident from that year until 1867.

An act of Congress approved by President Johnson February 28, 1867, making appropriations for the consular and diplomatic expenses of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1868, provided that "no money hereby or otherwise appropriated shall be paid for the support of an American legation at Rome, and from and after the 30th day of June, 1867."

There were several reasons for this action. From the beginning many Protestants had objected to diplomatic relations with the Vatican and there was a continual demand that the mission at Rome be terminated.

The charge had been made and was widely believed in the North that the Vatican had been more friendly to the Confederacy during the Civil War than its policy of neutrality justified.

At that time the laws of Rome did not permit any form of public religious worship within the walls of the city except that which conformed with the teachings of the Catholic Church or that which was guaranteed by international law. A recognized provision of international law gave an accredited diplomat residing in a foreign country the privilege of religious worship in his own private chapel according to the peculiar forms of his national faith, although that faith may not be generally tolerated by the laws of the country, where he was stationed.

Protestants and other non-Catholics in Rome were accustomed to worship in the legation chapels or in places protected by the legations. American Protestants in Rome were too numerous to meet in the chapel under the American minister's roof. Larger rooms elsewhere were leased for public worship and Minister Rufus King directed that the arms of the American legation be placed over the building in which the American chapel was located. King on March 26, 1867, advised Secretary of State Seward that this arrangement "seems to have satisfied the requirements or scruples of the authorities, and thus far no one interferred with us; nor do I believe that we shall be disturbed during the present season."

Meanwhile, however, newspapers in the United States published statements to the effect that the American chapel in Rome had been removed outside the walls of Rome by order of the Papal authorities and with the consent of the American minister. Although King asserted that "there is no truth" in the statement that "the Pope refuses to permit Protestant worship within the walls of Rome," the report "excited much interest in the United States" and contributed not a little toward the action of Congress in suspending the legation at Rome.

The United States sympathized with the United Italy party as against the Papal party and King may have been correct in his suspicion that the termination of his mission was intended to express this sympathy. He himself wrote to Seward: "It has been intimated in some quarters that the closing of the American legation here, though ostensibly caused by the rumored suppression of the Protestant worship in Rome, was really designed as an indirect recognition of the right and title of Victor Emanuel to the whole of Italy."

But the United States government never made an official explanation for terminating the legation at the Holy See.

Ranks With Worst Shipping Disaster

Seattle, Nov. 28 — (AP) — If 49 crew members lost their lives in the grounding of the Army transport Clarksdale Victory off Prince Rupert, B. C., as feared, it becomes the worst shipping disaster along the Alaska shipping lanes in 29 years.

It would be the heaviest loss of life since the Canadian Pacific liner Princess Sophia sank with the loss of 331 lives on a reef north of Juneau Oct. 25, 1918. The Sophia slipped to the bottom in a sudden storm after it had been held firm on the rocks for 40 hours.

The heaviest loss of life in recent years was 11 aboard the S.S. Yukon in 1946.

Chicago's Scots Will Get Their Haggis After All

New York, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Chicago's Scots will get their traditional haggis in time for their St. Andrew's Society dinner Saturday, after all.

Confiscated by the Department of Agriculture when it arrived from Scotland, the meat pudding was released Thursday. Agriculture Department inspectors had said that the concoction—ground heart and liver of a sheep or calf minced with suet and oatmeal and boiled in the stomach of an animal — violated regulations governing importation of restricted fresh meats. Today, however, the haggis was described as properly processed.

Sent here by plane, the haggis will be flown to Chicago today.

Prices of Cream Go Up Dec. 1st

Toronto, Nov. 28—(CP) — Retail prices of cream will rise when the milk price to consumers goes up two cents in the Ontario milk marketing areas Dec. 1, the Ontario Milk Control Board announced yesterday.

Like the milk price increase, the cream price change affects all sections of the province except the Hamilton, Windsor and Hearst areas. The Board said distributors may sell their cream or milk at prices lower than those set out in the order.

The Board order adds whipping cream — at $1 a quart— to the list of dairy items under ceilings.

Board officials emphasized that the prices were maximum amounts that may be charged.

Cream ceilings, with old prices in brackets, will be

Eighteen per cent — quarts, 68 cents (65); pints, 36 (35) half pints, 21 (19).

Twelve per cent — quarts, 52 (49); pints, 29 (27); half pints, 15 (15).

Whipping cream — quarts, $1; pints, 53; half pints, 31.

ONE MAY LAUGH, AND LAUGH, AND BE A DOCTOR

For several years the best brains of the medical profession, co-operating with the great body of social workers in the spirit of the times, have been striving to teach the layman one vital principal of efficiency—namely, the value of visiting a physician at least once a year for a sort of general inspection, an annual physical examination. In other words the layman has been urged to give the human machine at least as much skilled attention as he gives his automobile or his storage batteries. The idea is to recognize and correct minor troubles before they become major faults.

Unfortunately there are still plenty of incompetents in all professions and all trades.

A few generations ago it was quite the thing for the overworked and undereducated physician to ridicule slight ailments. In the first place, he was altogether to busy for the health of his clientele; and in the second place he had to do a lot of bluffing in order to conceal his appalling ignorance. The old time doctor lacked the skill which is necessary to detect slight deteriorations of function or tissue. He lacked instruments of precision. He lacked the necessary time to study the individual patient. Therefore he laughed.

A laugh is a great tonic. But a tonic isn't what the intelligent patient wants. A laugh is all right in the right place. If the doctor can laugh with his client, he is a good doctor. If he laughs at his client he is simply trying to conceal his own ignorance.

There is some truth in the idea that certain individuals imagine things and that some semi-invalids exaggerate the importance of insignificant sensations. To laugh at these unfortunates is no longer a doctor's function; it was good form back in the prehistoric age of medicine.

Generally the doctor who laughs at a client is a swivel-chair diagnostician. He divines more than he knows. If he would take off his coat, roll up his sleeves, tuck his whiskers in his vest pocket out of the way, and go to work, he might discover that there are lots of troubles a patient may have even when the bowels are regular, the tongue clean, the appetite hearty, the pulse normal and the sleep sound.

A doctor who laughs at a client is as obsolete today as the doctor who used to get drunk and cuss his simple-minded clientele in the halcyon times when ignorant folk liked that sort of thing.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Molasses on His Johnny Cake

Shall I let my little boy, three years old, eat molasses on his bread and Johnny cake? He craves it, but a neighbor says it is a shame to let him have it, for it is the worst thing in the whole world to make worms.

(Mrs. H. H. N.)

Answer—The neighbor, all unbeknownst, is just right. Molasses is the worst possible thing you could use to make worms. You might feed the boy a barrel of it every day, and still never make a wee small worm. Give him plenty of molasses on his Johnny cake and pretty soon he'll be strong enough to go over and thrash the daylight out of the neighbor's white-livered offspring. Worms, like all other forms of organic life, beget only their kind—worms, and nothing else under heaven will beget them.

Rheumatism or Rheum It Isn't?

A girl aged twenty-three has what is called inflammatory rheumatism. The doctor first thought her tonsils were the cause. She had them removed, without relief to the joints. Would you advise a change of doctors? Would outdoor air be harmful for such a case?

(E. M.)

Answer—No, give the doctor a chance. Don't be a one-test rheumatic. There are various other tests yet; for instance, she hasn't had her teeth X-rayed, nor her nosal acessory sinuses explored for the focus. The doctor knows his business. Stick to him. Open air is certainly advisable for all other infections; it couldn't do any harm.

Injections of penicillin into the affected joint or joints (5,000 to 20,000 Oxford units in each injection) has given excellent results in some cases.

Spring Medicine for Children Four to Sixteen

Kindly advise me what you consider the best spring medicine to give children between the ages of four and sixteen years.

Answer—They would get no spring, fall, winter or summer or between seasons medicine, if they were my children. They would get medicine only when they apparently needed it, regardless of the season. Six hours of open air every day is the best spring medicine for children.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE N EW AO BELLEVILLE PLANT

For a quarter of a century ophthalmic lenses have been produced by the Belleville plant of American Optical Company Canada Limited. Famed for their quality and perfection these lenses are distributed to the ophthalmic professions by AO branch laboratories located in 27 principal cities of Canada. Many lenses are also exported to Australia and New Zealand.

To keep pace with the growth of Canada and the rapidly accelerating demand for AO lenses, we have found it necessary to build a new, modern plant on a 16-acre site adjacent to Albert College. Already ground has been broken and many of you have witnessed for yourselves the construction progress.

Specifically designed for the manufacture of lenses by the latest methods, the new plant will be equipped with the most modern lens production machinery. When completed, the plant and its operations will have incorporated the accumulated experience of many years of lens manufacture.

If you'd like a few statistics, the plant is expected to be completed in 1948 and will occupy approximately 87,000 square feet of manufacturing space as compared to approximately 32,000 square feet in our present building.

When the plant is finally completed, we believe you will agree with us that it is exceptionally attractive, a model factory and a credit to the industrial establishments of Belleville.

Yes, we are tremendously enthusiastic about this new AO plant. Credit for its creation goes to our entire group of employees who, throughout the years, have worked together as a team to make a success of their company. Backed by this spirit of co-operation and the skill born of experience, we confidently predict that operation of the new plant will lead the way to an even more successful and prosperous future for the entire AO family of employees in Belleville.

Her College Host Does Not Pay For Her Train-Accommodations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am attending college here, and I have invited a girl from my home city to come to our college dance. She has just written me accepting my invitation. Since the hotel bill, bid, corsage, and all the extras will amount to quite a bit, is it expected of me to send her her train fare, which would amount to about thirty dollars? A number of my college friends here find themselves in the same situation, and we would greatly appreciate your answering this question.

No; it is not your responsibility to pay the girl's train fare and other transportation-expenses, either coming to the dance or returning to her home. Carefully Planned Lighting Necessary

See that the lamps in your home are arranged so that reading is comportable and easy

By HELEN FOLLETT

YOU can get squint lines from strong sunlight, you can also get them from glaring lights in the home. See that your lamps are so arranged that reading is comfortable and easy.

It is true that dim lights are restful but they're only for the merry evening. We know now that the more light, the less strain upon the optic motors, if it is free of glare, is properly directed and diffused. Shades should be large enough to prevent you from looking directly into the bulb, made of material that will diffuse the light. They should be open at the top so the light reaches the ceiling, thus brightening the room generally.

The Cozy Look

How lamps are placed have much to do with the home-like, cozy look one is anxious to attain. The colors of rugs and furniture also affect a woman's appearance. Surround yourself with dreary, characterless colors, like dingy taupe and dull greys, and you will take on an appearance of dinginess yourself. Brightly flowered chintz helps to make the mistress of the house appear young and gay.

Also, to help along the fight against old man Time who is ever out to rob a woman of youthful appearance, the house should have good ventilation. Sunlight makes for sunny spirits. Houses with small windows are often depressing.

A Beautiful Setting

A beautiful woman should have a beautiful setting, which she will find in becoming clothes, in the chic coiffure, in cleverly applied makeup, and in the arrangement of the house in which she lives.

Children are affected by their surroundings. They love bright colors, cheerfulness and fresh air, all of which are good for their nervous systems that are more susceptible to influences and more delicate than many parents realize. The home should be a woman's pride. She should do everything possible to make it and herself attractive, for her own sake, as well as for the sake of her family.

Argyll Chap. IODE Holds Successful Bridge, Sale and Tea

Ladies of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. were "at home" in the Armouries, East Bridge Street yesterday afternoon for a bridge, sale and tea.

Conveners responsible for arranging the bridge games were Mrs. Newton Wilbur and Mrs. Ross Neal. Ladies winning favors were: First, Mrs. Len Fozard; Second, Mrs. Edgar Rutherford; Consolation, Mrs. F. R. Budden. The dressed doll went to Mrs. M. Haig, and the artistically iced cake to Mrs. E. Fairman. Later, the floral centrepiece from the tea table was raffled, and won by Mrs. E. O. Keeler.

The home cooking table was convened by Mrs. J. Porritt with Mrs. B. A. Joyce and Mrs. E. A. Geen assisting in the sale of a variety of delectable samples of culinary art, including cakes, pies, tarts, muffins and cookies.

A large table displaying a variety of colorful aprons, novelties and children's wear was in charge of Mrs. J. W. Howard and Mrs. G. M. Miller.

Tea was served in the Officers' Mess, where the Regent, Mrs. Milton Davison, received the guests. The long refectory table had a fine lace runner covering the polished surface between the silver tea services, with a large silver bowl, filled with baby "mums" in Autumn shades, occupying the central position flanked by triple silver candelabra holding jade tapers.

Mrs. W. N. Ponton and Mrs. P. H. Wills poured during the first hour and for the second period Mrs. E. A. Geen and Mrs. E. O. Keeler presided for the filling of the tea cups. The guests were served by other members of the chapter.

Conveners in charge of the tea room were Mrs. Everett Fairman and Mrs. Fred Lazier, while Mrs. Ronald Keel was treasurer for the afternoon.

Her College Host Does Not Pay For Her Train-Accommodations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am attending college here, and I have invited a girl from my home city to come to our college dance. She has just written me accepting my invitation. Since the hotel bill, bid, corsage, and all the extras will amount to quite a bit, is it expected of me to send her her train fare, which would amount to about thirty dollars? A number of my college friends here find themselves in the same situation, and we would greatly appreciate your answering this question.

H. F. K.

No; it is not your responsibility to pay the girl's train fare and other transportation-expenses, either coming to the dance or returning to her home. And I'm positive the girl won't expect to have you send her her train fare . . . indeed I'm sure she will be thrilled to pay this expense herself, what with having the anticipation of such a happy time at your college dance! You should by the way, make clear to her just when she is expected to arrive, and, just as important, just when she is expected to depart . . . . and she should have also her reservations for this departure-schedule.

Questions About Informal Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1. I am to be married in the manse, and will wear a street-length dress. There will be only a few guests. Is it correct for me to have a flower girl? If so, should I have her wear a street-length or floor-length dress?

2. The reception following the ceremony is to begin at 8 p.m. Would it be all right for us to plan to leave the reception by 11:30 or 12 o'clock?

3. We are sending invitations to the reception only. Should we send invitations to the groom's parents, or are they supposed to take such an invitation for granted?

4. Should the bridesmaid read the cards enclosed with the wedding presents and enter names and gifts in the bride's book for me?

E. L.

1. It would be inconsistent for the bride at such an informal wedding to have a flower girl. Usually there is only one attendant, a maid (or matron) of honor. However, if your heart is set on having a certain charming little girl you love very dearly . . . your little sister or niece or perhaps your godchild . . . you might, since there will be so few guests present, have her as flower girl. But have her costume just as informal as yours, a simple street-length dress, small, simple hat, and carrying a tiny nosegay.

2. Yes . . . or if there is not to be a sitdown service of refreshments, you and the bridegroom may leave an hour or so earlier.

3. The invitation sent to the bridegroom's parents is the most important of the invitations sent, because the bridegroom's parents are the guests of honor at the wedding. This invitation should be mailed the first of the invitations. As a matter of fact, the thoughtful bride-to-be sends one or two (or even more) of these invitations enclosed in a large envelope, address to the groom's parents, these to be kept, if they wish, as mementos.

4. Generally the prospective bride herself wants to have the thrilling joy of opening her wedding presents and entering in her white-bound Bride's Book the names of the gift-givers, the gift, the date of the gift's arrival, and so forth. But if your bridesmaid is your sister or someone in your home, you may, if you wish, have her take over this pleasant task.

In Introductions . . . . . Practice Makes Perfect

To make sure that your introductions of your relatives will be both correct and graceful, you will be wise (1) to make a list of all relatives, both members of your immediate family and others whom you may be called on to introduce, and (2) practice the form of introduction you should say in each case. P.S.. This is a particularly helpful plan for brides and grooms in introducing their own relatives and their new in-laws!

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Young Wife Stands Up For Teen-Age Marriages

A girl who married at 17 and is a bride of a year wants to add some comments of her own to the recent discussion in this column about teen-age marriages.

She says:

"I was 17 and my husband 23 when we were married. I am now 18 and there is a baby on the way about which my husband and I are very happy.

"Of course, like any marriage, ours isn't free from problems. But, as in any marriage, we face them and overcome them. Marriage is a profession, and, like any other profession, it is not always easy. The sooner people realize that anything that isn't worth working for is not worth having, the better off they will be. If you don't want happiness badly enough to work for it, you don't deserve it.

"A recent letter which I read in your column seemed to suggest that young people marry to follow the 'fads'. I think you will find that most marriages, regardless of the ages of the girl and man, take place because of love and the need of companionship rather than anything else. Maturity should not be judged by the number of years one has lived. Some people mature fast; other don't. As for fun, one needn't cut himself off from the world because of marriage. They should feel more a part of it and have more fun than ever.

"Some people have the foolish idea that marriage is the end. It is not. It is the beginning. You don't stop learning when you get married. You just begin to learn. I have learned more since I was married than I ever knew before, and I intend to keep on learning. Marriage should broaden our interests rather than cut them off.

"Of course I am not advising every young person to get married. What is right for one is sometimes wrong for another. All I am asking is for persons to give young people a chance. They have minds of their own and should be trusted accordingly. Don't condemn early marriages from the beginning."

For the benefit of the writer of this letter, who feels that young people's romances are not always taken seriously enough, I would like to say that she takes the same position that I have always taken myself in this respect. I have not "condemned" early marriages wholesale, but simply said, as she does, that what may be right for one couple may not be a good thing for another, and that it all depends upon the degree of maturity the young folks in question have attained.

In this particular instance, this 18-year-old wife seems unusually mature for her age. The fact that she and her husband are wise enough to realize that problems inevitably come with marriage and that they must be faced squarely and solved, should certainly see them through any difficult situation that may arise in the course of their married life, if they hold to the basis on which they have begun it.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Refashioning the Figure

Miss Lazybones—who loves her bonbons, who lolls on soft cushions, and who is headed for the contingent known to the fashion trade as "stylish stouts"—should read Dorothy Nye's book, "New Bodies for Old" (Funk and Wagnalls). It may inspire her to be up and doing, to make an effort to retain the svelte shape. Physicians and teachers of physical education declare that poor posture is a common curse these days, prevails among all ages. It is a health menace and it takes a crimp in pretty clothes. A chic frock should be carried smartly if it is to fulfill the mission for which it was intended.

"Every body has a rhythm of its own," writes Miss Nye. "It needs no extra stimuli. As your body moves, obeying the command of mind, you sense your own rhythm. It will ripple through your muscles, sing along your nerves. Gradually, as your body movements are co-ordinated more and more harmoniously, you come to know this pure joy of movement. It is one of life's great experiences."

Let this idea sink into the minds of women who waddle, shuffle, swing hips, push along with bent shoulders and concave chests, or who just get there any old way.

There is need of more campaigners like Miss Nye in this health and beauty cause.

Miss Nye has something interesting to say about the heavyweight who would woo slenderness. She declares "Reducing is not a physical achievement. It is a mental triumph. The important feature of a reducing regime is not how much do you weigh, but how strong is your will. Reducing is setting will against weight, and the stronger invariably wins. The time to reduce is not when you are twenty pounds overweight, but when your scales check up a three pound gain. When you are finding that you are adding a couple of pounds every season you may be sure that there are curves ahead."

Helen Stenny
10-10

The important feature of a reducing regime is strength of will

She believes that no woman should adopt a reducing diet without consulting a physician. She says that the practice of reducing by calorie intake is probably the safest if one understands what is meant by a balanced diet and gets sufficient nourishment to provide energy.

In relaxation exercises she offers a new idea. The average woman fancies that to enjoy relaxation she must go limp. The writer explains that alternate stretching and relaxing is the proper method of combating fatigue. This method quickens the circulation of the blood, relieves tension, gives solace to a tired, overworked nervous system.

When a candidate for slenderness gets discouraged, she should buy a new dress or new corset. That, says Miss Nye, is the best incentive to further exercise. Sensible, eh?

ANOTHER REVIVAL is Hudson seal, black dyed muskrat, and looking far far different from the silvery or brown jobs which most of us know as muskrat. At any rate a smart coat for general wear is a full-length Hudson seal design with fur hood and slim, tailored sleeves. Scarlet wool lining.

A FAVORITE hat of the moment seems to be the profile hat in felt, with rolled back brim wide in the centre and narrowing to the sides, with the low side marked by brisk clipped ostrich pompoms. Crown is high.

COLOR CONTRAST gets full play in some of the new dress and jacket ensembles. Dark green woollen is used for a slim dress with rounded hip tabs held by jeweled buttons. With it a semi-fitted jacket of gold-colored woolen with curved, cutaway front and buttons matching those on the frock. Jacket is lined in crepe to match the frock.

REALLY BEAUTIFUL dinner suits are appearing. A beauty is done on strictly tailored lines with regular collar, peaked lapels, fitted waist and pocket flaps. Skirt is about ten inches from the floor. The suit is of pastel blue, silk crepe covered all over with black lace. Pencil slim skirt is slit for walking.

Turcotte 'Incident' May Have Forced Attache's Recall

Ottawa, Nov. 28 — (CP)—Dana Doten, attache at the United States Embassy in Ottawa, has been recalled, Julian Harrington, American Minister to Canada said Wednesday night. He told reporters Mr. Doten had been "ordered back," and given a transportation warrant to his home in Vermont.

It was believed Mr. Doten's "recall" was in connection with the recent controversy which followed the appointment of Edmond Turcotte of Montreal, as Canadian Consul General in Chicago.

Mr. Doten, who has been in Ottawa for more than five years, has been special assistant to the Ambassador, Hon. Ray Atherton who was not available for comment. It was Mr. Doten who was in charge of the preparation of the "dossier" on Mr. Turcotte which led to a protest being lodged here against Mr. Turcotte's appointment.

Mr. Harrington said he did not know whether Mr. Doten's recall had anything to do with the Turcotte "incident."

"Neither the Embassy nor Mr. Doten knows the definite reason," said Mr. Harrington.

Mr. Doten was called to Washington after the controversy over Mr. Turcotte's appointment died down. Mr. Atherton also visited Washington about the same time.

It was learned that the telegram ordering Mr. Doten's return had been received here Nov. 21 and that subsequently steps were taken to remove his name from the diplomatic list.

The protocol division of the External Affairs Department said Mr. Doten's name had been removed from its lists.

Scout Commissioner Addresses Meeting Of Scout Auxiliaries

An open meeting of "Scout Auxiliaries" was held on Monday evening Nov. 24th in the auditorium of Queen Mary School.

Mrs. M. Button, President of 8th Belleville Auxiliary, acted as chairman for the evening.

Mr. K. Martin as pianist, Mr. Evans kindly favored with two solos, which were greatly enjoyed.

Mr. R. L. Brown, District Scout Commissioner introduced the speaker of the evening Field Commissioner Jackson. Mr. Jackson chose as his topic Scout Movement, First Aim of Scouting and secondly, materials with which to work. Scouting aims to build in the boy character, obedience, self-reliance, loyalty, citizenship, mental and physical development. But first they must have the material to work with, namely, the boy. It should be the parents' responsibility to watch his progress, and the choosing of good leaders by Auxiliary groups, whose aim should be to give aid to "Cub Packs" and "Scout Groups".

Mr. Jackson stressed the value of Leaders' attendance at conferences so that they may further their knowledge for training; plan a field day for Cubs and camporees for Scouts; also to discuss ways and means for bettering their year's program.

The work of the Auxiliary should be to plan for a parents' evening, parents' committees; Father and Son banquet, entertainments, and to attend the Investiture of their boy, and so be prepared to watch his progress.

He concluded his address by reading a poem entitled "Scouting."

A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker by Mr. B. Page, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Wagar and her assistants.

Glenn Bidgood To Represent Local District

Glenn Bidgood of Ida, Northumberland county, won the Northumberland Trustees' and Ratepayers' public speaking trophy and will go on to represent the Belleville district at the provincial contest to be held at Toronto next Easter.

The Ida school pupil was declared Belleville district winner at speaking contest held in Brighton Friday night. Second place winner was Valerie DeCarrol of Campbellford, while Mary Rodd of Lonsdale, winner of the South Hastings contest placed third.

Ten public schools, representing schools in the five counties of Hastings, Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough, Frontenac took part in the contest and drew lots for their position on the program.

Judges for the contest were Miss Phyllis Wood, Frontenac, County; Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Hayton and Mr. J. A. Warren, Hastings; Roy Wilmott and Fred Richardson, Durham; C. E. Tucker and Donald Hester, Peterborough; and Mesdames Teal, Reddick and Henderson for Northumberland.

The Answer is There

(Being the Popular Report for 1947 of the British and Foreign Bible Society, by the Rev. John A. Patten, M.C , M.A.)

The author propounds the question regarding the Riddle of Life. He asks if the answer to our present chaotic condition lies in Science or one of the Isms current in our day.

Mr. Patten shows that the Word of God has become the universal Book, breaking down racial prejudice and national antagonism. In God's plan lies the answer.

Throughout these pages the shortage of Bibles is constantly emphasized. Many in war zones were so deeply indebted to the Bible for their inspiration that others are now clamouring for a copy of The Book. The Chinese, despite inflation prices, are eager to purchase Bibles. The Germans have requested twenty million Bibles and New Testaments.

Although the movements toward literacy have enthused many Christians, the author shows that these have fallen far short of complete success. The work of translation, halted by war, is again moving forward and many countries with a low literacy figure have been encouraged by the visit of Dr. Frank Laubach.

One may sum up this very vital report by saying that it is the story of Relighting the Lamps of Truth in many lands that have been dark through a period of years.

Reverse Trend

Toronto, Nov. 28 — (CP)—Police said today a Montreal ring was selling stolen cars to Toronto used cars dealers and that about $15,000 had been paid for automobiles which proved to be stolen in Montreal.

The cars had been repainted, engine serial numbers ground off and new numbers stamped in, police said. Licence plates had been replaced by plates taken from other cars.

The situation was the reverse of last year's reports of new cars being stolen in Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, London and Windsor and sold on a Montreal black market.

Teachers Urged To Set Example In Community

Trenton — At a combined banquet and business meeting of the Prince Edward, Northumberland and Hastings Public School Men Teachers' Federation locals, held in Grace United Church and College Street School, P. W. Diebel, of Hamilton, Vice-President of the Provincial body, urged the men teachers of this district to be clean, keen and co-operative. "A teacher must be clean in his example to the community and children—keen toward his association and education—co-operative with his trustee board and parents.

"If you haven't changed an opinion in the last six months, if education no longer requires that you experiment, your mind has reached senility although your body may still be young." "If a teacher's attitude is not one of co-operation with his trustees, the youth of that community is losing something in its mental, physical of social training," said Mr. Diebel.

In speaking on recent achievements of the Federation, the speaker reported on the further discussions of the executive with the Royal Commission on Education. Referring to disciplinary measures within the Professional Act, he told of the drastic action taken by the Federation against some of its own members for unprofessional conduct. Six recent cases have been dealt with, some severely. Opposition to some Boards of Reference was referred to with some possible courses of action to remedy these difficulties suggested.

Briefly referring to salaries, Mr. Diebel entertained his audience with some mild satire. Seriously, he said, "It is mort baffling why the public at large has so readily entrusted the power to train, yet has so basely estimated the worth of the effort."

The Federation's immediate salary aim is to have no teacher under $1500. At present five percent of the men teachers of Ontario teach for less. This is a great improvement: It has all been accomplished by voluntary agreement. The Federation voted overwhelmingly last Easter in Toronto against the strike as an instrument of policy.

MILK DRIVERS' STRIKE PROSPECT IN CORNWALL

Cornwall, Nov. 28 — (CP) — Prospects of a milk drivers' strike were seen here today, as the president of the local union announced that a strike had been called for Saturday unless a settlement is reached before then. The action was approved at a general membership meeting Wednesday night.

Negotiations have been under way between the drivers and the companies since last June but without success. Judge Reynolds of Kingston has been acting as arbitrator.

TWIN SONS DROWNED

Drummondville, Que., Nov. 28—(CP) — Jacques and Jean Fredette, four-year-old twin sons of A. Fredette, Drummondville notary, were drowned yesterday in the St. Francis River when their tricycle broke through river ice.

The two youngsters were playing on the frozen river less than 150 feet from home when the accident occurred. Their father after a futile attempt to reach the twins with a canoe slipped into the frigid water himself and was rescued with difficulty.

RED ADVANCES MAY FORCE CHURCH TO ABANDON MISSION IN HONAN

Toronto, Nov. 28 — (CP) — Communist advances in Honan in Northwest China may force the Church of England in Canada to abandon its mission work in that province in the near future, Canon L. A. Dixon of Toronto, general secretary of the Church's Missionary Society, last night told the Anglican Deanery of North Toronto.

Preparations were being made for evacuation of the Canadian staff to Shanghai.

INVITES STALIN TO RADIO TALKS

Dr. Leo Szilard, Hungarian-born physicist, professor of biophysics at the University of Chicago, and would-be-letter-writer to Joe Stalin, is pictured here. Dr. Leo Szilard's conception of nuclear potentialities led to the manufacture of the atomic bomb. His epistle to Prime Minister Josep Stalin of Russia became an open letter published in the monthly Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists after a head-on run-in with government policy prevented it being mailed directly to Stalin. The letter asked Stalin to inform the U. S. of Russian desires in a series of radio speeches. Dr. Szilard's letter suggests that Stalin, by speaking "directly and personally" to the people, might promote a shift of U. S. foreign policy and terminate the diplomatic deadlock. He also suggested that President Truman be invited to make similar radio talks to the Russian people.

Cheddar Cheese Exhibits Starting To Arrive

Cheddar cheese, the nationally known agricultural product of Hastings county, took over from the product of the factory at the Riggs Motor sales room today as entries for the British Empire Dairy Show to be held next week started to pour in.

By Saturday noon the 250 cheese from all parts of Ontario and Quebec will be in place and the judging of the various entries will have commenced. Judging is expected to have been completed by Monday morning with trophies and everything in readiness for the official opening of the exhibition on Wednesday morning. The general public is cordially invited to attend the cheese show.

Cheese judges for the exhibition are Thomas Hicks of Montreal, senior dairy produce grader; Emmanuel Quesnel, Montreal; Garnet Bain, London, and W. E. Brennan, Kemptville.

DID STRIP TEASE ACT

Toronto, Nov. 28 — (CP)—For performing a strip tease act before 150 members of a university club, a 34-year-old Toronto woman was fined $50 or 10 days. She pleaded guilty to a charge of "committing an immoral act."

Extreme styles in women's hats aroused the spirit of retaliation to the point where he had to do something about it. So he built this model railroad on the crown of a silk topper. Belleville Business Is Your Business

BELLEVILLE HAS APPROXIMATELY $13,000,000 ASSESSMENT.

This means that every home owner and tenant who pays taxes has an interest in seeing that his rights and interests are properly administered and safeguarded.

SEWAGE.

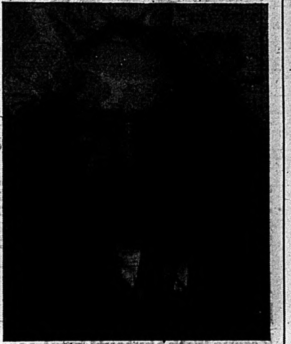
Belleville needs trunk sewers. The city government has spent money freely on projects that under present conditions could wait. BUT IT HAS FAILED TO PROVIDE FACILITIES MORE URGENTLY NEEDED AT THIS TIME.

Consulting engineers have reported many times a woeful lack of adequate sewage facilities in the area south of Victoria Ave., and particularly in the vicinity of Bleecker Avenue, Queen East and adjacent streets.

In addition, the area on the West Hill, district of Catharine Street and intersecting streets up to Yeomans are flooded even by surface waters with consequent danger of infectious contamination.

The Public Works Department does its best in pumping out flooded cellars but if proper sewage facilities were installed, pumping would not be necessary, nor would damage occur as it does today, to valuable homes and property.

Sums of money have been expended in facilities that are of lesser importance than the sewage problem. Meanwhile, every new home increases the hazard and nothing has been done on this supremely important matter.



Here is only one of many instances where more efficient administration and wiser spending would have done better things for Belleville.

I Promise This Type of Administration

INDUSTRIAL SITES.

The people of Belleville voted $25,000 for the purchase of land for industrial sites. An option, which expired on April last was taken on this property.

In a report of the Council Meeting on Monday, November 24th., it was stated that the money had been put into a general fund. This information was disclosed in answer to a pointed question by Alderman Allin and was reported in The Ontario Intelligencer of November 25th.

Will the owners of this industrial land continue to wait the taking up of the option? Will Belleville possess a fully developed, properly organized industrial area with all the necessary facilities that go with such a district? IF NOT, THEN THE POSSIBILITIES OF PROPER INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION ARE SERIOUSLY ENDANGERED. I believe many citizens of Belleville will want to know what has been done.

In any case whether it is the action of the Industrial Commission or the City Council, ALL FUNDS OF THE CITIZENS SHOULD BE PROPERLY EARMARKED AND ADMINISTERED.

CITY PLANNING—WE MUST PLAN AND BUILD NOW!

The city retained the services of a firm of professional planning engineers on a specific commitment basis of paying them $5000 or $2500 a year over a period of two years. On this basis they were to prepare a planning survey with recommendations for new development areas. To date the city is confronted with accounts rendered amounting to the sum of $15,000! This alone will mean an increase in your tax rate of over one mill.

How and by whose authority did this extra expenditure occur? What have we got to show for it! Is the program completed or is the planning secretive for the benefit of special enterprises?

IF I AM ELECTED I WILL REPORT TO THE CITIZENS ALL THE FACTS AS FAST AS INVESTIGATION DISCLOSES THEM. Facts that will tell you the difference between wise administration and a spending spree.

These are but a few of the problems facing the citizens of Belleville today.

What I offer—and what you want—is good and efficient business practice in the administration of municipal affairs. It must be satisfactory and yet economical service for ALL—not privileges and preferment for the few.

A vote for D. L. Storey for Mayor will help bring about the changes so vitally necessary. And, it will help in setting up a city administration that does the things you WANT, WHEN you want them, and HOW you want them.

OUR VETERANS MUST HAVE HOMES

The shortage of homes in Belleville has been a matter of keen concern to Veterans and their families. This shortage will be intensified as new industrial developments open up in the city.

As a Veteran of World War I., with a son who is a Naval Veteran of World War II, I am glad therefore to greet the new Veterans' Housing Plan announced by the Federal Government at Ottawa—but it must be realized that FULL UTILIZATION OF THE PLAN DEPENDS UPON THE MUNICIPALITIES. A keen alert city administration is needed to take full advantage of this opportunity to build more homes for Veterans at LOW RENTAL COST.

Belleville needs this plan. OUR VETERANS MUST HAVE HOMES. I pledge myself to investigate this new plan thoroughly with the object of promoting in every way the building of more low rental homes for our Veterans.

Detroit Surges to Three-Point Lead in NHL but Canadiens Revive With Shutout Over Leafs

Bill Durnan Leads All Goalies in Loop With Three Shutouts

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The "what's wrong with Canadiens" club disbanded in confused satisfaction today after the Habitants shut out Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0. But the same club and a lot of others took startled note of the fact that Detroit Red Wings beat Boston Bruins 4-1, and thereby roared into a three point lead in the National Hockey League standing.

The two games last night, at Montreal and Detroit, left the Wings three points ahead of Toronto and Boston tied for second, and shoved the fourth-place Montrealers within two points of the Bruins. That leaves the league standings looking more like their old selves, with New York Rangers fifth by four points and Chicago at the bottom.

At the Forum the Canadiens showed that despite their setbacks of late they're still a powerful club when it comes to a showdown with their ancient rivals from Toronto.

Bill Durnan, recovered from injuries, was a stand-out as he recorded his second shut-out over the Leafs on Montreal ice this season.

Little Difference

There was little difference in the play and it may be was that Dick Irwin, Canadiens coach won it on psychological factors. He sent Rocket Richard and Elmer Lach on the ice wearing natty helmets, not solid, but held by strips across the skull.

Anyway, after Turk Broda had made a great save from a combined attack in the first period, Kenny Reardon, Montreal defenceman, collared the loose puck and scored the first goal. The second resulted in the last period when Lach and Richard in turn passed the puck to old Toe Blake who drove it home.

It was a shattered Boston team that skated onto Detroit ice. Veteran Milt Schmidt suffered an attack of intestinal flu yesterday. Defenceman Jack Crawford was still off with a bruised instep. Altogether Boston dressed only 13 men.

Ted Lindsay scored Detroit's first goal in the first period and Joe Carveth tied it up when the second frame was only two minutes old. Jerry Couture and Pat Lundy both scored to give Detroit a 3-1 edge going into the final period, and Pete Horeck added another for good measure.

The Montreal-Toronto feud will be renewed at Toronto Saturday with all teams seeing action again Sunday.

OSHAWA GENS DEFEAT GUELPH BY 6 TO 1 COUNT

Now Tied With Windsor Spitfires for Leadership of Junior "A" Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Maybe Swat Mason regrets leaving his soft cushion on the Hamilton Tigers' bench for the hard wooden board of this season's Ontario Hockey Association's Junior 'A' mentors.

Whatever wiles of the trade he has picked up from his session with the Bengals, in the senior 'A' loop, he seems to find the course difficult for his junior charges, Guelph Biltmores, who were given a 6-1 pasting by the Oshawa Generals last night.

When Swat took over coaching duties from Bobby Bauer, who moved up into an executive position with the club this week, he faced the chore of re-molding this ninth place club with a weak defence into something the shareholders would smile at.

Last night didn't help. The Generals regained their first-place tie with Windsor Spitfires in the only O.H.A. fixture of the night, played at Galt. It was Guelph's eighth loss in 11 games.

The Oshawa squad notched their 10th victory in 1 starts.

Guelph's sub-goalie Jimmy Strahan, obtained from Barrie Flyers, made his debut while "regular" Hank Lawson nursed a broken finger.

Oshawa started turning the vise with a three goal first period, adding another in the second session and two more in the third frame before Guelph's Frank Bathgate tallied Biltmores' lone counter.

Chuck Gamble led the Oshawa attack with two tallies and the other Generals' goals came from Eric Pogue, Sandy Mair, Chuck Blair and Dick Schiles.

In the three senior games scheduled for tonight the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen visit the league-leading Toronto Marlboros, Hamilton Patricias go to Stratford and Owen Sound Mercurys visit Hamilton Tigers. There are no junior games.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Peterborough Legion Intermediates who troop into town tonight led by the doughty Ned Vitarelli, well-known to hockey fans here, will bring a full ships complement of eighteen players. The squad is plentifully sprinkled with Nicholls and Mortimers, (must be settlements up around that way) and a former Belleville goalie Gord Cook will also sport a Petes uniform.

• • •

The Peterborough line - up will be: Goal, Ross Nicholls, Cook; defence, Godfrey, Williamson, McMaster, Percy Nicholls, D. Mortimer, M. Magee; forwards, J. Rochetti, Greenlaw W. Crowley, Parnell, Coughlin, Vitarelli, F. Mortimer, J. Mortimer, Ernie Nicholls and A. Nicholls.

• • •

The Belleville ANAFS will be at full strength so it is reported, and the game should be a good old-fashioned Petes-Belleville hockey jamboree. The Peterborough report that the teams will engage in a two-of-three series is denied by ANAF officials here. Game starts at 8:30.

• • •

By the looks of the above line-up the Petes can throw three complete hockey teams into the fray and if we know those Liftlock babies of old, they will just do that little thing if they can go home trilling victory roundelays and dangling the Red Shirts scalps at their collective belt.

• • •

For the Peterborough Tigers, whether in baseball, hockey, marbles, softball, penny ante, basketball, checkers, football, or an argument, never change their spots, and outside of an old age pension of reventy-five bucks weekly at the age of twenty-nine, they like nothing better than to humble a squad from Belleville.

• • •

And that goes for exhibition games as well as the battles for OHA "blood." And more especially for Signor Nediccio Vitarelli, who has tasted Belleville blood, figuratively speaking, that is, on more than one hectic hockey occasion. And the swarthy, little speedster hasn't had his appetite satisfied yet, so if any of you sceptics think this tilt tonight will be a powder-puff, Alphonse - and - Gaston affair, then stay home and play with Junior's electric train.

• • •

The Belleville Rockets threw a scare in the section-leading Napanee clan at Memorial Arena last night, and at one time had the Gibbardville gang on the short end of a three-one count. But they couldn't stand prosperity, and loosened their defence just once too often.

• • •

And Walter Gerow et al were quick to take advantage of the lapse. The tall winger raced in to knock home the second goal for the team and just ten seconds later, the score was tied when Markle, suddenly discovering a loose puck while his mates were in a crap-shooters huddle around the Rockets net, drew a bead on the left-hand side of the rigging, teed off, and the light was on.

• • •

Rocket's new goalie, a stocky youngster by the name of La-Port, seemed to know what his chore was all about. He turned in a fine performance in his first appearance here, and according to the powers that be, will fill the bill. He is cool under fire, knows what to do, and when to do it. He isn't sensational, but keeps his eye on the rubber all the time and most of the time directed his defence when the going got tough.

• • •

At that the youngsters nearly lost the game through penalties in the tihrd period. At one time they were two men short due to unnnecessary infractions of the rules, but their playing mates came through in fine style to stave off the speeding Napanee front lines. La Fort showed his coolness and ability during these hectic minutes, ad a lot of credit goes to him in thwarting the Gibbardville ganging efforts to score.

• • •

Tweed lost its fourth straight game going down under the fast-improving Campbellford squad after holding them to a two-goal effort in the first period. The 7-1 score did not indicate the actual difference in the teams for Tweed was outlucked and outguessed around the Campbellford nets on several occasions. Their weakness was in their shooting and failure to take advantage of scoring opportunities.

• • •

But they are a game crew. They battled every inch of the way despite the fact that the score was intermittently mounting against them. They ganged their plays in the third period, and Campbellford lost no time in taking advantage of breakaways.

• • •

Peter Campbell, Toronto Maple Leafs baseball club master-mind stated in a CP despatch yesterday that Peterborough and Belleville would not be represented in the Border Professional Baseball League come next summer due "to Belleville's inability to make satisfactory arrangements. Campbell stated he had gained this information while in conversation with the president of the Border League who resides in Ogdensburg, N.Y.

• • •

On the heels of this despatch came another from Ottawa, which quoted a spokesman for the Ottawa Nationals Baseball Club as saying that a leagne meeting probably will be calle in Ogdensburg to deal with plans for expansion of the league.

• • •

Commenting on the despatch which quoted Campbell as saying neither Peterborough nor Belleville would be represented in the league next year, the spokesman said: "It's not a dead issue yet."

• • •

Just what the Ottawa spokesman meant by that remark is not understood here unless it has something to do with the transfer of the Ottawa Nationals to Belleville as has been suggested to baseball men here. But more about that later.

• • •

It was learned here last night that a group of sports-minded gentry may dig into the personal jeans and dig up enough spondulix to enter a team in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association this season. If such is the case the column hat is tipped to them. Minor hockey has been getting the run-around in this city, and it is time something was done to give the youngsters a chance to play organized sport. They have just as much right to play the game as big brother Bill, and hockey and other interests hereabouts should have foresight enough to realize that the hockey stars of the future are the kids of today.

• • •

This city is rapidly approaching the point where its industries can offer inducements for these youngsters to remain here. All they need is encouragement, coaching, and the proper supervision. This city now has the facilities, the players in the making, and the opportunity to develop these men of tomorrow. And don't forget, it has jails, too. Far better for your boy and my boy to hear the thunder of hockey fandom cheering him to victory, than the monotone of a judge sentencing him to reformatory, or jail.

JOE DIMAGGIO MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN LOOP

Joins Jimmy Fox as Three-Time Winner of Award in American League

New York, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Joe DiMaggio, star centrefielder of the world champion New York Yankees, yesterday joined Jimmy Foxx, former great slugger of Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox as the only three-time winners when he was named the most valuable player of the American Baseball League for 1947.

In the closest race in the history of the award DiMaggio compiled a total of 202 points in the vote of the 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America to nose out Ted Williams of the Red Sox by one point.

Williams, who led the league in batting (.343) runs batted in (114) and home runs (32) as well as in runs scored, total bases and bases on balls, polled 201 votes to gain the runner-up spot. It marked the second time he finand to Joe Gordon in 1942. Dished second to DiMaggio and the third time he was runner-up to a Yankee player.

The Red Sox' slugging outfielder, who won the award hands down last year with 224 votes, finished second to DiMag in 1941 Mag also won in 1939. Foxx gained the honor in 1932 and '33 with the Athletics and in 1938 with the Sox.

Decided by Point

The balloting for third place also was decided by one point with Lou Boudreau, shortstop - manager of Cleveland Indians, beating out Joe Page, the Yankees' great left-handed relief pitcher, 158 votes to 157.

Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., right-hander for Philadelphia Athletics who won 19 games for the second-division club, landed ninth position with 47 points.

Figures are misleading in the case of DiMaggio. While they show he batted only .315, 28 points behind Williams' figure and drove in 93 runs on 20 home runs, he was far more valuable than that.

The Yankee Clipper, unable to get into the lineup at the start of the season due to a slowly - healing foot following an operation, courageously decided to play despite the handicap when the Yankees got off to a slow start. His big bat and his outstanding work in centrefield immediately sparked the team to a succession of victories that eventually brought the pennant to New York.

Napanee, Juniors Battle to Three-All Tie With Tweed Bowing to Campbellford 7-1

Gibbardville Gang Still Rules the "A" Section Roost With Tweed Losing Fourth Straight Game

Napanee Legionnaires still hold a one-point lead on top of the "A" section of the Belleville District Hockey Association, with the Belleville Rockets holding down their former spot in second place by virtue of a 3-all tie in the first game of a scheduled double-header in Memorial Arena last night. Legion now has six points with the Rockets trailing with five. In the second game of the picture, the Campbellford team drew into a second-place tie with Trenton and Stirling in "B" section when they defeated the luckless Tweed squad by a 7-1 count.

Rockets 3, Napanee 3

Bolstered with a new goalkeeper LaFort, the Rockets divided territorial honors with the loop-leading Napanee squad in a closely fought hard-checking game in the first game of the twin bill. There has been better hockey games played in league as Napanee appeared to be a bit off color and the youthful Rockets with a shake-up in the lineup were a bit too anxious at times and missed several scoring opportunities.

The squads battled on even terms for thirteen minutes in the first period with both goalies getting severe tests from the opposing sharpshooters. Walt Gerow got the first of his two goals of the night when he took McPherson's pass from close in and beat LaFort cleanly.

Rockets flew back to the attack, swarmed around the Napanee net and Hurst finally evened the count ramming home Don Seamark's pass at the fifteen minute mark. They added another two-minutes later when Angy DeFelice first line centre took J. Semark's flip from about ten feet out.

DeFelice gave the Rockets a two-goal lead with the kids having a decided edge in the play with about three minutes to go in the second period. The slim centre ranged down the right boards and slipped a pass to Bone who tobied it back near the goalmouth and DeFelice made no mistake.

The Legion took over matters in the third period, ramming home two goals in ten seconds just after the clock signified seven minutes of play. Gerow whistled down centre ice flanked by B. Jackson, slipped him a pass, and rounded the defence to take the relay to score. Seconds later on a ganging attack with Legion players swarming around the Rockets net, Markle swooped a loose puck into the rigging to tie matters up.

The teams fought hard for the winning counter, and the Rockets suffering through three penalties in this period, were hard put to stave off the Legion forwards. They held the bridge successfully and the teams skated off even-stephen.

Campbellford 7, Tweed 1

Paced by Peloquin and Blake, the Campbellford squad had no trouble defeating the winless Tweed team although in all fairness to the losers, they should have had three or four goals but their weakness around the nets when opportunity offered plus the good work of Donald in the winners' nets, led to the one-sided score.

After a fairly even first period when Campbellford scored twice with goals by Peloquin and Blake the Tweed squad resorted to ganging attacks that led to frequent breakaways on the part of the winners. They were caught flatfooted on several occasions and the Campbellford forwards raced in on Courneyea who played an outstanding game despite the fact seven markers were racked up against him.

Tweed got their only goal of the game midway through the second period when Leale fired the rubber home on a pass from Rashotte. Hendy got that one back six minutes later, and for the remainder of the period the ganging Tweed forwards were constantly outlucked, or missed the net in their four and five-man forays.

Tweed continued their massed plays in the third period and Campbellford took full advantage scoring no less than four times without a return from the Hastings County lads. Peloquin, Pettigrew scored in the first six minutes with the latter's shot from a difficult angle deflecting off the goalkeeper's skate into the net. Hendy got the third marker on a long hard drive and Robinson added the fourth on a pass from Blake who got three assists in the period.

Tweed fought desperately to cut down the lead, but were ineffective around the nets, and missed several opportunities.

Peloquin, Blake, Hendy and West looked the best for the winners with Stew Stewart, Leale, Rashotte and Gehan standing out for the Tweed crew.

Gnup May Not Coach Hamilton Team Next Year

(By The Canadian Press)

Frank Gnup, former Manhattan College star, left yesterday for New York, indicating he might not coach Hamilton Wildcats in the Ontario Rugby Football Union race next summer.

"Right now I am looking over a job in the United States and if it is as good as I think it is I will just return to Hamilton to say goodbye to my friends and pull out again for New York," said the popular Gnup.

He admitted a report that Jim McCaffery of Ottawa Rough Riders had asked him by telephone if he was interested in coaching that Big Four squad next fall. "What I told him was my own business but I will tell you that Mr. McCaffery will see me when I return in about 10 days."

Australia's Olympic games team will take a double ration of food to London next year. Half will be for its own use and the other half for British competitors at the games.

The secretary of a special subcommittee of the Australian Olympic Federation, formed to cater for all food needs of the Australian and British teams, said that Britain had been asked to give details of the foods most urgently needed by British athletes and the reply was meat, fats, milk, cheese, eggs, fruit and sugar in that order.

Talk of a composite big six league, a hardy annual pipe dream in Toronto, was revived last night as Toronto Rugby Football Union officials gazed longingly at the stuffed wallets of the Big Four League.

The latest suggestion for a merger of the two senior circuits came from Irvin (Butch) Taylor, Secretary of Toronto Indians, who he reported had dropped $16,000 in operating through their O.R.F.U. season. He visualized this setup. All the Big Four teams—Argos Montreal Alouettes, Hamilton Tigers and Ottawa Rough Riders—plus two O.R.F.U. clubs—Hamilton Wildcats and a merged entry from his Indians and Toronto Balmy Beach.

Gilbert Dodds, one of the world's great trackmen, yesterday won the 37th annual six-mile cross country run at Cincinnati for the fourth consecutive time. His time was 29 minutes, 44 seconds, just 12 seconds behind the course record he set a year ago.

International Rifle Club marksmen downed the Barrons Rifle Club 992-979 in Kent County small arms competitions at Chatham last night.

A reasonable facsimile of the Windsor Rockets who played in the senior O.R.F.U. this season dropped a close 21-18 decision to Bay City Blazers in an American football tilt at the Michigan city yesterday. Several Windsor A.K.O. junior players were added to the Rockets roster.

NEW USE FOR WEASLES

The Pas, Man. — (CP)— Fishermen and game wardens believe they have found the answer to their transportation problems in the "weasle," a tracked, amphibious vehicle used by the United States Army both in the European and Pacific theatres of war. The weasle, which can traverse swamps, may replace tractors now used to haul freight sleds.

ST. PAUL SAINTS UP NEAR TOP

(By The Associated Press)

A scoring burst that has added five points to Hal Brown's individual total in two games is keeping St. Paul Saints in a challenging position for the northern division lead in the United States Hockey League.

The St. Paul winger scored 3 goals last night as the Saints won from Omaha Knights 8-6. The previous night he scored a goal and marked up an assist as he was helping the Saints to a 4-3 victory over Kansas City Pla-Mors.

In the only other game, Dallas Texans managed a 2-2 overtime tie at Tulsa. Tulsa scored twice in the first period, with defenceman Eddie Young getting the first counter and Doug McMurdy coming back for the second less than a minute later. The Knights scored once in the second and again in the third.

No games are scheduled tonight

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Nov. 28. (AP)— Friday's forecasts: the Army football team will dispose of the Navy handily, though by no big margin, at Philly tomorrow . . . A rip-snorting finish like last year's just can't happen again and this observer figures the Cadets have more strength through the middle than Navy's heralded line . . . Next week's Joe Louis-Jersey Joe Walcott fight will be a sellout (proving that it takes more than a few black eyes to hurt the boxing business) and that Louis will apply the crusher in four rounds or less. . . A quick look at each heavyweight indicates that Jersey Joe is in excellent physical condition but can't fight in the same league with the camp.

BLUE BOMBERS BELIEVE THEY CAN WHIP ARGOS

Winnipeg Team Taking Day's Rest Before Coming to Toronto Saturday

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 28. (CP)— On the record of past performances, the future looked dim today for Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Saturday's Dominion Football final—but try to tell that to a Bomber team crisply confident of upsetting the highly favored Toronto Argonauts.

You'd never think the Bombers had heard of the Dominion Champions, victors in every one of seven meetings between the two teams, as they headed for a visit to Niagara Falls. Their week-long workouts at Hamilton over, it was to be a full day of rest for the Grey Cup Challengers before coming to Toronto, Saturday morning.

Despite the 3-1 odds quoted against Bombers, making them one of the longest priced teams in years of East-West finals, Coach Jack West noted that there was "plenty of confidence in the camp" and added: "Victory for my team would not be at all surprising."

The affable, middle-aged mentor from North Dakota, coaching his second season with Bombers, may have been taking into account the weatherman's prediction of a "brisk" day for the final with the possibility of a hard, fast field—the kind the Bombers said they wanted.

But he seemed to be gloating over the 35-0 and 28-6 defeats that Argos handed Bombers in winning their last two Grey cups and the 19-6 and 11-0 Argos victories in pre-season exhibition games this year.

There was another factor to be reckoned with—the intense pride taken by the Argos in extending their record to three straight titles. That would tie the consecutive string of three Grey cups set by the great Queen's University teams of 1922-23-24 and give Argos their eighth Dominion title, more than any other team in the history of Canadian Rugby Union playoffs.

Although this is the 17th game for Argos, the team looked as fresh as at the start of the season as it raced through a short signals drill last night, their second-last practice.

BASKETBALL

Basketball took the spotlight last night at the Y.M.C.A. when, in the House League the Dodgers nosed the All-Stars 27-25 in the best game of the season. At half time the Dodgers led 20-13, then the All-Stars fought back only to lose in the dying minutes of the game on two costly fouls by Buchanan. Dodgers made full use of them, sinking both to win the game. Not only did the All-Stars lose the game, but also lost their last hopes at gaining a chance in the playoffs. Maurice Rollins showed the way for winners netting 10 points and for the losers it was Saunders with ten.

In the second game of the double feature the Monarchs bowed to the Rough Riders 27-21 in another hard fought tussle. At half time the Monarchs trailed by one point 11-10. In the second half the winners began to hit their stride when Lloyd Faulkner found the basket to pile up ten points, the highest of his team. Sid Spiegel led the Monarchs with six.

Playoffs to Follow

Next Wednesday brings down the curtain on the fall schedule of the House League, with the playoffs to follow the week after. If the Monarchs can hold the Dodgers when they come together in the first game next week, they may have a chance at the playoffs. This game starts at 6:30 and it should be worth while for a few basketball fans in the city to come out and help the boys along. Remember there is no charge for these games.

In the night cap the Rough Riders will be trying hard to make sure the Monarchs won't catch them, when they take on on the All-Stars at 7:15

First Game

All-Stars — Saunders, 10; Buchanan, 7; Burke; Jeffreys, 6; Dolan; Burshaw; Kelley, 2. Total 25.

Man Who Returned To Kiss Girl Arrested

Toronto, Nov. 28 — (CP)—Employed at the right time, the kiss may be no more than a polite gesture of appreciation but occasionally it can be legally defined as common assault.

That was the attitude police took as they arrested a 48-year-old man after a stenographer complained that the man had entered the lunchroom of her office and kissed her on the neck—she ducked when she saw him coming.

The catch was that the girl said she never saw him before. The man returned to the office the next day and found police waiting for him.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

What happens to you in a bridge game is generally what you deserve. If a result is bad it is either a fault of your pair or the virtue of an opponent.

Your bidding may be correct. Your partner may fit with you like a glove. Your foresight may be wise. Your tactics may be clever. And an opponent may upset you with an insignificant but telling lead.

It was in this deal:

♠5
♥7 3
♦9 5 4
♣A K Q J 10 6 2

WEST
♠K 7 2
♥K J 2
♦K J 7 6 3
♣7 5

EAST
♠8 3
♥Q 10 5
♦A Q 10 8 2
♣9 8 3

SOUTH
♠A Q J 10 9 6 4
♥A 9 8 6 4
♦None
♣4

Our bidding went like this:

South	North
Pass	3 C
4 NT	5 H
6 S	Pass

My opening pass was just one of those judgment things. My four no-trump is the ace and king asker. Five hearts is Kibitzer convention signal for showing one ace and one king.

A trump loser in spades was expected if a finesse in that suit failed to work. The three club opening by partner told me of a solid seven carder. My lone club was an entry to it. On the rest of his clubs could be slufed all my south small hearts.

This picture was clear to me before seeing his dummy hand and at the time of my small slam spade bid. Even my partner in the north seat chuckled with confidence as he prepared to spread his hand.

Then came the lead from west. You can guess by now what it was. It was a club. With the lead of that club went all my hopes of taking my 12 needed tricks.

The club lead killed my only entry to dummy after opponent trumps are pulled. It spoiled my only chance of sluffing the south losers in hearts.

Now I know how it feels to have the bottom drop out.

Providence Reds Serving Notice On Rest of Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Providence Reds are serving notice these days that Hershey and Pittsburg are not the only teams in the American Hockey League and well they might, for the high-flying Reds are now only one point back of Bears, the eastern division leaders.

The Reds added their latest victory last night by brushing aside the troublesome Washington Lions 7-5. Meanwhile Hershey and Hornets battled to a 5-5, stalemate, aiding Reds to all but reach the top of the ladder.

In other games played last night Cleveland whipped Springfield Indians 7-2 while Buffalo's charging Bisons edged New Haven 4-3.

Veteran Carl Liscombe, former National Hockey League star with Detroit Red Wings, paced the Providence attack with a pair of goals while Edward (Whitey) Prokop, Harvey Fraser, Maurice Arcand, Pete Kaputsa and Ed Stanley each picked up one. Bill Wilson, Jack Portland, Harvey Raney, Bob Carr-Harris and Don Shultz bulged the twine for fourth-place Lions.

Hershey ran up a 4-0 lead but the Wasps from Pittsburgh fought back to finally earn a tie. Peanuts O'Flaherty rammed home the tying counter and other Pittsburgh goal-getters were Syd Smith, Armand Lemiux, Les Costello and Jackie Hamilton. Hershey goals were picked up by Gordon Bruce, Paul Ronty, Mark Marquess, Jack McGill and Herbie Cain.

AT THE BELLE — Belleville's favorite comedian, Billy DeWolfe, Betty Hutton and John Lund co-star in the big Technicolor musical fun-show, "The Perils of Pauline," at the Belle Today and Saturday, with the official Royal Wedding pictures.

AT THE CAPITOL — Raymond Hatton and star Johnny Mack Brown are on the alert for an outlaw disturbance in "Silver Range," Monogram's newest western film, now at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program Alan Ladd in "Calcutta."

AT THE McCARTHY — Hazel Brooks, the "talk of Hollywood," makes her film debut in "Body and Soul," the Enterprise Studios' picture which United Artists is releasing. Co-starring John Garfield and Lilli Palmer, "Body and Soul," opens today at the McCarthy Theatre. Its star cast includes many recruits from stage and radio.

CHAPTER 8.

"Kay—I know you love me as I love you. Ask yourself again, my sweet, and do not make the mistake of marrying for something other than love.

"I suspect I have guessed your reason. But I shall finally make good, Kay. If you had faith in me, you would belive that. The new factory is nearly completed, nearly ready to begin operation. After that I shall be ready to take on greater responsibilities. Think what that means, darling.

"There is no love in the world so deep as ours.

"Think it over—and call me.

"Your own,
"Chuck"

Kay sat up stiffly, Chuck's letter still in her hand. She repeated, "No love in the world so deep as ours."

Ah! But what had Chuck done—what had he done to that love? She must fling this man out of her life, out of her very thoughts.

Breathlessly Kay tore the sheet of City Club stationery into shreds. She got up, hurried to the fireplace, laid them on the hearth and touched a match to them.

She stood before the quick blaze, watching the bits of paper turn gray-black. She took up the poker and stirred them into fine powder, then drew up tautly. There was yet more torture to be borne this night. She must go through with it, not let down.

She dragged herself over to the telephone dialed Chuck's hotel and asked for him.

His "Hello!" sounded like that of a man to whom time was precious.

"It's Kay," she informed him quickly. "I—I—"

"Kay!" It was an exclamation of relief. "I'm so glad to hear from you. I had given up seeing you before I left and now—"

"You're leaving—you're going away?" she asked stupidly.

"Yes flying to New York within an hour. Like to come along?"

She was trembling so violently she could not reply for the moment. He was—running away? from—what?

"Kay, dear—are you there?"

"Oh—oh, yes," she wavered. "Do you—must you go just now?"

"Yes. It's strictly business. Mr. Wilmore wired me today. It's about the new Bingo factory. I wrote you a note but—" He hesitated.

"The mail didn't bring any note from you," she said pointedly.

"To be truthful—I didn't mail it. I—I lost it. I hope it won't get you into any sort of jam, Kay."

Lost it? How well she realized that!

She tried to ask calmly, "Where did you lose it?"

"Darned if I know—that's the worst of it."

"How unfortunate."

"Yes—very—because it was a very personal note. I said things that might prove—incriminating —if certain people got hold of it."

"Incriminating?" she breathed, horrified. Immediately, she thought again, "And he's getting out of town!"

"Yes. It was foolish of me to hope you'd change your mind—about Blare. How I've hated the fellow! If you only could know, Kay, how torn with misery I've been how desperate—you'd forgive me for—"

"No—never!" she flared passionately. "There are some things unforgivable—and unforgettable!"

"I—see." He was convinced then as the receiver banged in his ear, that his impulsively written words had been found, that she had received the note through some embarrassing source, and was furiously provoked at him.

He slumped to the edge of the bed, held his head in his hands, trying to think. Then abruptly he sprang up remembering that he must be on that New York plane. Wilmore would be expecting him.

So it was not until after his arrival in New York that Chuck Nourse learned, through the newspapers, of Hennington Blare's murder. His first impulse was to return to Kay, but business connected with the establishment of the new Deweyton factory held him for a week.

During that time, a great many things changed for Kay. She received many telegrams, special delivery and air—mail letters from Cora, honeymooning in South America. Cora was so sorry not to be able to come back to Deweyton, but she and Horace were sending Kay extra checks. She told Kay to get away and forget all about the horrible affair. Through all her messages, however, Kay detected a note of relief. Now at least her mother would have nothing to fuss about so far as Hennington Blare was concerned. Kay smiled bitterly whenever she thought of this. Little her mother knew of the dilemma now confronting her only child, and it would be cruel to ruin her present happiness by telling her. No—she would keep her own counsel.

Kay was now flanked on all sides by the unwelcome attention of Webb Taylor's family. Throughout the ordeal of Henn's funeral, Webb's mother, his father and Webb himself strove to make the experience less trying. Mrs. Taylor, having long desired Kay for a daughter-in-law, now could not do enough for her, and her husband, admiring Kay's beauty of face and character, was equally as well pleased and doing all within his power to promote the match. After the proper period of mourning, he expected to talk things over with her, and settle a goodly income on his only son, over whom he had worried for too many years.

At first all this was only vaguely apparent to Kay, but as the days wore on, she became cognizant of their wishes and was sorry she must disappoint them. No self-respecting woman would choose the irresponsible Webb for a husband.

But unexpectedly Webb had changed his ways. He had cut down remarkably on his drinking. Whether he was doing this to impress her favorably or feared that in some heavy alcoholic moment he might reveal their dreadful secret and thus become entangled in the affair himself, Kay could not determine.

The police had been busy unraveling every thread in the Blare murder mystery, but as yet seemed to have no solution. That they would, eventually, was Kay's constant dread. Often in the night she would awaken and lie sleepless for long frightened hours, too tortured by fear of what might happen to Chuck Nourse to close her eyes. Trying to expel him from her mind was useless.

When the police decided they no longer needed to question Kay, she told Aimee to pack her trunks. She would go to Lake George before Chuck returned to town, and thus escape another unpleasant telephone conversation or actual visit from him.

But Webb Taylor was not so easy to handle. When he discovered her plans, he announced he was accompanying her. He had never met Gloria Sherman, so could not barge into her father's camp as guest, but he could stay at a nearby hotel. Webb's father owner of a chain of pharmacies, had given Webb a more or less honorary position in the firm. This required his occasional presence in the Deweyton office, but now that Webb's attention centered around Kay, his father was so pleased that he excused him from further duty until fall.

Immortal Nijinsky Back in Bloomsbury

London, Nov. 28 — (CP)—The Immortal Nijinsky is here — rediscovering Bloomsbury with slow, faltering steps.

Nijinsky, greatest ballet dancer of all time, spent the war years in Switzerland, a victim of mental illness.

"To him it seems like coming home," said Romula Nijinsky of their present visit to London. Romula ran away at 16 to marry Nijinski and comforted him through 26 years of affliction.

The one-time great, unlikely ever to dance in public again, sometimes still dances for friends when in a "good mood," Romula said.

The couple plan to live at a quiet Surrey home.

'Dry' Drayton Votes To Continue 'Dry'

Guelph, Nov. 28 — (CP)—The town of Drayton voted "dry" in a plebiscite held Wednesday to maintain the ban against sale of beer in the community's two hotels. The town has been dry for the past seven years.

Two separate ballots were presented, one for men's beverage rooms, the other for women's. Sale of beer to women was defeated by a 224-to-150 vote, and although 190 persons voted for men's beverage rooms — with 189 against — the 190 failed to gain the three-fifths majority required to carry the vote.

All Now Have Better Chance Of Reaching Ripe Old Age, Woman's Chances Better Than Man's

By GEORGE KITCHEN

Ottawa, Nov. 28 (CP) — You may not know this, but right this minute you have a better chance of living to a ripe old age than you did, say, 10 years ago.

And, if you're a woman, you'll likely live longer than if you were a man.

And finally, if you live on the Canadian Prairies, your chances of reaching the bay-window racket are better than those of Canadians living elsewhere in this broad Dominion.

Confusing? Maybe. But it must be right. The statistics say so, and statistics have a habit of proving to be uncomfortably—in this case comfortably—right. At least, we can't prove them wrong.

These life-and-death gems turned up today from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, which put its calculators to work delving into the intricacies of the Canadian life span on the basis of the 1931 and 1941 census and mortality of 1940-42.

They found, for instance, that the expectation of life in Canada increased by three years for men and more than four years for women during the 10 year period Just why the women have the edge on the so-called stronger sex is something the staticians don't explain.

At birth, males have a prospect of 62.96 years of future life now as against around 60 years in 1931, while females can look forward to 66.30 years, compared with 62.10 a decade ago.

If you're 20, and a woman, you can expect to live another 51.76 years, jumping right into the 70's, while formerly you could expect only another 49-odd years of life. The 20-year-old male has also moved ahead, though he still trails the women. His expectancy is for another 49.57 years of life against 49.5 in 1931.

Going into the higher brackets 60 and 70-year-old women are still adding months and days to their future, but the men are taking a beating. By another unexplained mystery of statistics, their life span has dropped until the 70-year-oldster can expect only another 9.94 years of life against 10.06 average in 1931.

The statistics prove too, that the prairies, with their broad and open spaces are the best place to live. Western baby boys, for example, will live to be 65.43 some five years longer than their Quebec brother, whose expectancy is placed at 60.18 years.

In Ontario, the male expectancy is 64.55, British Columbia 63.65 and the Maritime Provinces 61.69.

On paper there's quite a tussle between the girls being born in the prairies, Ontario and B.C. They all can expect to live to be 68, but the B.C. girls have a fractional margin on those of the other two provinces. In the Maritimes, the expectancy is 64.63 and in Quebec 63.07.

And aren't you glad you don't live in India?

The expectancy there is 26.9 years for boys and 26.6 for girls.

Supplying basic chemicals to the Canadian market

Chemical products valued at some $100,000,000 are imported into Canada each year. A number of these hitherto imported chemicals are now being produced in Canada by Standard Chemical Company, Limited. Further, plans are going forward to produce several other chemicals, formerly imported, for which there is an important demand.

This progressive policy — a policy which is high-lighted by current import restrictions — is reflected in improved sales and earnings. Profits are showing substantial gains and dividend requirements on the preferred stock are being earned more than three times over.

CALM AT NEWS OF HUBBY'S DEED

Doris Haight (left), 26-year-old British war bride who holds year-old daughter, Susan, expressed wifely concern but refused to become excited in Denver, Col., when informed her ex-G.I. husband, Russell Haight (right), was leading a band of Moslem guerrillas in India's religious war. Haight was said to be the only white man participating in the bitter warfare between Moslem tribesmen and Royal Indian forces along the Kashmir border. Mrs. Haight explained, "Russell went to Afghanistan last August to take a surveying job,"," admitting further she was "not too pleased" at the news.

Christmas Food in Plenty But It Will Run High

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada's Christmas dinner tables will groan this year under their greatest weight of toothsome holiday foods in six years and the kiddies will have plenty of candy. But there's one drawback to this picture of a country fully recovered from war shortages—the family breadwinner will have to dig deep to pay for it.

Store shelves are a mouth-watering delight with imports from all parts of the world as well as Canadian delicacies.

With the government's new policy of restriction of imports to help the national economy this may be the last year for some time for such an array. The present supplies were in Canadian warehouses before the restrictions were announced.

Prices are lowest in the Maritimes, where they remain at much the same level as last year, and are highest in British Columbia, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

Ontario and Quebec, with prices somewhat higher than last year and the most varied supply of goodies, will probably sit down to the most lavish dinners.

This year there is no need for the austerity wartime Christmas recipes which requires little butter and sugar and substituted Canadian-grown currants for exotic fruits, peel, raisins and dates.

This Christmas cooks can use all the butter and sugar they want—if they have the price.

There is a rich supply of puddings and cakes and adequate quantities of their ingredients for those who prefer to make their own. But with fewer housewives prepared to assume the work on making a complicated Christmas pudding—and with suet on the hard-to-get list— most families will be eating the prepared puddings which have used up most of the candied peel, raisins and preserved fruit the recipes require.

Shops selling candy and chocolates report adequate stocks in all sections, but prices have risen double over last year in some cases. Nut supplies, on the other hand, are both ample and almost unchanged in price.

Cranberries are in good supply in the West and are coming onto the market in other sections. Turkeys have not yet appeared in quantity, but wholesalers say there will be no shortage.

Japanese oranges, which the war removed from Canadian tables, are reappearing in British Columbia and Alberta. Mincemeat is in good supply.

A family could sit down, if they wished, to a lavish meal of American fruit cup. French shrimps, French green trutle soup. Canadian turkey with American oyster dressing, Canadian cranberry sauce, vegetables, salad and relishes, English plum pudding with French brandy sauce, and top it off with Arabian coffee, American and French bonbons, English fruit cake, raisins and dates from the Near East and grapes from California. And it would probably cost them as much as $7 each if they had good appetites.

Or they could do just about as well on the staples—turkey with sage dressing, vegetables, salad, plum pudding—and finish off with coffee, chocolates and fruit cake —all produced or packed in Canada and home-cooked for not more than a dollar each. The same meal in a restaurant promises to cost about $3.

Ontario has ample supplies and stores are displaying delicacies almost forgotten during the war. The only bar to buying is the price, which, on all but staples, is high.

WarehouseBurned At Copetown Loss $75,000

Copetown, Ont., Nov. 28—(CP) —An early morning fire believed caused by defective wiring today completely destroyed the feed and fuel warehouse of C. L. Harris in this town 15 miles west of Hamilton, causing damage estimated at $75,000. The loss is only partly covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered by the wife of the proprietor, when she looked out a window of their nearby home at 1 a.m.

"When I saw these first flames," Mrs. Harris said, "I knew the whole thing was gone. Fire fighting equipment out here couldn't cope with anything like that."

Five thousand bushels of grain were lost in the warehouse, of frame and galvanized iron construction. A railway box car on the feed company's siding was badly damaged and most of the 2,000 bushels of oats inside it destroyed.

Volunteer firemen from Greensville and Lynden responded and managed to save the office building, although it was in the path of the wind-swept flames.

George Whitehead, contractor, who had just completed a new addition to the mill, was overcome by smoke and suffered a heart seizure.

Low Black Clouds Black Out Kingston

Kingston, Nov. 28 —(CP) — Heavy low-lying black clouds driven by a strong south east wind blacked out Kingston between 8:20 and 8:30 a.m. today. The city was in total darkness except for lights in houses and some stores until the public utilities commission turned on all street lights. Motorists had to use their headlights.

Some rain and snow fell during the freak storm.

"NERVES" She Called It

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves", she thought—but it was her kidneys—the filters of her blood—that needed attention. She used Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, backache, headache, lack of energy disappeared. Dodd's Kidney Pills contain essential oils and medicinal ingredients that act directly upon the kidneys—and help restore their normal action. 144

Schuman Asks Wider Powers To Crack Strikes

Claims Trouble Caused By Foreign Elements

Paris, Nov. 29 (AP).—Premier Robert Schuman asked the National Assembly today for power to crack down on agitators for strikes or sabotage "by speeches, writing or tracts".

He said he wanted this right for six months time as he pleaded for power to help him fight a strangling wave of Communist-inspired strikes throughout France.

The assembly's committee on civil and criminal law immediately approved the government bills, 26 to 13, and sent them to the assembly, which is expected to consider them later in the day.

Approval would give the government a weapon against newspapers encouraging the strikes which have made more than 2,000,000 French workers idle.

Government employees found guilty of "agitation" would be dismissed under the measures. Key industries, including electric power, railroads and wire communications, are nationalized and their employees work for the government.

The powers asked by Schuman would run from tomorrow until to May 31, 1948.

In demanding "complete revision" of the laws on sabotage, he took cognizance of yesterday's reports that sabotage was on the increase and declared:

"If we have reached this point, the responsibility belongs to the Communists."

Speaking directly to the Communists in the Assembly, the premier, beginning his second week in office, charged:

"I declare that your goal is to create excitement in the country, it is against this that the government must contend."

Rear Protests

He said the trouble was being caused more and more by foreign elements. Protests roared from the Communist benches.

As Schuman spoke, more than a third of France's 6,000,000 organized workers were on strike and government forces were ejecting strikers from rail centres and other strongholds they had seized.

Schuman also asked the assembly to reorganize part of the French security forces and to pass a new law giving added protection to non-strikers.

The security forces whose reorganization was asked by Schuman were the Republican Security Companies—similar to the U.S. National Guard — among whose widespread sympathy for the strikers has been reported. Whole companies already have been disbanded on this ground.

Attacks Communists

Schuman attacked the Communists again and again.

In the course of his speech he said it would be necessary to take "measures of mobilization", but he did not explain what he had in mind. Earlier, some sources said the cabinet wanted power to requisition or conscript workers.

The Communist labor chief, Benoit Franchon, published in the Communist newspaper L'Humanite today an appeal to "the whole of the non-striking population" to "come to the aid of those who are fighting". There were broad hints from other sources of plans for an all-out general strike for Monday.

Police Strengthened

And while police and the armed forces, the latter strengthened yesterday by the addition of 80,000 more men, moved against strikers holding seized premises and against reported sabotage, labor foes of the Communist leadership in the General Confederation of Labor (C.G.T.) took steps to set up a rival National Federation of Trade Unions pledged to a "back-to-work" drive.

At St. Etienne, six truckloads of Republican Security Companies moved in on the railroad depot and cleared the station and platform of strikers. The strikers retreated but some were reported holding out in the roundhouse.

In Paris, police cleared all the capital's seven main railway terminals except the Lyon station, where strikers remained. Previously, in some cases, passengers had to be carried by bus to out-of-town stations to board the few trains still running.

Some scattered sabotage was reported. At La Villete, Cambrai and Avesnes "runaway" locomotives roared down the tracks with throttles open, telescoping two freight cars in one case. At Nanterre and Vanves, overhead high tension cables were short-circuited.

19-Year-Old Girl Is Shot to Death In Montreal

Montreal, Nov. 29 — (CP)—As Montreal recorded its second "love" slaying in three days, police announced that an inquest into the latest killing will probably be held.

Thursday night, shortly before midnight, Therese Heroux, 19, was shot to death in the living room of her east-end home. Police are holding Armand Barthelot, 30, as a material witness pending result of the inquest into the story-book slaying.

Tuesday night 34-year-old Mrs. Tillie Deprato was strangled by her lover, taxi-driver Sylvio Albert, 34, of Ottawa who later tried to commit suicide by slashing his wrists. A coroner's jury found Albert criminally responsible for the woman's death.

The story that police pieced together was not clear as yet. However they said that the dead girl was a sister of Barthelot's wife who died three months ago.

Police reported that Barthelot visited the girl's house early Thursday night and found her with her steady boy friend. He told her parents he was going to get some liquor and would return later.

When he came back several hours later he appeared to be under the influence of liquor, police said, and produced a revolver.

The four — the girl, her parents and boy friend — thought it was a joke when Barthelot proceeded to go through the motions of emptying the chamber of bullets.

Police said the family still thought nothing of it when he walked up to Miss Heroux and placed the revolver against her temple. Then he suddenly squeezed the trigger and the girl dropped to the floor.

Skull Fracture In Brawl Causes Man's Death

Montreal, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Montrealers were startled today to learn of the third violent death in the city this week with the death of 50-year-old Vitalean Viau, who succumbed early today from a fractured skull sustained in a drunken brawl on east-end Adam Street.

Police detained Charles Desjardins, 31, as a material witness. He will appear before a coroner's inquest today.

Police said that the victim and Desjardins engaged in a drunken fight shortly after midnight in which both men hit each other with several blows. On arrival at police headquarters, Desjardins was suffering from minor head injuries.

He was unable to give detectives a clear picture of what had occurred, but said that he could recall having an argument with someone. He was unable to give the cause of the argument and was unable to say where he had met Viau.

Passersby found Viau lying in an unconscious state on the street and notified police, who had the victim removed to his nearby home where he soon died.

Detectives combed the taverns and bars in the immediate vicinity in the hope of picking up some clue which might lead them to the cause of the fight and possible witnesses.

Last Monday night, Tillie Deprato, 34-year-old divorcee, was strangled in a northend rooming house by a confessed jealous lover, who was apprehended Wednesday while attempting to commit suicide.

Thursday night, 19-year-old Therese Heroux was shot through the head by Armand Berthelot, 30, a widower of three months.

LEFTISTS WIN CONCESSIONS OFF ITALIAN GOVT.

Perfect Will Stay on For the Time Being

By FRANK O'BRIEN

Rome, Nov. 29 — (AP)—Leftist organizations, which almost vaulted to power in the city and province of Milan yesterday during a bitter and forcible protest against replacement of Milan's prefect, wrested from the government today a promise that the prefect would stay on for the time being.

A communique issued from the prefect's office in Milan said a national government representative who hurried from Rome to handle the situation had arrived at an agreement with the Leftists under which they promised to call off a general strike protesting the removal of the leftist prefect, Ettore Trollo.

A communique issued in Milan by the government representative Achille Marazza, under-secretary of the interior, said Marazza had "made amends . . . for the way in which the announcement (of Trollo's transfer) was made, acknowledging that it first should have gone to the interested party."

The agreement, both announcements said, included dropping the man the government had named to replace Trollo, Vincenzo Ciotola, now the prefect of Turin.

In a statement to the Italian news agency Ansa, Marazza said he talked with all parties concerned and was in position to supply the Rome government with information on which to base the choice of a new prefect—presumably one suitable to the leftist "citizens' committee" which all but seized control of Milan yesterday in its vehement protests.

A crowd of approximately 4,000 demonstrators outside the prefecture had been kept at that figure through the long hours of negotiations by relays of trucks which brought replacements for those who tired. The crowd melted away slowly in the cold and snowy night.

The agreement came at 4:30 a.m., long hours after a citizens' committee suddenly materialized, partisans and mobs numbering several thousands took to the streets and a general strike was called to protest a government announcement that Trollo was to be removed — at his own request, the announcement said.

Demonstrations, barricades and work stoppages effectively tied up Milan, Italy's second largest city.

Chinese Reds Hold Initiative Say Observers

Nanking, Nov. 29 — (AP) — Neutral observers said today that Chinese communists hold the initiative over the National government on every battlefront in China's widespread Civil War. Reports from the fronts appeared to bear them out.

These observers agreed that unless Chiang Kai-Shek's new program of establishing high commands over battle areas provides quick results, the Yangtze River valley itself may come under serious communist attack.

Failure of government efforts to oust wily red Gen. Liu Po-Cheng from north of the Yangtze led to the belief his southern march was part of a long-range communist plan to establish a major base in the Taipeh mountains of the Anhwei-Hupeh border. Such a base could be used in a push against the heart of Chiang's territory — the rich, vital Yangtze valley.

Storm Lashes South Florida

Miami, Nov. 29 — (AP) — A post-season storm, born in a squall wave, lashed south Florida and the Florida Keys last night with winds up to 65 miles an hour, but caused no major damage.

Key West suffered most from the blow as gusts up to 86 miles an hour sank about 20 small boats, uprooted trees and battered signs and awnings.

At the Boca Chica naval air station the wind tore a navy blimp with four men aboard from its mooring, ripped open the gas bag and dashed it against the runway. Its four crew members escaped unhurt.

CBC Board Hears Applications For New Stations

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 29. (CP)—The CBC Board of Governors at a public meeting today began hearing oral representations from applicants for licences for new radio stations.

First to be heard at the meeting, the second to be held in public since the CBC was founded in 1936, was B. T. Richardson, editor of The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, who spoke on behalf of Saskatoon Broadcasters Limited.

He said the company consisted of himself and R. M. Cantlon, publisher of the Star-Phoenix. They wanted to establish a 250-watt station at Saskatoon.

A. A. Murphy, operator of CFQC Saskatoon opposed the application on the grounds that a second radio station was not needed to serve the area.

Mr. Richardson said the Station could operate without any network affiliation. Considerable time could be devoted to local events and to encouraging local participation in radio.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the Board, asked if it would be fair to say "in plain language" that the Station would be controlled by the Sifton interests.

Mr. Richardson said he and Mr Cantlon would operate the station but the capital would come from those interests.

Mr. Dunton said that while Mr. Cantlon and Mr. Richardson would operate the Station the controlling shares would be held by the Sifton interests which already had two stations in Regina, and one in Winnipeg while holding an interest in a Hamilton Station.

Mr. Richardson said it was planned to operate the Saskatoon Station as a community one, with local management and without any tie-up with any other Station.

Mr. Murphy read a brief outlining how he had built up CFQC from a small Station to a 5,000-watt Station. He said in his brief he did not think Saskatoon was large enough to support two Stations. CFQC was already carrying CBC Dominion Network programs.

Mr. Richardson said he and Mr. Cantlon were not basing their application on criticism of CFQC. The Saskatoon broadcasters felt there was room for another Station. They felt there was a field for developing and increasing listeners.

Failure of U.S. Wheat Crop Always Threat

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 29 (CP) — A seldom discussed but ever-present danger lurks in the background of all international planning for feeding the hungry — failure of the United States wheat crop.

A United States crop failure, coincident with a Canadian failure would strike a staggering blow to the people depending so heavily on cereals from this continent.

A kindly providnce has given the American farmer seven years of abundance which have enabled him to feed his own and a great many foreign consumers through the war and the precarious two years of peace.

This year brought a record wheat crop of 1,400,000,000 bushels and there was a carry-over of 88,000,000 bushels from last year.

With all that there is a deficiency in the amount available to export to countries on near-starvation diet of cereals.

Spurred by the necessity of maintaining the flow of foodstuffs to the armies abroad, with all the loss and wastage inevitable in wartime, the American farmer, like the Canadian farmer, worked wonders.

By utilizing all the scientific and mechanical aids to efficient production the farmer left as little as possible to chance but the fact remains that he was favored by nature.

All the existing scientific advances cannot avert crop failure as was proven this year when the corn crop dropped 884,000,000 bushels from the 3,200,000,000-bushel record crop of 1946.

It is too early to say what next year's crop will be but experts prophesy that wheat alone will be down below 1,000,000,000 bushels.

Such a crop would not allow any export and would require reductions on some of the normal allotments for domestic use.

As a matter of fact the carry-over last year was only 88,000,000 bushels, and this year it is contemplated this will be doubled, but still far below what is considered safe and normal.

That is why the top-planners here are studying methods of increasing supply of farm production machinery for the shortage countries to hasten the day when they can be self-sufficient to a degree at least as great as before the war.

Weather Synopsis

Elsewhere throughout Southern Ontario clear cold weather is expcted for Sunday.

BIG FOUR MAY FAIL IN QUEST FOR PEACE TREATY

Ministers Still Without Agreement on Issues

London, Nov. 29 (AP).—Russia and the western powers indirectly acknowledged today the possibility of a collapse in the Big Four Foreign Ministers' quest for a peace treaty which would keep Germany harmless, but still helpful to Europe's recovery.

As the ministers convened today they still were without agreement on a single major point after four days of discussion.

Yesterday they talked about what might happen if this conference bogs down, as the Moscow meeting did last spring, in disagreement.

The Soviet Union bumped into unbudging refusal by Britain — apparently with American and French concurrence—to relinquish in advance the right of setting up a provisional government in western Germany, should such a stalemate occur.

Foreign Minister Molotov insisted upon raising the issue, demanding a definite answer on whether the western powers had such a plan and adding that if they had "the governments involved do not wish to reach an agreement here".

Molotov didn't get a direct answer. However, Foreign Secretary Bevin denied that Britain had such a plan and refused to commit his government or that of the British people "as to what might have to be done in the event of a Big Four failure to agree."

"If in the end peace is denied," Bevin addd, "then surely you cannot at this stage ask us to stand still with Europe in chaos and not do anything at all."

Foreign Minister Bidault refused to say what the French stand would be. Caustically he observed that Molotov had side-stepped committal on the British-backed proposal for an economic merger of the Saar into the French economy and said he would avail himself of the same privilege of silence.

State Secretary Marshall remained silent on the point, except to remind Molotov that the United States more than a year ago had invited the governments participating in Germany's occupation to join in its economic integration.

In most diplomatic quarters it has been expected that the United States will take the lead if quick achievement of Gormen unity is not realized through a plan designed to weave the country's industrial machine into the Marshall program for European recovery.

Late Settlement Averts Walkout Canadian Seamen

Montreal, Nov. 29 — (CP) — An 11th-hour settlement averted a walkout of 7,500 deep-sea members of the Canadian Seamen's Union (T. L. C.) last night. The accord between the union and the Shipping Federation of Canada was reached just before the scheduled coast-to-coast strike set for midnight.

The accord, providing for a 1948 contract covering all unlicensed personnel on Canadian ocean-going vessels, saw the ship-owners make several important concessions to the seamen.

The contract calls for a $20-a-month wage increase to all seamen, retroactive to Oct. 15, 1947; a 10-cents an hour increase in overtime rates; continuous employment; union security; two-weeks holiday with pay after one year's service; a 40-hour week in port; and sick pay in foreign ports at the rate of two-thirds of regular wages and this for 12 weeks; and a marine disaster allowance of $150 for loss of personal effects.

The settlement came after a series of last-minute meetings called by Mr. Justice D. A. McNiven of the Saskatchewan Supreme Court, appointed as conciliator by the Federal Labor Department.

Originally set for last Tuesday midnight, the walkout deadline was postponed to last midnight when the Union announced that agreement had been reached "on some points."

Commenting on the outcome of the prolonged negotiations, President Harry Davis, of the C.S.U., said that "The agreement just signed marks the most significant social reforms ever won by Canadian seamen. While our union did not achieve all we asked for, it represents an outstanding victory for the men of the Merchant Marine."

Efforts to Drive Palestine Partition Plan Thru Falter

New Move to Defer Final Action Till Spring Grows

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 29 (CP).—Efforts to drive the Palestine partition plan through the 1947 assembly of the United Nations in its dying hours faltered today as a new move to defer final action until next spring gained momentum.

With the weary assembly preparing to resume its session at 4 p.m. after a 24-hour recess successfully proposed by France, Colombia's Dr. Alfonso Lopez was reported to have lined up strong support, including the Arab-led Anti-Partitionists, for his plan of deferment.

The long, bitter battle over the plan to divide the Holy Land into Jewish and Arab states has split wide open and the chances of the scheme being adopted by the assembly, even by a slim majority of a vote or two, appeared to decrease.

The partition supporters, led by the United States and Russia, are trying to hold the line on what seemed yesterday to be a narrow winning majority, but they were having a difficult time in face of the deferment campaign and new attempts by the Arabs to smash partition, to which they are opposed but which the Jews favor.

The postponement was intended ostensibly by the French to enable an attempt to be made to reconcile the Jews and the Arabs. France saw in some earlier Arab declarations the possibility of a zero-hour compromise.

The assembly, jittery at the Arab-threatened racial and religious war against the Jews in the Middle East if partition passed, welcomed the breather before the plunge and voted 25 to 15 for the day's postponement. Canada voted for the recess.

But instead of reconciliation, which would have been a miracle in view of the tensions on both sides, the results seem to have been to give the Arabs a further opportunity to draft new proposals to defeat partition and for new lobbying for deferment.

The Colombian proposal provided that the assembly's 57-member Palestine Committee should be reconstructed as a special organ of the assembly to continue work on the Palestine problem; that it try to bring about agreement between Jews and Arabs, that it should report on its work not later than next Feb. 29.

Some countries which had reluctantly committed themselves to support partition were reported ready to back the Colombian proposal as a possible "out".

Appeal Judgment In Chambers Case Given Monday

Toronto, Nov. 29 —(CP)— The Ontario Court of Appeals will give judgment Monday on the appeal of Sydney George Chambers against his conviction and death sentence for murder in the slaying of nine-year-old Marion Rusnak at St. Catharines.

The appeal of Chambers, whose sentence to be hanged Dec. 8 had been deferred, concluded yesterday at Osgoode Hall after Defence Counsel Arthur Maloney advanced several claims for a new trial.

The little girl disappeared on the night of Dec. 23, 1946, and the Crown alleged that Chambers, night watchman at a St. Catharines canning company, lured the girl to his room at the plant and smothered her, throwing the body into the plant's furnace. No body has ever been found.

At his first trial Chambers was convicted and sentenced to be hanged but on appeal won a retrial. The second trial last month resulted in his conviction and another sentence of hanging.

Defence Counsel Arthur Maloney in argument before the appeal court stressed that the Crown had not proved death beyond a reasonable doubt and attacked validity of a confession made by Chambers which was admitted at his trials. In the first appeal the court had ruled that it was not necessary to prove a corpus delecti for prosecution of a murder charge.

MAJ.-GEN. MEYERS MOST UNHAPPY MAN IN STATES

Stands Self-Accused of "Kiss and Tell" Behavior With Associate's Friend

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 29 (CP) — Maj.-Gen. Bennett E. (Benny) Meyers, retired procurement officer of the Army Air Force, stole the spotlight from Howard Hughes in the Senate War Investigating Committee and, as a result, probably is about the unhappiest man in the United States today.

He stands self-accused of "kiss and tell" behavior with the wife of a friend and associate, and accused from many sides of activities while in office and since which may cost him his honor, medals, pensions, wealth and liberty.

At 52 Meyers is a smart-looking, well--preserved figure of a man with thinning dark hair and crisp military moustache. He enlisted in the air force in 1918 and has been a professional soldier ever since.

A native of Buffalo, he lives in an 18-room, six-bath mansion near Hintingdon, Long Island, and had a fine apartment in Washington.

He now is the only high officer formally charged with misdeeds in handling of the billions of dollars worth of war material.

The Hughes inquiry was a fizzle that brought little credit to the investigating committee. But it did produce Benny Meyers and a sensation of the first magnitude.

Series of Revelations

Meyers took the stand early in November during the second phase of the Hughes investigation and there followed a series of startling revelations.

Evidence was introduced purporting to show that the general lined his own pockets through ownership of an aircraft parts factory—an ownership he failed to reveal in accordance with army regulations. He was accused of trying to borrow from

Import Ban Cuts Britain's Trade Says Cockeram

The export program of Great Britain to Canada will tend to be seriously affected as result of Canada's recently announced import ban, members of the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association were told Friday evening by Lt.-Col. Alan Cockeram, M.P., for South York, at their regular monthly meeting.

Speaking before a large crowd of local party supporters and candidates for the forthcoming municipal elections, Mr. Cockeram gave an insight into the possible ill effect of Canada's austerity program and charged that the Federal government was again apparently returning to Order in Council legislation.

"Little attention has been called to the fact that Finance Minister Abbott's import ban is not confined to imports from the United States only," he said. "It covers certain goods from every country in the world. A large number of Austin cars have been sold in Canada during the past year but from November 17th their import has been banned, together with many other British imports."

"The government grants Britain credit in Canadian dollars and now proceeds to make it as difficult as possible for her to repay those dollars. The excuse given for the extraordinary action is that the United States insisted no discrimination must be shown in the restriction program. Has Canada already become a colony of the United States and are we being dictated to by Washington?" the speaker asked.

Can't be Taken Seriously

"Washington objections to the $7 bonus on gold," he said, "cannot be taken seriously owing to the fact that for several years silver producers in the United States have been bonused at a price well above the world price for the metal."

Promulgations of the new regulations should have followed the calling of a special session of parliament. "The government should have called parliament together earlier and divulged its program to the House and obtained the necessary authority for putting it into effect. It is obvious the government had the dictator complex during the war which they lost when their powers were curtailed last session and have since then preferred to govern by Order-in-Council. They found a flaw in the Foreign Exchange Control Act which has given them back all the powers they had under the duress of war."

The guest speaker was very capably introduced by Mr. George Stokes, M.P., for South Hastings with the appreciation of the meeting being expressed by the secretary of the local association, Mr. Gerald Hyde. President Harry Rollins presided over the meeting, while Mrs. William Warham presided at the piano for a brief sing song.

A number of candidates in Monday's municipal elections were introduced to the meeting, these men speaking briefly to the gathering.

Potatoes Sell For $3 a Bag On Local Mart

Price of potatoes on the local produce market increased to $3 per bag, a $1 increase from the figure quoted two weeks ago. A small run of potatoes were available, however, at the former price of $2.

Attendance was slim on the outside market with but very few vegetable vendors attending. Farmers quoted 50 cents the basket for carrots with turnips fetching five and ten cents according to size.

Grade "A" eggs sold at 52 cents the dozen with mediums fetching 48 and 50 cents and pullets 40 cents. Fowl was plentiful with chicken selling at 40 cents and up to 45 cents per pound for well finished, fully dressed birds. Ducks sold at 55 cents the pound. A few live geese were offered at $5 each.

Weather Delays King Michael's Return Home

London, Nov. 29 — (AP)—King Michael of Romania delayed his departure for Bucharest for the second time today because of bad flying weather.

The handsome young bachelor, last reigning monarch in communist-dominated eastern Europe, flew to London with his mother, Queen Helen, to attend the Royal wedding.

Since his arrival there has been widespread speculation the 26-year-old monarch would not return to his homeland.

The Romanian Press Service attached to the Romanian Legation said, however, that weather, as it did yesterday, prevented his departure by plane and that the young King planned to leave for Paris by train tomorrow "if arrangements could be booked."

Province Will Have Surplus Says Premier

Tignish, P.E.I., Nov. 29 —(CP) —Premier Jones of Prince Edward Island told a Liberal rally in this farming and fishing community last night that "I believe our Dominion - Provincial agreement was a fairly good deal and we will have a propected surplus of $665,00 next year."

Speaking in this village at the northwestern tip of the island, the Premier said that when the Province reached its $2,000,000 deal with the Federal Government — only such agreement not made on a per capita basis — "every premier looked at me until I blushed red."

Speaking in the First District of Prince before the Dec. 11 general election, Premier Jones attacked the Progressive Conservatives for criticizing the financial deal with Ottawa. In 1941, he said, when the Dominion Government took over succession duties and income and corporation taxes from Prince Edward Island for $1,100,000, the Progressive Conservatives approved the deal.

"But now, because there is an election in the offing, they criticize our $2,450,000 deal," he said.

Premier Jones said his government had spent $1,100,000 on health and welfare this year, its largest single item.

CANADA'S INLAND SHIPPING SHOWS GREAT INCREASE

King Winter Just Fortnight Away and Boats Hurry to Home Ports

Ottawa, Nov. 29 —(CP)— King Winter is just a fortnight away from putting his icy grip on Eastern Canada's inland shipping for another season, but lake and river ports can look back on a boom year of near-record proportions.

Canadian ships funnelling grain, iron ore and coal down the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence and carrying foodstuffs and manufactured goods in an ever-increasing flow overseas, all contributed to a total that outdistanced 1946 tonnage.

The ships are still hard at it but this activity will cease when the last vessels tie up Dec. 10 and inland navigation aids are removed for the winter.

The St. Lawrence River canals were kept busy with 6,173,805 tons passed to Oct. 31 against 5,750,578 tons for 1946, and was not far off the 1938 record of about 9,000,000 tons

The Great Lakes canals set a peace-time record. To Oct. 31, they recorded 108,663,337 tons including tonnage on the Welland Canal and Canadian and American locks of the Sault Ste. Marie Canal, against 102,167,041 tons for the season last year.

Previous peace-time record was about 90,000,000 tons in 1929 and the war-time record was more than 120,000,000 in 1942.

A factor in the increased lake shipping was an agreement between Canadian and American firms to allow Canadian vessels to transport cargos from one American port to another. U. S. ships were permitted to carry cargos between Canadian ports.

No breakdowns of figures will be available until later but one shipping firm said grain, iron ore and coal were the major commodities carried on the lakes.

The shipper, who operates from the Lakehead to Father Point on the St. Lawrence, said that in former years grain has been the principal cargo and, when grain cargos were available, many ships were laid up and crews discharged. But this year the movement of other commodities by water increased to such an extent that grain no longer totalled more than all other cargos combined.

The firm forecast good prospects for 1948 if the demand for iron ore, coal and steel continues. Grain will not keep many vessels busy until the 1948 crop begins to move next September.

Ask for Research On Weed Killer

Regina, Nov. 29 — (CP) — The National Research Council was asked last night to support or conduct research into the chemical weed killer, 2, 4-D, in a resolution passed at the closing session of the three-day National Weed Conference.

Universities were also urged to intensify research into the basic physiological aspects in the use of 2, 4-D and allied chemicals.

The resolution said that 2. 4-D promised to be "extremely valuable" in the control of weeds. Since many "apparent inconsistencies" in the results obtained from its use appeared to be of physiological nature on which little information was available, its was felt that more research was needed.

Walda Winchell Back Home Again

New York, Nov. 29 — (AP) — Walda E. Winchell, 20-year-old daughter of Walter Winchell, who had been the object of a wide police search since she was reported missing Wednesday, is back home, Ernest Cuneo, counsel for the Winchell family, announced today.

Cuneo, who asked the Missing Persons Bureau of the Police Department to cancel the alarm for Miss Winchell, said she had been "visiting friends" and was "back home again." He did not elaborate.

Retail Price Of Milk Up Two Cts. Quart Monday

As in other sections of the province the retail price of milk in Belleville will go up two cents on Monday, but this new increased price may be only temporary it was suggested today by officials of the Belleville Milk Distributors Association.

The recent ruling of the Ontario Milk Control Board increasing the price received by the producer is effective throughout the province but to take care of local conditions distributors and producers in the various districts will be permitted to bargain separately, it was stated. In this case the price agreed on would have to be approved by the Milk Control Board.

On Monday consumers in Belleville will pay 17 cents per quart instead of the former 15 cents, while farmers will receive $3.90 per cwt. for what is known as bottle milk, and $2.90 per cwt. for secondary or surplus milk. The former price in the Belleville area was $3.30 straight.

In accordance with the ruling of the Milk Control Board local distributors will have to pay the new price to producers, but it was expected distributors and producers would get together to form a separate agreement and go to the board with a petition.

Conditions in the Belleville area are not the same as in certain other sections of the province, in that there is plenty of milk in the local area, according to distributors.

Until a separate agreement could be signed between the producers and distributors, the retail price of milk in Belleville will be 17 cents.

Young Farmers Work for Better Farming

Brantford, Nov. 29 (CP)—Junior farmers and farm girls are working for better farming, better living and better citizenship, R. S. Duncan, Assistant Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, said here last night.

He told Brant County Junior farm boys and farm girls at their annual banquet that the aims of the movement were many and varied, but the main one was to develop in boys and girls a sympathetic and intelligent understanding of agriculture, one of Canada's most important primary industries.

Mr. Duncan said that the Junior Farm Movement had made giant strikes in Ontario during the last few years and today there are 228 clubs, with 9,000 members. Throughout Canada there were 41,000 boys and girls enrolled in this activity. "Although one-fifth of this membership is in our province, it comprises only a small percentage of those eligible."

Wears the Pants But Not His Own

Oklahoma City, Nov. 29 (AP).—Like any man should, Bert Homer wore the pants at his own wedding—but they weren't his.

They belonged to a dry cleaner who yielded to young love.

Homer arrived for the wedding to find the cleaners had retained the pants from his specially-cleaned suit back home in Fort Worth, Tex.

He grabbed an extra pair from his father—a portly man—and took them to Richard Kelly's cleaning shop. But Kelly said they couldn't be altered. Then his heart was touched by the story and he braced himself and made the sacrifice. "Take mine," he said.

SNOW BLOCKS ROAD

Toronto, Nov. 29—(CP)—Highways Department officials reported their first snow-blocked road of the season today as drifts cut off traffic between Kincardine and Port Elgin, Ont., in the Bruce county snow belt.

Officials said they hoped the road would be re-opened today.

Printers File Notice of Intent To Call Strike

Detroit, Nov. 29 (AP)—The International Typographical Union (A.F.L.) today filed notice of intent to strike against the Detroit Free Press.

It was the second such notice filed here in recent weeks, as the I.T.U. took similar action against the Detroit Times last month. Both disputes involve union demands for pay increases.

Reliable sources said registered letter had not been received there the I.T.U. action were mailed to the Free Press management and the State Labor Mediation Board late yesterday.

Free Press spokesmen said the letter had not been receivd thre early today and they added that no comment would be forthcoming until the letter had been received.

Norman Applegarth, executive secretary of the Detroit Newspaper Publishers' Association, also said he had no word about the I.T.U. action.

Clifford Sparkman, President of Detroit Local 18 of the I.T.P., said he had "absolutely no comment for the press" on the union's test move. Local 18 represents the printers on Detroit's three daily newspapers while the mailers are represented by Local 40 I.T.U.

Taking of the strike vote at the Detroit Times has been delayed by a Times management appeal to the mediation Board and the Wayne County circuit court.

The Times contends that the strike vote should not have been ordered by the board because the Union historically had bargained with all three Detroit daily newspapers collectively, rather than individually.

Formal contracts between the Union and the three papers expired Oct. 31.

The printers and mailers have asked for substantial wage increases, averaging about $17.00 weekly in the case of printers who work days. The proposed increase would bring them to $102.50 for a 36¼-hour week.

Union chapel meetings delayed editions of all three Detroit papers Friday.

The Times' first edition was 80 minutes late while the News was 25 minutes behind schedule. Early editions of today's Free Press were held up Friday night by Printers' and Mailers' Union meetings, Free Press spokesmen said.

MAJ.-GEN. MEYERS

Hughes for a speculation operation in war bonds. He denied virtually everything.

Bleriot Lamarre, a young technician told the committee that he was the dummy president of the company at a salary of $31,000 but was allowed to keep only $3,000 while the general got all the rest less income tax.

Then Meyers, admitted that he was "sinking to a new low," swore that his dealings with the company were prompted solely by his desire to keep near him the beautiful brunette wife of Lamarre who, he said, had been his "girl friend" for four years with the approval and acquiescence of her husband.

The Attorney-General now is preparing a series of charges against Meyer; the air force is preparing for possible court-martial charges; Mrs. Lamarre is reported to be preparing a damages claim and the air force has taken steps to stop Meyers' pension and retirement allowances amounting to more than $500 a month, and to rescind his decorations and awards.

IN MEMORIAM

HOGLE—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Bruce Hogle who died November 29, 1945.

Mother was tired and weary,
Weary with toil and with care,
Put by her pen and her Bible,
Hushed is the voice of her prayer.
Into Heaven's mansions, she's entered,
Never to sigh or to weep,
After long years with life's struggles,
Mother has fallen asleep.

Sadly missed by her husband and family. N29

CHISHOLM—In loving memory of our dear grandmother, Abbie Chisholm who passed away one year ago today, Nov. 29th., 1946.

We are thinking of you today, dear Grandma,
Thinking of you and the past,
Picturing you in our memory,
Just as we saw you last.
We do not need a special day
To bring you to our mind,
The days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If all the world was ours,
We would gladly give it and more,
To see the face of our dear grandma,
Coming smiling through the door.

Sadly missed and always remembered by grandchildren, Bessie, Arthur, Marilyn, Ruby, Vernon and Beverly. N29

CHISHOLM—In loving memory of my dear mother, Abbie Chisholm, who passed away one year ago today, Nov. 29th., 1946, age 87 years.

With tears I watched you sinking,
I watched you pass away;
I tended you with loving care,
But could not make you stay.
I watched beside your bedside,
As the lonely hours passed,
Oh how my heart was broken
When I saw you breathe your last.
God knew that you were suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed your weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
To those who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
There will never be another
To fill her vacant chair.

Deeply mourned by her daughter, Lizzie, and son-in-law Simon Robertson. N29

CHISHOLM—In loving memory of our dear grandmother, Abbie Chisholm, who passed away one year ago today, Nov. 29th., 1946.

Gone, dear grandma, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.

Dearly loved and remembered by grandchildren, Madeline, Lloyd, Calvin, Gordon Robertson. N29

HARROW—In loving memory of my dear grandfather, Alfred Harrow, who passed away nine years ago today, Nov. 29, 1938.

Calm and peaceful he is sleeping,
Sweetest rest that follows pain,
We who loved him, sadly miss him,
But trust in God to meet again.

Sadly missed by Lila and great-grand-daughter Doreen. N29

CHISHOLM—In loving memory of a dear mother, Abbie Chisholm who departed life, Nov. 29th., 1946.

A wonderful mother, woman and aid;
One who was better, God never made,
A wonderful worker, loyal and true,
One in a million, that, mother, was you.

Ever remembered by, Roy, Helen and grandchildren. N29

SILLS—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Elton Sills who passed away Nov. 29, 1941, on his 17th birthday.

A beautiful memory dearer than gold
Of a son whose worth can never be told.
Alone, unseen, he stands by our side
And whispers, "Don't grieve, death cannot divide."

Sadly missed and dearly loved by mother and dad, brother and sister and grandparents. N29

COLLEGIATE NEWS

As last Wednesday was the monthly Office Assembly, Mr Currie was the chairman. The program, as usual opened with a hymn, "O, Little Town of Bethlehem". Then Mr. Currie read Chapter 53 of Isaiah as our Scripture Reading for the morning, after which a boys' trio favored us with the hymn "The Church in the Wildwood". This trio is composed of Brock and Dick Stackhouse and Douglas Wilmott. The boys were very ably accompanied by B. J. Houston at the piano. The Assembly then repeated "The Lord's Prayer".

Next came the usual series of announcements, the first by Miss Merry, who urged us to boost the sale of Christmas cards in the school.

Jim 'Fullofpep' Airth, president of our Students' Council came on at this point with his usual "The short announcements" which took the usual ten minutes of the assembly period. Jim called for suggestions from the student body about the placing of the Memorial plaque of the last War. Prez. then urged all the student to join some club in which they are interested, as B.C.I. offers a splendid choice.

As a preview for next week's Assembly, Jim told us about a movie we shall see next Wednesday morning, entitled, "Queen of the Future", dealing with the life of Princess Elizabeth. As this picture has been shown at the Toronto Exhibition and the Royal Winter Fair it should be well worth seeing.

Then came the long awaited news. Next Wednesday at four, we are to have the first of the full-length movies sponsored by the Students' Council. These movies are costing the students the ridiculously low price of fifty cents for a subscription of six tickets. I won't say any more about this but I'll see you all in this Auditorium next Wednesday at four.

I think that our President, Jim Airth, deserves a great deal of credit for the way he has put into effect his election promises about the War Memorial and the movies.

At this point Leo Marcus made an announcement for the Dramatic Society. Leo urged all would-be Thespians from Grades 11 and 12 to be in the School Library at four on Monday to try out for parts for the One-Act Play to be held in January.

The next announcement, by Janet Ashbury, informed the student body that their subscriptions for High News must be renewed. Get your subscription and see the B.C.I. girls on the cover of next week's edition.

At this point, Mr. Currie warned us of the impending exams. 'Nuff sed'.

Next we were favored with an encore by the Boys' Trio, who sang "Anchors Aweigh" and their version of "Alouette", which came out 'Allyouetta', and which I believe was to have been dedicated to Miss E. Smith.

The B.C.I. Band showed the results of weeks of hard practice when they played "Boogie Woogie Mice". I'm sure all you hepcats (including our illustrious teachers) enjoyed this number.

Though a little out-of-season, we were shown an excellent movie entitled "Speckled Trout Across Canada", which made all the amateur Izaak Waltons green with envy. This concluded the program.

In conclusion, I bring you the question of the week—"Where will you be on December the 10th?

'Til next Saturday, so long.

—Bernard L.

GIRLS' SPORTS

Well, winter is here at last kids and with it of course comes basketball. The girls are practising hard these days and we're sure that when the teams are picked they'll be cracker jack's.

On Tuesday, Nov. 25 picked teams from our grades nine, ten and eleven went to Napanee high school to play volleyball. Grades nine and ten were victorious but the eleven's lost out. Next Monday, Dec. 1st., the same teams from Napanee will be playing our teams in our gym. The admission is ten cents, games to start at 8.00 p.m. If possible please turn out to see the games —you'll enjoy them.

There has not been much activity in girls' sports lately; however here is the schedule during the past week:

November 25; Tuesday, GXIII-A vs GXIIIB. Scored 22-19 for GXIIIB.—J. Ashbury refereed.

November 26: Wednesday, GXI Bvs HXIA. Scored 21-17 for HXIA.

I guess that's all kids, for this week. Pack up your troubles and plough through those exams —you'll come out—somewhere.

CUFF NOTES

—By J. W. P.

Tonight is H-night. I am going to settle down to my homework. I'll work ahead in my subjects. How blissful the thoughts of the surprised expressions as I show the teachers my completed labors.

I get my books out and sit down to apply myself. I shall start on—oh, oh, the 'phone. All thought of work escapes my mind. Hold on, I'm coming. "Play bridge? Tonight? Well, —my homework— all right, in half an hour." I have a spare before Latin; I think I know my math, but there was something else which must be done, I can't recall what it is. I'll do it tomorrow. And so I run from the house and my cares. Free!

At last I reach my destination and hastily discard my coat and mitts. The others have already arrived. And now the eight of us are ready. Bedlam breaks loose. Snatches of conversation drift across the already heavy atmosphere————. "Did you see who she was out with?" "I bid four tens. I can't? Why?" "Isn't he divine? He's new here. I wonder how the prospects are." And so the evening passes.

The morrow dawns, cold and gray but I hope it has no significance. Slowly I plod to school, weary from last night's events. I nod at seven other droopy figures, all too exhausted to speak. We slouch into the classroom and fall into our seats, half asleep. An announcement! A special assembly is to take place, period three. My spare is gone!! What will I do?

I relax during the assembly, but then it's time for Latin. No homework. A detention? No, I'm lucky. What English essay for today? That's what I had forgotten. Ten marks off. Math tests! French tests!! Chemistry!!! Is there no end to this day? At last four o'clock comes and I drag myself home from school.

I fall on the sofa ,weary beyond expression Groping for the radio, I struggle to turn it on. I'm exhausted. A voice blares forth saying—"The Shadow knows. Crime does not pay". Do I need to be told?

BOYS' SPORTS

—By John Francis

Sports activity this week has been confined mainly to planning for the future.

The junior and senior basketball teams have been practising diligently two nights a week for their approaching basketball season. The juniors, no doubt, will be striving for the Bay of Quinte championship, a crack at the COSSA title, and possibly a trip to Toronto. The seniors, who will be aiming for this sane goal, will also attempt to erase the crushing defeats handed to them in rugby, to regain their usual superiority (ahem).

In case some of you incredulous people doubt the ability of the up-and-coming junior basketball team, listen to this. Tuesday, nine of our boys travelled to the O.S.D. and walloped the homesters to the tune of 40-16. Faulkner, tall centre of the B.C.I. boys, was the outstanding player, netting a total of ten points. The B.C.I. lineup was as follows:

Guards—Buchanan, Muirhead, Centre— Faulkner; Wings—Summers, Lepore; Subs — Dolan, Burke, Dudley, Strahan.

Under the able leadership of Mr. Phillips ninth grades have been practising basketball two nights a week in the gym. This is to teach the boys some of the fundamentals and the finer points of the game, so that a strong foundation for junior and senior teams can be laid.

Mr. Townsend is also making plans for Boys' Night. At a meeting in the shower room on Friday, the management for 1948 Boys' Night was decided. Barry Shapiro was appointed secretary-treasurer, while the writer took the job of house manager. Broose Blatherwick and Leo Marcus are in charge of makeup.

Two clubs have kindly offered their help. The Hi-Y club will manage the dance and the minstrel show, while the Key Club will take care of advertising, and the invitation of special guest artists. The B.C.I. Band, under Mr. Cooper's direction, will be on hand to entertain their audience with "scintillating melodies".

Mr. Townsend hopes that this year's Boys' Night will be a great success. Let us all give him our full support.

Educational Notes

THE VALUE OF SANE EDUCATION

(Contributed by Belleville Teachers' Council)

"Whoever goes to his grave with bad English in his mouth has no one to blame but himself for the disagreeable taste."

"There is no frigate like a book
To take us lands away,
Nor any courser like a page
Of prancing poetry."

Here is what Mr. Winston Churchill says in support of books and poetry: "I began to learn by heart many of those passages of poetry which have been a great treasure and comfort to me during my life. The committing of passages to heart and the recording of them is the most valuable part of education."

"No growing boy can afford to stop eating for a day; and no ambitious youth can afford to let a day go by without a little solid reading."

Develops Faculties

A liberal education has one aim — the making of men. The free man, the real man, the complete man must be more than a bread-winner and must have more than the skill to earn his living. He must have "the education which will give him the chance of developing the gifts and faculties of human nature and becoming a full human being."

According to Sir Richard Livingstone — "Economic reasons suggest that the earlier years of life should be given to education. That is the time when the parents are most capable of earning money and the children least capable of it. Further, it is the best age for learning such subjects as foreign languages, for memorizing facts and for tolerating and even enjoying what to an adult is drudgery."

"Children in their early years need tangible rewards for good deeds. But as they advance in school, there should creep in a hint that mere getting is childish. Along with the getting, should come an idea of something worthier; the cultivation of the soul, a standard of honor and behavior. One side without the other spells damnation."

Warns of Over-Specialization

Beware of over - specialization in the school child. Consider the following definition of education: "By education I mean that training in excellence from youth upwards which makes a man passionately desire to be a perfect citizen and teaches him how to rule, and to obey, with justice. This is the only education which deserves the name; the other sort of training, which aims at the acquisition of wealth, is not worthy to be called education at all."

Finally, how could we become educated without a love of books? This blessing is beautifully expressed by Andrew Lang — "One gift the fairies gave me — love of books."

We must ever remember that "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."

Let Every Voter Vote

Municipal elections on Monday December 1st call for all the voters in Belleville to exercise the franchise. There is a good reason for this as there is a contest for every office, for the mayoralty, for the seven council seats to be filled for two years, for the four seats on the Board of Education, and for the election of a public utilities commissioner.

In the past year a number of very important industrial additions have been made to the industries of Belleville and hence the interest as expressed by the casting of ballots should be of greater interest than in the past.

For a number of years there has been a united effort across the country to get voters out at municipal elections and the stress on the public duty of municipal voting has had the desired result of some improvement in the total number of voters coming to the polls and voting in many communities. This year should see a larger number of voters voting than ever here.

In municipal matters the local representative bodies decide on the city's undertakings and have much to do with the development and growth of the city as well as its education, its health conditions and its public spirit. The City Council, the Board of Education and the Public Utilities Commission have charge of local government and therefore what they accomplish and plan to do is of interest to every citizen. Now the people have in their hands the choice of the membership of these organizations which govern locally and in a very real sense have the deciding of what shall be the future of the city.

Let everyone get out and vote. Were any names not on the voter's list, such persons would be annoyed, therefore it is logical that every voter should vote and be consistent when he or she has the vote.

Quite a large number of candidates are in the field. The fact that these have offered to serve the city's interest, which is the interest of every citizen of Belleville, should be effective in bringing out the largest vote ever recorded in the community's history.

The voter through the ballot will decide who will constitute the representatives of the various organizations to be chosen at this time. A very large and representative vote will be of great encouragement to those who will be elected. Those who are chosen deserve this from the public.

There are evidences of keen interest which would indicate that the voters will turn out in large force on Monday.

St. Andrew's Day

At this season Scots give themselves to thoughts of their great heritage, noble past and to their future as a people. These Scots are found not only in Scotland but also in almost every part of the globe and are intensely loyal to their national ideals and national character. The Scot is marked out among men for his sterling worth and virtues.

They have as their Saint, Andrew the Apostle, and this fact can be seen reflected in the sturdy people who dwell in Scotland or who have spread to many parts of the world, carrying with them their intense religious faith, their heroic courage and their deep-rooted traditions.

One of the outstanding characteristics of the Scottish people is their nobility of heart, their fearless approval of the right, their love of freedom which has helped to develop the spirit of liberty which is to be found in the world of today. They are lovers of democracy.

The Scot is admired throughout the world for he has the quality of inspiring others with his ideals. Scotland is not a large country but it has made a contribution to the betterment of mankind far beyond the proportionate number of her people and the size of their country as compared with the populations and the territories of other peoples.

Scots have produced a rich national life which has developed many great souls. They are the spirit of generosity and a kindly generous people, who make friends everywhere they go. At the same time they are intensely loyal to the ideals and traditions and faith of their ancestors. They have given the world philosophers and poets and great storytellers for romance is the very breath of the people who inhabit the rugged northern part of Britain. They have given mankind the greatest of song-writers, Robert Burns, who has touched the heart of humanity with his tender songs.

Scotland has a noble past and heritage. That she has a future of greatness cannot be denied.

St. Andrew's Day is a day when the Scots and Scotland are especially ambassadors of good will to the world. They have won to their hearts the peoples of many tongues to whom Scotland is a second native country for such is the richness of influence which is shed from this "Land of brown heath and shaggy wood,

"Land of the mountain and the flood."

Home Safety

Carelessness in the home, one of the leading factors in our disgraceful toll of accidental death and injury, is now in the spotlight in New York. In the annual campaign of the Greater New York Safety Council nearly a million check lists distributed to the schools through the police department have been taken home by school children, to be filled out on the ground where the accidents occur. They call attention to the hazards which we are so apt to forget: the dark or broken stair, the faulty electric-light cord, the slippery bathtub, the torn rug and a dozen other commonplace factors in the house or apartment, the good condition of which we take for granted, but which, carelessly maintained or used, can bring swift tragedy and suffering. This approach to the home-accident problem is particularly useful because it not only stimulates inspection but serves to indoctrinate the child with the importance of safe living.

When the questionnaires have been returned they will form a useful work sheet of facts to enable the home safety division of the Council to do more thoroughly its work toward the elimination of hazardous conditions. — New York Times.

Backs to the Wall

What is happening in Britain? An upsurge in industrial activity has brought coal and steel production targets for the year into sight, we are told.

Only confirmed socialists are likely to attribute this change to nationalization. We sense rather a revival of that bull-dog determination always most evident when Britons have their backs to a wall — in other words, of "morale." — Montreal Herald.

Tuberculosis Rate

Canada has nothing to be proud of in the statistics which show that the tuberculosis death rate climbed last year to 47.2 per 100,000, an increase of 1.3 — 238 deaths —over the all-time low record in 1945.

This is in sharp contrast to Ontario's 1946 rate of 25.4 and Saskatchewan's 26.6.

The national average was dragged down by such provincial figures as Quebec's 72.2 and Nova Scotia's 61.9. There can be no complacency over an improving local situation while the Dominion total remains so high. — Windsor Star.

We used to speak of being "free as the air." Now that the wild blue yonder may be parcelled out in lanes, delimited by invisible lines, where does the "freedom" go? The same place it went when traffic lights denied cars and pedestrians their free choice of getting into a calamitous jam at every intersection, remarks Christian Science Monitor.

Trust reposed in noble natures obliges them the more.—Dryden.

The purpose firm is equal to the deed.—Young.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who wrote "The Bivouac of the Dead?"

The sonorous dirge entitled "The Bivouac of the Dead" was written by Theodore O'Hara (1820-1867) to commemorate the reinterment at Frankfort, Kentucky, July 20, 1847, of the Kentuckians killed in the battle of Buena Vista in Mexico earlier in the same year.

O'Hara was a newspaperman, soldier of fortune and minor poet, and was the son of a classical scholar named Kean O'Hara who had taken part in the ill-fated Irish revolution of 1798 and who had been one of the Kentucky schoolmasters of Zachary Taylor, commander of the Americans at Buena Vista.

Theodore O'Hara, who himself fought as a Kentucky militia captain in the Mexican War, wrote two versions of "The Bivouac of the Dead," the first being regarded as the better. The first stanza reads:

> The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
> The soldier's last tattoo;
> No more on Life's parade shall meet
> The grave and fallen few.
> On Fame's eternal camping-ground
> Their silent tents are spread,
> And Glory guards, with solemn round,
> The bivouac of the dead.

These lines, in whole or in part, have been carved in marble or cast in bronze on soldiers' tombstones and monuments and inscribed on the gates of military cemeteries throughout America.

In 1850 O'Hara was shot in the legs while leading an assault at Cardenas in Cuba as a member of the Narciso Lopez filibustering expedition. After the Civil War, in which he served as a Confederate colonel, he engaged in the cotton business in Georgia but the enterprise failed when his warehouses burned.

He died of malaria at 47 on a friend's plantation in Alabama. In 1874 his body was reinterred in the military cemetery at Frankfort and his famous poem was placed on his monument, as it had been on the monuments of thousands of other American soldiers. The poet never wrote anything else that attracted public attention and he is remembered almost solely for this one poem.

"Bivouac" is a French word and is believed to be derived from Swiss German "beiwache," which in turn comes from "bei," by or near, and "wache" (wacht); guard. The Oxford dictionary says the beiwache was "a patrol of citizens added to assist the town watch by night." As a military term "bivouac" at first signified a night-watch by a whole army under arms to prevent surprise. Now it means a temporary encampment under improvised or no shelter.

ACCESSORIES TO SAFE AND SANE REDUCTION

Not only amphetamine (benzedrin) but other brain stimulants which are available to all without prescription, contribute to the success of a reduction regimen in this particular way: Cheering the poor wight and so encouraging him or her to carry on with the regimen long enough to get the hang of it and the satisfaction one gets only from an actual loss of a pound or two.

Best of such brain stimulants is coffee or tea. The effects are the same, except that one cup of coffee contains two or three times as much caffeine (or theine), the brain stimulant, as one cup of tea does.

Neither coffee nor tea itself has any caloric value, but of course sugar, milk or cream yields plenty of calories and must be computed as part of the diet if one takes tea or coffee with sugar, milk or cream when on a low-calorie diet. Clear coffee or tea, however, does not yield calories.

These brain stimulants give a feeling of well-being which relieves psychic tension and combats the desire for food.

A great many persons owe their slacker flesh mainly or entirely to the national custom of making eating or drinking the focal point or ostensible purpose of all social gatherings, parties, conventions and the like — a custom handed down to us, no doubt, by our remote Neanderthal ancestors. Indeed a great deal of the national corporeal surplus may be credited to sheer boredom, ennui, monotony, for these unhappy states drive the dull to eat and drink, since they have no book, no avocation, no hobby, no game they can play and, alack and alas, no family or home interests to keep them out of mischief.

Moderate, "social" or occasional drinkers who imagine cocktails and other alcoholic beverages or concoctions are "not fattening" deceive themselves. It is true that alcohol is not food but up to a certain limit it is oxidized and hence yields calories which are readily converted into heat and energy. This spares food which would normally be oxidized to yield the heat and energy required to maintain vital functions and keep the muscles working, if you work, play or exercise at all. So the food you would normally burn day by day piles up as reserve fat to the extent of your intake of alcohol.

Any one who contemplates reduction at all will do well to get at it in a systematic, moderate way with a view to losing only a pound or two a week. Not only is a reducing regimen planned with this object easier to follow faithfully but whatever reduction it brings about is less likely to impair vite and good looks. Moreover, once the measurements have been reduced by a safe and sane regimen you are less likely to put the superfluous fat right back on again after the reducing regimen is finished.

In any case the first week—for many the first weekend — is the hardest. If you feel more than ordinarily let down midway between your strictly rationed meals take a cup of tea or coffee and sip it in a leisurely way while you read or chat or watch the passing world. Use a quarter-grain tablet of saccharin to the cup of tea or coffee for sweetening, if you like. Any one may take up to five grains of saccharin in a day, as a substitute sweetener, with impunity.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Give the Baby a Break

My son has a sweet and lovable child a little over two years old and his wife's folks have the habit of kissing the child on the mouth.

(R. F. W.)

Answer — No one, not even the child's mother or father, should ever kiss a child on the mouth. Suppose some one coming down with diphtheria, meningitis or flu but not yet having any symptoms were to kiss the child on the mouth — the kiss might prove the kiss of death. Don't kiss the baby at all. If you must do so kiss him on the foot or on the back of the neck. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope, for The Brady Baby Book.

Just a month ago I started taking your remedy for allergy, as described in your pamphlet, and it has been just the thing from the word go. It is indeed a blessing to be free from that violent sneezing and watery running at the nose for two hours every morning.

With Canada's Naturalists

(By The Canadian Press)

Reasoning, foresight and inventiveness in a modest degree are now conceded to certain species of animals by modern naturalists. In other words, they behave on occasion in ways that cannot be credited to mere instinct.

Raccoons tethered to a stake will soon learn to pull up the stake in order to reach food. Finches and other birds break off twigs with which they pry out insects from crevices too deep to explore with their bills.

Such instances of seemingly intelligent conduct have lead animal lovers to believe that animals do possess intelligence. This belief has been confirmed by psychologists who made controlled experiments with caged animals.

After 12 days of study, a female chimpanzee solved the problem of extracting bananas from the middle of a long box with two open ends. She seized a pole, provided deliberately, and pushed out the fruit.

Apes have piled boxes one on another to procure food placed beyond their unaided reach. Bananas were placed so high above the normal reach of one ape that they could be reached only by joining three prepared sticks to make one long pole. The ape did this almost immediately.

Chimpanzees soon learned that discs of various colors, inserted in slot machines, brought forth morsels of food of variable appeal. With equal speed they learnthat certain colors brought the choicest morsels, and used them first. Brass discs drew blanks, and were entirely ignored in a matter of hours.

Given more juicy snails than they can consume at one feast, Canadian star-nosed moles promptly hide the surplus for hungrier hours. Coyotes of the prairies have been known to divert water by means of dams, into the burrows of gophers to make them escape to the surface, and a coyote, renowned among hunters for his cleverness, will skilfully double on his tracks to elude dogs. Eskimos insist that polar bears kill sleeping walruses by tossing heavy blocks of ice upon them.

An elephant in a New York doo, learned in less than one day to pick up pennies, drop them into a box high above his head, and register each deposit by ringing a bell. A biscuit rewarded each performance. When pennies were not forthcoming from visitors, the elephant slyly extracted them from the box again and rang the bell.

Mushroom Literature Great

Interested in mushrooms and other queer growths of the woods and wayside? A lot of people are. In the introduction to his book, "Mushrooms, Ferns and Grasses, the late J. Edmund Jones, Toronto magistrate and naturalist, apologized for adding another volume to the library on that phase of natural history—there were so many of them issued from time to time. How many? Dr. Howard A. Kelly of John Hopkins University, one of the leading surgeons in the history of American medicine, was also a keen amateur naturalist. His library contained more than 12,000 publication about mushrooms alone.

WEDDINGS

WILSON—ANDERSON

At three o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, November 22, a very pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized in St. Thomas' Anglican church, when Louella Pearl Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Anderson and the late Mr. Charles Anderson, of Winnipeg, exchanged marriage vows with James Rodney Wilson, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Wilson, of Roslin. Rev. F. A. Smith, rector of St Thomas, was the officiating clergyman for the ceremony performed before an altar decorated with white and yellow chrysanthemums, potted plants and ferns.

Entering the church with her brother, Mr. Charles Anderson of Kitchener, to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, the bride made a charming picture in a suit of dove grey gabardine, her matching hat trimmed with a fuchsia plume, and she wore a corsage of American Beauty roses with white baby 'mums.

Mrs. Muriel West, of Toronto, was her cousin's matron of honor, wearing a becoming suit of grey wool crepe, with navy accessories. Her corsage was of Sweetheart roses and baby 'mums.

Mr. Kenneth Sharpe was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Willard Drew, of West Lake, and Mr. Albert Wallbridge, of Massassaga.

The soloist, Miss Roberta Williams, of West Lake, sang "At Dawning" before the ceremony, and "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register. Professor W. E. Wheatley, church organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wallbridge, where buffet refreshments were served to approximately fifty guests. Receiving with the bridal party was the bride's cousin, Mrs. A. Wallbridge, in a dress of brown wool with a corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by Mrs. N. Wilson, attired in a dress of black and white silk jersey, with a corsage of pink roses.

The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a pearl necklace; to the soloist, earrings and to the groom, a gold tie pin. The groom's gift to the bride was a double strand of pink pearls and matching earrings. To the groomsman and ushers, gold pen knives. The bride's brother received a gold tie set.

For travelling to Ottawa, the bride chose a dress of black crepe, lace trimmed, with accessories in black, and grey, and a muskrat topcoat.

Following their return on Nov. 25th., they were honored by the groom's parents with a banquet in their home at Roslin.

They will later take up residence in Belleville.

COON—HART

Peterborough, Nov. 29.—Trinity Church was the setting on Thursday morning for the marriage of Meta Isabel, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Hart, Belleville, to Mr. Huson Edwards Coon, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Coon, Peterborough Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a frock of pearl grey, with a cascade of silver sequins falling from the right shoulder to the left hip, ending in a drape effect. Her matching open crowned hat was trimmed with fuchsia feathers and she wore a corsage of baby white Chrysanthemums. She was attended by Mrs. Fraser Dunfield gowned in ruby wine, fashioned in fish-tail design. Her hat was of tiny variegated ostrich plumes in Fall shades and she wore a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The groomsman was Mr. Fraser Dunfield.

After the ceremony a small reception was held at the Empress Hotel, where the bride's mother received in a gown of beige satin with hat to match, and the groom's mother was frocked in cinnamon crepe with an ostrich feathered hat.

Following a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Coon will reside in Peterborough.—Peterborough Examiner.

Fascinating Scarf Stole

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THOSE wonderful three-yard-long stole scarfs of Brooke Cadwallader design are more fascinating than the old time crocheted "fascinator" of your grandma's day. . .they are more talented, too. For the long, narrow lengths of brightly printed silk can be bowed or swathed about the neck as well as over the coiffure, as many manners as the wearer has ingenuity to devise.

Here the flower alphabet design . . . A to Z in letter formed with flower prints . .. is passed beneath one of the high fur coat collars typical of the new season, and bowed dramatically over one shoulder of the coat, lighting up the sombre fur.

Successful Bazaar Sponsored by Emmanuel Guild

Members of the Women's Guild of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church, Victoria Avenue, held their pre-Christmas bazaar and afternoon tea in the church hall yesterday, when Mrs. J. Rigby welcomed the guests.

The tea table was centred with a bouquet of colorful baby 'mums circled by matching candles, where Mrs. Andrews poured the beverage, while the guests were served by Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Dennis and Mrs. Clark, assisted by Mrs. Gannon, and Mrs. Bell replenishing the plates and tea pots.

Mrs. Tobworth was in charge of the table offering a fine variety of home cooked foods, and was assisted by Mrs. Vickers. Mrs. Gulliver convened a table of miscellaneous articles, useful and ornamental, which found a ready sale among the visitors.

Treasurer for the afternoon was Mrs. Weese, who reports that the results of this successful project are very satisfactory to all concerned.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Rising costs have hit the theatre just as they have hit the man in the street but there's a silver lining on the stage curtain.

Producers, instead of trying to overwhelm the public by lavish and often tasteless offerings, are budgetting carefully and more wisely than in the free-spending era. The result is evident on Broadway this season in better artistic and commercial planning.

The season can boast nine new plays that are definitely worth seeing, even though not all are top-notch in every aspect. This group includes "Command Decision," "The Heiress" and "Man and Superman" among straight dramas and "Allegro" and "High Button Shoes" among musicals.

Names in Bright Lights

Hume Cronyn, who comes originally from London, Ont., is to be co-starred along with Louis Calhern and Richard Basehart in "The Survivors," a play by Peter Viertel and Irwin Shaw. The play is expected to reach Broadway in mid-January . . . Rehearsals are under way for "Crime and Punishment," starring John Gielgud, which is due here Dec. 22. Robert Whitehead and Oliver Rea are producing this dramatization by Rodney Ackland of the Russian classic . . . Dennis King is slated to replace Gielgud in the cast of "Medea," the current revival of the old Greek tragedy in which Judith Anderson plays the title role.

Laderoute Concert

Joseph Laderoute, tenor from Sault Ste. Marie, received more praise than criticism from local reviewers for a concert he gave this week at Town Hall. The Sun's reviewer, commenting on the program which included works by Handel, Bach, Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven, said "Laderoute has a ringing tenor voice, sings with intelligence and good diction, and also with much self-conscious art." The New York Times' critic said "His long and difficult program was a testimony to his serious intentions and he produced some singing of quality during its course . . . There was also a liberal mixture of disappointing music-making

"Oklahoma!" Anniversary

That long-established favorite, "Oklahoma!" reaches its 2,000th performance on the afternoon of Dec. 4 and the occasion will be suitably marked. Rodgers himself will conduct the overture of the musical on the evening of Dec. 4, at the 2001st showing of the Theatre Guild production which opened at the St. James March 31, 1943, and now is the longest-running musical in American theatre history.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

BIRDS' EYESIGHT

How marvellous is a bird's plumage, its power of flight, sense of direction! Just as wonderful are its eyes. A bird's vision has reached a higher degree of development than that of any other animal, including man.

Our eyes, placed in the front of our heads, have one area of acute vision in each, and these focus together one one object, straight ahead. Birds' eyes, generally placed on the sides of their heads, nearly always have at least two of these yellow, "seeing" spots in each. One pair, like ours, focuses in front, the others look to the left or the right But some birds, among them our most accomplished fliers, the Swifts, Swallows and Terns, have an extra spot in each eye for seeing obliquely forward. Others actually have a band of vision. All this makes for unusually keen eyesight, a necessity for fast fliers or those hunting from a great height.

True, our eyes are mobile, whereas a bird's are stationary. However, its flexible neck makes up for that deficiency, and Nature has arranged that the position of the eyes suits the owner. A Barn Owl's are placed like ours, for its flies low, hunting for prey on the ground. The Woodcock's are far back, and towards the top of the head, because it feeds on the ground and has many enemies to watch out for. High flying birds of prey have their eyes situated so that they can look down easily.

A bird is also endowed with several special eye gadgets. When flying at great speed to a perch the focus must change quickly. And so the cornea of the eye is able automatically and instantly to protrude, like the bellows of a camera being pulled out for a close-up.

When we go from bright sunshine into a dull house, or visa versa, our eyes take a little while to adjust themselves. The pupils of a bird open or shut immediately, as required.

We have the tiny remains of a third eyelid at the inner corner of our eye, but a bird has a complete one in the form of a thin membrane. It is used to keep the eye moistened and free from dust, and also as a curtain which shuts out too strong a light but can be seen through to some extent. On account of it, Eagles can fly directly into the sun.

HERE'S WHY—
the price of milk is being increased

FIRST—The farmers have found it necessary to increase the cost of milk to the dairies by 55¢ per 100 lbs. or about 1½¢ per quart.

SECOND—Because of increased operating costs including a higher expense for labour, the dairies have had to increase their return by about ½¢ a quart.

It is not the wish nor is it in the interests of your dairy to increase the price of milk but just look at the following figures—

In the last eight years while the average price of a quart of milk throughout Ontario has gone up from 11.5 cents to 15.20 cents or 3.7 cents, less than one quarter of a cent of this increase has gone to your dairy. In other words up to July of this year the farmer received 93.79% of the total increase.

Here are the figures taken from the Report of the Ontario Royal Commission on Milk.

	1939	1947 July	Increase
Average selling price per quart	11.50c	15.20c	3.7 cts.
Average price per quart (paid to farmer)........	5.53c	9.00c	3.47 cts.
Average gross *spread per quart	5.97c	6.20c	0.23 cts.

Out of this gross spread must come the dairies entire expenses. This includes the cost of pasteurizing, bottling and the delivery of your milk. Also the maintenance of equipment and buildings and the payment of taxes.*

The reason dairies have been able to operate with a profit at all, is because of increased consumption of milk and economies which were effected through co-operation and efficiency.

During the past year however, the consumption of milk in Ontario has dropped 5% and the cost of almost everything connected with getting milk to you has increased very rapidly.

Here are a few examples of increases since 1939:—

	Increase		Increase
Bottles - - -	10%	Straw - - -	25%
Bottle Caps -	50%	Oats - - -	133%
Cases - - -	100%	Coal - - -	66%
Cans - - -	23%	Cleaners - -	50%
Wagons - -	100%	Brushes - -	35%
Hay - - -	65%	Wages - - -	43%

It is the aim of your dairy to keep milk prices as low as possible, in order that the consumer may at all times be able to purchase an adequate supply and the producer receive an equitable return for his product.

YOUR DAIRY

The dairy which delivers milk to your doorstep every morning is a servant of the community. It is their duty to see that you and your neighbour receive an adequate supply of milk in both winter and summer and in all kinds of weather.

More than likely your dairy is one of hundreds of dairies throughout the province which are members of the Ontario Milk Distributors Association. Through this organization many measures have been taken of direct benefit to the consumer. Many economies have been made possible, that have helped keep down the price of milk in recent years.

Father on the Farm

Their Progress Was a Saddening Sight

By KENN C. CRAGG

Father every year scuffled out some of mother's tomato plants.

It was an annual event, like Fall Fair Day or the hot fowl supper in the basement of the church, except no one looked forward to it in the same way.

Mother, who had raised the plants from seed in boxes on a shelf by the kitchen window, was never pleased. Sometimes she was able to save some of the plants by following father and the scuffler with a trowel and pail of water. But it irked her to do it and their progress down a row of tomatoes was a saddening sight.

In the van was big Maude, a kindly but somewhat oafish mare of advanced years, then the scuffler, father, and finally, mother in a temper.

"Get up! Go on you!" father would yell. Maude, waking suddenly as if from a deep sleep, would shuffle her feet, trying to decide which she should move first, the lefts or the rights. Usually she found it simpler to move all four sideways onto a row of tomato plants.

Blame Was Divided

Mother used to claim the destruction to her tomatoes was deliberate. Father used to blame the horse. "The blamed, big awkard thing." They never came to an understanding on the matter in spite of the opportunities offered each year.

Father had the best of intentions. On in June about the time he was scuffling his turnips, the spaces between the tomato plants and other garden crops obviously needed weeding because mother never had time to cultivate other than close to the rows themselves. Father, essentially a kind man, presumably argued to himself each year. "Why, I can take the scuffler when I'm hitched up, and give a few scrapes. Kill the weeds and at the same time hill the things up."

Father was a great one for "hilling things up," and while he did all right with field crops —more years than not he had to thresh twice—he never was able to distinguish between garden crops that throve on hilling up and those that did not. To mother it was just another grievance, each time she had to uphill the onions.

"It isn't as if I hadn't enough to do", she would say, and fair observers agreed there was something in what she said.

Mother thought if father had any real interest in the garden he could spend a few minutes each noontime and hoe in it. But father's interest didn't carry him to the point of exposing himself to a hoe handle and he wouldn't put the hired man at it.

The man was hired to do man's work. That is, work in the fields or at the barn.

Barn Came First

There, actually, was the nub of the situation—"the Barn First school of farming," mother called it. Father wasn't by any means as much a stickler about it as some of the farmers around, but he held generally to the line that the barn was the producing or money-making part of the farm, and the barn, that is the livestock and the field crops, must come first.

The house, consequently, had relatively low priority, and outside of the main essentials: food, enough to eat, and I do mean enough; clothing, enough to be decently covered; and fuel, enough to keep warm, it had to show real need before money was spent on it.

The cows had drinking bowls in front of them when there was neither a water tap nor a sink in the house. There was an extension to the implement shed when there was neither a built-in cupboard in the kitchen nor a screened porch at the house. There was a side-delivery rake when there was not a pump to the cistern.

Mother put her foot down on buying a litter carrier. A litter carrier, she said with crystal-clear argument, was not going to add one cent to the farm's income. At its best, said mother, all it could do was to have either father or the hired man the trouble of pushing a wheelbarrow, at some personal risk, up a slippery plank on to the manure pile. It was, said mother, a convenience, and if all that money was going to be spent on convenience, she knew where some of it was going.

Father didn't get a litter carrier and mother did get a convenience —two of them. The two together didn't cost more than fifteen dollars, because father always cut enough timber to have seasoned lumber on hand for odd jobs. She got a hole cut in the pantry floor, and that was quite a concession because father had an instinctive aversion to cutting up anything that seemed firm and good.

Dumb Waiter Service

In the hole she had a dumb waiter arranged—the only one in the neighborhood— that lowered food to the deepest and coolest part of the cellar and brought it up again with a flick of the wrist. People came to see it from miles around.

Perhaps it was an association of ideas, but she also had the privy moved. The privy was situated in a commanding position, midway between the windmill and the implement shed, beneath the shade of a maple tree. It was comfortable in summer and had a pleasant view, but definitely breezy in winter, when it could be reached only by way of a crooked path that went first to the windmill and then jogged over a snowdrift kicked up by the wind currents around the shed.

For years mother carped at the site, chosen first by grandfather —without consulting grandma. She wanted it close to the house. Father, an intensely modest man—he always undressed beneath the folds of his enormous nightshirt—felt there was something indecent about having a privy close to the house. Indecent or not, mother took advantage of the controversy on the litter carrier and manoeuvred father into agreeing to a greatly improved privy being incorporated into the woodshed, so that she did not have to step outside the door. People came to see it for miles around. Mother's improvements influenced building in the neighborhood that summer and for a number of summers after.

No Cistern Pump

But she never did get a sink or a cistern pump. The pump in time came to have a special significance, to became a cause celabre, as the writers say.

At first father simply argued what was the use, the pump would freeze in winter. Mother countered that she could at least use it from April to the end of October, but somehow the argument didn't take.

She always prided herself on being fair and reasonable. She wanted water in the house, but had to concede that water before the cows meant more milk and more milk brought bigger cream cheques. She didn't get water in the house, so, out of her egg money she bought two extra water pails, four in all, and ranged them beside the kitchen door. She trained father and the hired men to take the empties out, hang them on hooks she provided at the windmill and never to come in, for meals or anything else, without a pail of water.

It took training, but mother, if nothing else, was persistent. At times she was bitter about the inconveniences of the average farm kitchen, and was outspoken about the men who planned and built the average farm house. She was honestly envious of town women and used to predict that sometime a woman—"no man would have the sense"—would plan a big, useful farm kitchen, that would still save women's steps.

Once she really rebelled. Later it was referred to as the "general strike" because there was something of the sort in England that year. Perhaps it gave her the idea.

It was haying time, and mother, besides looking after the house, the garden, the hens and doing her share of the milking, was popping out each time a load came in to drive the horses on the rope that hauled the hay into the mow.

A Cow Disagreement

The disagreement came over a cow. Father wanted to sell the cow, which wasn't any great asset, but mother liked her. She was a gentle cow.

Father made his big mistake when, in exasperation, and before the hired man, he told mother she was interfering in things in which she had no business and her place was in the house.

"You said it yourself," said mother, "and there's a witness," and she stalked to the house. She didn't come out when the next load came in and father seemed surprised. She didn't go out to help with the milking and by this time father caught on.

Neither said anything about mother's strike, but father gave in first. The second day, at noon, he said, kind of casually, that he had decided to keep the cow, and mother, her face saved, helped that night with the milking.

It was a heady experience a woman of lesser calibre might have taken advantage of. Not mother. She had a new knowledge of power and was content.

Tweed

Hon. Dana Porter Guest Speaker At Tweed Banquet

Tweed. (Special—On Wednesday evening, Nov. 26, sixty-five members of the Chamber of Commerce held their regular dinner meeting at Hotel Tweedsmuir. Hon. Dana Porter, Ontario Minister of Planning and Developing, was the guest speaker.

Mr. S. B. Curry acted as chairman of the dinner in the absence of the President, Mr. C. C. Atton, who is in Florida.

Mr. Gerald L. Johnstone new manager of the Bank of Montreal, was named treasurer to succeed Mr. K. A. McNeil.

Community singing was led by Mr. Arthur Snare.

Chamber Complimented

Mr. Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., for East Hastings, complimented Tweed Chamber of Commerce on the development since its organization about eighteen months ago.

"You have a live group here. You are doing a good job for Tweed and any time I can be of assistance to you, don't hesitate to call on me", Mr. Robson said.

Reeve Arthur McCarey, recently elected by acclamation for his fourth term, said the village is looking forward with anticipation to another progressive year.

The speaker was introduced to the Chamber of Commerce by W. N. Hurst, who stated that he had been chosen for one of the most important posts established by the present Ontario Government. Mr. Porter in his remarks stressed the important points in connection with establishment of new industries.

Many Benefits

The expansion of secondary industry raises many benefits together with many new responsibilities and it is with this in mind that sound planning must be considered. New industries give new jobs, more people come to the cities, towns and villages to fill the jobs. There is a demand for new houses and with them, new roads, new schools, new services for the municipality, he continued.

In this connection he paid tribute to the Village of Tweed, which has secured three new industries this year. Any town must plan its own development to an extent, and while we can provide help and information, we cannot in most cases direct industries to any community, unless it has the raw materials, the labor, the market, the power and the good will to offer, he pointed out.

Tribute for Booklet

He paid tribute to the little booklet published by the Village of Tweed, and said it was one of the most outstanding brochures of its kind which had reached his desk.

The Minister of Planning and Development discussed in detail, the experimental immigration plan adopted by the Drew government of which he has been in charge. Thousands of people in England and displaced persons in Europe are anxious to come to Canada and Ontario and we decided to establish a selective policy of permitting them to come here.

A centralized office was set up in Europe and these people are told what they may expect to find when they came here. They are carefully interviewed, as we must be assured that they are the type of people, who will be likely to find ready employment when they arrive. They have an urgent desire to come to Canada and already, we have transported five thousand of them by air to Ontario. The speaker referred to the excellent manner in which the whole situation was handled by officials from Ontario in London. The families of some of the early immigrants are starting to arrive; we have found jobs and housing accommodation for most of them and they are happy in their new environments.

Thanks of the group to the Minister of Planning and Development, were expressed by Mr. Frank Foster.

New Coach for Chicago Black Hawks is Gossip Item for NHL With Conacher Favored

Manager Bill Tobin Not Blaming Gottselig for Tea's Standing

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

On the basis of "where there's smoke, there's fire", it might be a good guess that Chicago Black Hawks will be under new direction when they take the ice for the National Hockey League's 1948-49 season.

President Bill Tobin of Hawks came through with an emphatic denial yesterday when quizzed about reports from Toronto the Hawks were interested in getting either Lionel Conacher or his brother Charlie as coach next season. But that was to be expected.

Tobin could hardly be expected at this stage of the proceedings, to admit his intentions of replacing Johnny Gottselig as leader for next season. Nevertheless, this is the second indication that Tobin has had such a move in mind Earlier this season there was talk that Tobin would—or had—offered the job to Frank (King) Clancy, the N.H.L.'s referee-in-chief.

Gottselig's merit as a coach isn't a question that will be argued here, but it's a cinch that all the happy days, Dick Irvins, Lester Patricks combined, plus any other mentor anybody wants to throw in, would have had difficulty in icing a winner with the men Gottselig had on hand at the start of the season.

Didn't Have Thing

The Hawks didn't have a thing—and they proved it by losing seven in a row. They have shown signs of life since picking up a bunch of new players but they're still sunk deep in the cellar. Unless they produce something in the nature of a winning streak, their chances of making the playoffs certainly can't be called bright.

At present, Hawks are three points behind the fifth place New York Rangers which may not sound so bad at first. The catch, however, is that Rangers hold two games in hand over Hawks. Rangers either could improve that position considerably, or Hawks could close the gap a bit, when the two clubs meet this weekend.

Theirs is one of three Sunday night games. In the others, Toronto Maple Leafs play at Boston against Bruins while Montreal Canadiens take on the league-leading Red Wings in Detroit. Tonight, Maple Leafs and Canadiens clash in Toronto in the only scheduled game.

Leafs could go into the lead this weekend through a combination of two victories and a Montreal triumph over Detroit. They alone, of the three teams trailing Red Wings, have the chance to displace the league-leaders this weekend. Bruins only play once and they are three points behind Wings. Canadiens are engaged in two games but even a pair of victories would still leave the Habitants a point away from the top.

SNOWFLURRIES, COLD PROMISED FOR CONTEST

Both Argos and Bombers in Top Shape for Grey Cup Final

Toronto, Nov. 29. (CP)—The champion Toronto Argonauts and the challenging Winnipeg Blue Bombers were promised cloudy skies, snowflurries and a freezing temperature today for the National football final.

The Bombers were the underdogs, but they were in fine fettle and despite the 5-1 odds in favor of Argos promised to give the Toronto aggregation a battle. The Western Champions arrived from Hamilton where they've been working out for the past week, and they were full of confidence.

Varsity Stadium on North-Central Bloor Street was sold out for the occasion which always sees a staunch band of Western supporters accompanying the team. A hard, dry field was what both teams had been looking for, and a capacity crowd of 19,000-odd was guaranteed.

Argos have won the Canadian title against Bombers for two years running, 35-0 and 28-6. A third straight win for Argos would equal the consecutive record by Queen's University in 1922-23-24, when Eastern Senior College teams fought for the Canadian title.

Altogether Argos have won the Canadian Crown seven times, a record equalled only by the Hamilton Tigers.

But the Bombers had a proud record of their own against the East. The West has won the Grey Cup three times, and each time it was a Blue Bomber crew that did the honors — beating Hamilton Tigers 18-12 in 1935, Ottawa Rough Riders 8-7 in 1939 and again beating Ottawa 18-6 in 1941.

In Top Shape

Coach Ted Morris of Argos said his team, which blanked Ottawa 24-0 in the two-game Big Four final and walloped Ottawa Tigers 22-1 in the Eastern-final, was at top shape. Coach Jack West of the Bombers said he thought his team had a chance to take it all.

The coaches naturally wouldn't say anything else. What the fans were wondering was just how effective Bombers' five American imports would be against the Argos, who have used no imports.

These Bomber Americans are Don Hiney, quarterback; Johnny Reagan, Negro half; Johnny Westrum, 220-pound end; Bob Smith, 2300-pound Negro middle, and Bob Sandberg, 205-pound halfback. Coach West himself originally was from North Dakota.

Against these and other Winnipeg stalwarts Argos had Mr. Football himself, Joe Krol, the triple-threat star; Royal Copeland, ace plunger and pass-receiver, and perhaps the most formidable line that the East has ever seen. No wingline in the East has beaten this one this year.

"We'll go out full of fire and hope that we're good enough to win," said Coach Morris.

Coach West was counting on Sandberg's plunging, Reagan's passing and the fleet feet of Hiney and Harry Wood to upset all the calculations.

The game starts at 2 p.m.

Barbara Ann Scott Leaves for Europe On Dec. 14th

(By The Canadian Press)

Barbara Ann Scott, world's figure skating champion will probably fly to Europe Dec. 14 to start a tour which will embrace the European, Olympic and world figure skating championship meets.

Currently training a minimum of eight hours daily at Ottawa's Minto Skating Club, the 19-year-old skater will be the last non-European to compete in the European figure skating championships at Prague early in January. In future, non-Europeans will not be permited to compete for the European title she won last year.

Although dethroned by Stymie as world's leading money-winning thoroughbred, Calumet Farms Armed has been voted "horse of the year" in the first of two major polls among United States turf experts.

President Bill Tobin has denied reports published in Toronto yesterday that Lionel or Charlie Conacher may become coach and manager of Chicago's National Hockey League Black Hawks. "We haven't discussed it or even thought of it," Tobin said.

The five-day annual Oshawa Curling Club bonspiel ended last night with victory for Gerv Meech's Toronto High Park rink in the R. S. McLaughlin trophy, premier event. Meech's four defeated the veteran Percy Skitch rink from Lindsay by 14-8 in the final. Nels Findlay, Thornhill, defeated J. H. Bolton's Toronto Granites 10-8 in the Sykes Memorial Consolation final.

Resignation of A Sidney Dawes as President of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association was accepted at a Montreal meeting of the C.A.S.A. executive here last night, and it was decided no successor would be named until the annual meeting next May.

Executive members of the Royal Canadian Golf Association meeting at Toronto last night approved without alteration the revised constitution of the R.C.G.A., which has been standing with various amendments since 1938. Most important amendment that was approved was one delegating full powers, financial and otherwise, to the tournament committee. Another important amendment that was ratified gives authority for all competitions to be played in accordance with rules of the R.C.G.A. and not the Royal and Ancient Club of Scotland, traditional ruling body of golfdom.

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Dynamic King Clancy, one of Canada's best known hockey figures, and chief of the referee staff of the National Hockey League addressed a school of referees down Ottawa way the other day and after the session was over regaled the boys with some humorous incidents that occurred during his tenure of service as a player and an official.

• • •

The stubby, if fiery, referee whose shining pate is beginning to acquire all the sheen of a cue ball dug deeply into his store of hockey memories and had the boys in stitches at times

• • •

"So you think hat pins are out of style," the King grinned. "You should have seen the one that was jabbed into me a few weeks ago in Chicago when I boosted myself on the boards to avoid a rush."

"That incident sticks in my mind as one of the funniest, although it was not sticking in my mind at the time," quipped His Royal Hockey Highness.

• • •

Big Babe Pratt "got" Clancy once for a laugh, the King related. "It sounded funnier off the ice afterwards than it did at the time it occurred."

"Pratt came up to me beefing about a decision."

"The argument got hot and I said 'I'd like to be playing against you tonight, you wouldn't be so tough."

"The Babe came back quickly, 'Aren't you?' he said."

• • •

King grinned when reminded about the organist in Chicago who plays the tune of "The Three Blind Mice" when the referees skate on the ice and about the time Bernie Lemaitre, an American Hockey Association referee, was injured in a game and the organist whipped up the popular tune of the time: "You Always Hurt the One You Love."

• • •

"Never know what to expect," King said. "In fact take a second look at that picture of a bunch of stalwarts in the Auditorium Hall of Fame and me in a high collar. We won the world's championship that year, it was about 1922-23, and Ted Dey came in the dressing room with the remark: 'You didn't do bad, fellows, but I think Granites could have beaten you.'"

• • •

Clancy was away back in the early days of his pro play when he referred to the hockey picture but in the rambling conversation he mentioned the Toronto Maple Leafs many times as his favorite club, when he and Charlie Conacher were the mischief makers.

• • •

"Never forget the time I won a chicken at a church social and tucked it into Trainer Tim Daley's underwear when he was sleeping."

Clancy said Tim's remarks could not be repeated but he was afraid to get on a rubbing table for the remainder of the winter.

• • •

Harold Cotton now a Toronto scout, was the victim of a few of the Clancy-Conacher jokes. One time they hung Cotton's pants out of a high window. Cotton was afraid of height and pleaded with his team-mates to retrieve the trousers because his money was in the hip pocket.

• • •

Cotton had bought a new hat and for a joke, Conacher and Clancy got one almost like it in a second hand store, switched them on the train and proceeded to kick the old one about while Cotton hollered about the cost and loss with the words: "You fellows get all the money on the club and I play for peanuts." It was not until the trip was nearing home that Cotton discovered his prize bonnet was not damaged.

• • •

"You think the Cotton hat story funny but there was Alex Connell's fur coat that almost got us in jail in Boston.

"We were with the Ottawas in the old N.H.L. and playing in Boston. I had a toothache and couldn't sleep so Alex said he would go for a walk with me, but we no sooner got on the street than two big huskies grabbed us.

"I reached for identification and was told 'not so fast,' but Connell managed to get away, thinking it was a holdup. After some worry and fears of fight the big fellows holding me were convinced I was a hockey player and so was Connell. They let me go explaining a fur store had been robbed and they were detectives looking for the thieves and thought Connell with the fur coat was responsible."

Clancy said Connell did not appear in a Boston street with the coat for the remainder of their stay.

• • •

King also told about Connell swinging his stick at the back of the rink in New York and cutting a spectator's nose. After the game a tough character met Connell in a cafe and asked him if he was the Ottawa goal-tender. Alex said "No." Lucky for you," replied the thug, "my boss told me to bump off that guy Connell for cutting his face."

This, ladies and gentlemen, comes from the pen of the now Benedict (please Mr. Compositor, don't repeat that mistake of last time and set it 'benevolent', and admittedly nostalgic George Campbell, scribe of the Oshawa Times.

★ ★ ★

"Big sports news today, outside of Oshawa's own particular interests, is the announcement made in Toronto last night by Peter Campbell, to the effect that neither Peterborough nor Belleville will hold franchises in the Border Baseball League this next summer. Failure of the Liftlock City interests to get the berth will no doubt be deeply regretted there, for they had their plans fairly well made to go ahead with rebuilding their seating stadium and diamond. Down in Belleville they haven't done much toward preparing for their club and then again — here's another thought, as it stands now, with Kingston and Ottawa as Canadian entries, the three U.S. teams have the edge in voting power but if Belleville and Peterborough were both in there, then the Canadian clubs could outvote the U.S. teams. See?"

★ ★ ★

Tsk . . . Tsk Tsk . . . "Soup", for shame. Surely you know better than that. In the first place the Border League last year was composed of six teams. Kingston, Ottawa, Auburn, N.Y., Ogdensburg, N.Y., Watertown, N.Y., and Geneva, N.Y. Count 'em. Six? Right. The proposed expansion which included Peterborough and Belleville would make an eight-team loop, right? Which in other words would be four Canadian and four American teams. Correct? Now where do you get the idea of the Canadian teams outvoting the American squads? And in case someone asks you, the Border League will not operate a five or seven-team loop. It's eight or six. That is the reason why this village's request for a franchise in 1946 was laid over.

★ ★ ★

It seems that the grocery chain-store laddies get hockey-minded once in a while. And why not? Comes a story to this desk that the A. and P. puck-chasers, regardless of differences in prices, took on their brotherhood of the Loblaw fraternity in hockey combat the other day. Here is what a grocery scribe, we suspect he is of the A. and P., has to say:

★ ★ ★

"The A. & P. puck-chasers took the measure of Loblaws by a 6-5 count in a clean, fast game at the MeMmorial Arena Wednesday afternoon. It was a see-saw battle all the way, neither side being able to pile up a substantial lead. Loblaws enjoyed a single goal advantage on several occasions, only to have the A. & P. tie it strongly, managed to eke out up and the latter, finishing a win. On the territorial play it could have gone the other way, but A. & P. got the breaks and they capitalized on them."

• • •

Which is fine, m'lad. But next time please include lineups, who scored the goals, etc., and any highlights of the squabble. We'll be glad to use the story. And, incidentally, chum, affix your own signature. There's no charge. So let's have it.

MERCURYS SCORE 5-2 UPSET OVER HAMILTON TIGERS

Toronto Marlboros Strengthen Hold on First Place by Beating Dutchmen

(By The Canadian Press)

Owen Sound Mercurys recalled their sick and maimed to action and last night hammered out a 5-2 upset over the second-place Hamilton Tigers in an Ontario Hockey Association senior A game in the mountain city.

This Georgian Bay outfit with the marvellous recuperative powers, just a few weeks ago had as many as six first-liners benched at one time in their bid for senior honors. It was Owen Sound's 4th victory in 10 starts and they have twice tied teams in this season's schedule. It was the Tigers' fourth loss in 11 starts.

In the other two senior games the rugged Toronto Marlboros thumped out an 8-2 decision over Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen at Maple Leaf Gardens to strengthen their hold on first place and the Hamilton Patricias defeated Stratford Indians 5-3 in overtime at Stratford, putting the Pats in the league's 3rd position.

Loose defensive work and poor netminding by Hamilton's Bengals let the win-hungry Mercurys take a 3-1 lead in the opening frame with the three tallies coming in a 50-second space.

They led 4-1 at the end of the second session and took one for one in the final frame.

Jack Ingoldsby led the victors with two counters while Doug Gillespie, Freddie Smith and Murray Fife scored the other Owen Sound goals. Hamilton tallies came from Tommy Smelle and Andy Theriault.

Joe Primeau's Marlboros didn't start playing hockey until the second period, letting the Dutchmen take a first-period one-goal lead. They tallied four for one in the second frame and four more unanswered goals in the final stanza.

Toronto sparkplugs were Leo Curik, Ike Hildebrand and Johnny McCormack who scored two each while Ray Hannigan and Al Buchanan tallied once. Kitchener's two counters came from Lloyd Roubell and Bobby Dixon.

Nick Phillips and Oscar Clouthier broke the stalemate at Stratford with their overtime counters. The Pats led 1-0 in the first frame, fell behind 1-2 in the second and evened it 3-3 in the last frame. The other Hamilton goals came from Frankie Long, Smack Allen and Killer Kilpatrick. Wally Zuke, Jim Eady and Mike Dziura scored for Stratford.

The junior circuit goes into action again today with five games on the card. Toronto Marlboros meet Toronto St. Michael's Majors this afternoon at Maple Leaf Gardens in a four-point tilt, Guelph visits the Toronto Young Rangers, Stratford Kroehlers go to Oshawa, Windsor at Galt and Barrie at St. Catharines. There are no senior games.

Cornwall Cougars Win First Contest

(By The Canadian Press)

Elmer Steel paced the marksmen with a pair of counters while Dick Prouly, Donny Batten and Jimmy Timmins fired the others. Lachine scorers were Bernie Lauzon, with two and Vfoz Hamel and Jimmy O'Hearn with one apiece.

Belleville Intermediates Show Fine Balance and Power in Defeating Peterborough 10-5

Belleville's 1947 edition of their intermediate "A's" or Senior B's as they will probably be after next week, put on a good show last night as they paraded their seasonal wares before the critical eyes of the fans.

It was the first real test of the big Red team and they came through with flying colors to hang a 10-5 defeat on the once-hated foe from Peterborough in a game that was wide open and brought out the best the locals had to offer.

For once and probably the first time the 1947 edition of this city's senior squad met foemen worthy of their steel. And while it was an exhibition tilt, the players of both teams let their collective hair down and raced into the fray as though the Allan Cup was the bauble for which they were fighting.

It was, as was said before, a wide-open affair. There were fifteen goals scored all told, with our laddies on the long end of the count. But they earned 'em brother. This Peterborough Legion squad is a bevy of rousing huskies who do not know when they're licked (after all they're veterans too y'know), and they plowed right merrily into our fellows before Toots Holway and Speedy St. Louis played Taps on their respective flutes.

Yep, for our money, this 1947 edition of the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans, will do. For once at least, they seem to have balance in all departments. Gone is the one - sided attack, and the sixty-minute defence of last year. Coach Smokey Harris, who must have been a butcher in his young days, or at least a meat-shop salesman has distributed the power of the squad from the goal out so that the team strength is not weakened no matter who is out there.

But experience counts. Despite the brilliant showing of the reserves, this line of Walt Gerow, Leo Goyer and Timmy Williams still stick out like a sore thumb Their scoring power has not diminished in the least and in this writer's opinion they are still the most powerful line in this neck of the woods and that includes Redden's "thunderous power and amazing ability" of whatever team he is talking about.

But to get back to the game. It was the fast open type that is a crowd pleaser. And don't think that the score indicates the difference between these squads, for as good as our lads apepared to be they were not 100 per cent better than Ned Vitarelli's gallant Legionnaires.

But the Redshirts opened the scoring when Wardhaugh, Barrett, line swept down the ice at the four minute mark with Jackie sinking the rubber behind the Petes goalie. Ken McNaught drew the wrath of the officials and the Petes sensing their advantage took over the aggression and before the Redshirts had organizeo, rammed home a couple of goals from B. Nicholls and Vitarelli (Ned's son, that is) to give the visitors the edge.

But it was short-lived. The locals stung by the setback surged back to the attack and by the time Referee St. Louis had yodelled taps on his peccolo Clare Williamson in a brilliant solo effort, Leo Goyer and Walt Gerow had dented the rigging for a trio of markers. That gave the Redshirts a 4-2 margin going into the second period.

Williams and Wardhaugh and Williamson scored again in this heat with the Petes coming back with a brace of markers from the sticks of F. Mortimer and Parnell.

Going into the third chukker our prides had a 7-4 lead and the old pastime appeared to be in the bag—which it was. But a fighting Petes squad lashed out with all their heavy artillery and blasted the home fort with all they had. But M'sieu Gerow and his pals, including one Ken Murphy put on counter fire which clicked. Walt rammed home two more goals with Murphy getting third Red tally of the period. Greenlaw teamed up with Rochetti to get the lone Petes marker.

Deer Hunting and Solunar Periods

For the past twenty-one years, during which time I have been preaching the doctrine of the Solunar Theory, it is only natural that I should receive a great many letters from a great many people. Not all of these have been friendly letters. Far from it. In them I have been called a nature faker, a swindler, a crook, a liar, and other things not included within the usage of public print.

For the most part, however, my mail is friendly mail. Fellow sportsmen write to me to relate happenings of interest with regard to the Solunar Tables. To be sure, the great majority of these events are an old story to a fellow who has watched the effects of the Solunar Periods on wildlife as long as I have . That, however, does not lessen my interest in the letters nor my appreciation of the receipt of them.

• • •

Now and then, however, I receive an unusual letter. One in particular comes to mind. This man had been hunting deer in Michigan Luck had been with him and he had bagged a fine buck. He described the circumstances but gave me no inkling as to the time of day. Then he wound up by challenging me to tell him what time of that particular day he had shot his deer.

Well, that was a tough one About all I could do was to write him and give him the time of the major period that morning. If deer were moving about, as this one evidently had been, they should have been active during the major Solunar Period. Sure enough—I scored a bull's eye. And, incidentally, I made a friend.

This fall I received another letter from a man in California with whom I have been corresponding for a number of years. He is a keen observer of wildlife and he shows how the effects of the Solunar Periods art apt to manifest themselves.

Last June he received a call from two sportsmen who had driven up into the mountains to his summer camp. On the way up, they had seen several big buck deer feeding in the clearings near the road and they remarked that it was unusual to see buck deer out in the open during the bright daylight hours. After listening to them discuss the matter, my friend suggested that they have a look at the Solunar tables. Knowing nothing of the Solunar Theory (a great many of the old-timers refuse even to find out what it is) they had a good laugh over the idea that the movements of deer could in any way be controlled or predicted. My friend produced his copy and showed them that these deer had been feeding during a major Solunar Period. The two men were polite about it but it was quite obvious that they were unimpressed.

• • •

On the following Sunday, the same two men called at his camp again. Once more they reported having seen several big bucks feeding in the open clearings and, in a joking manner, challenged my friend to show them that these deer were feeding in the open during the prescribed hours. He produced his copy of the Solunar Tables and let them look up the time of the Solunar Period for themselves Sure enough, those deer were right on schedule, This time they didn't laugh.

Ten days later the two men were back at camp again, and, as before, the reported several big buck deer feeding in clearings fairly close to the road. Hesitantly, they requested a look at the "mysterious book". For the third time in less than three weeks, the deer were found to have been feeding during a major Solunar Period. My bet is that two old-time deer hunters are going to look over the Solunar Tables after this before they go deer hunting.

• • •

Of course, during the hunting season the presence of an army of hunters in the woods is bound to upset the usual schedule of deer. Thus, only where you can have undisturbed conditions are apt to find that the Solunar Periods govern the movements of deer during the hunting season Frightened animals forget all else but self preservation. A deer that has been disturbed or frightened will concentrate on finding safe cover. But you can depend upon it that undisturbed deer will be active and feeding during Solunar Periods. I've watched their movements literally hundreds of times, and they react every bit as well as do the lesser animals and fish. If you are interested in the behavior of wildlife, keep track of the daily Solunar Periods.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 29. (CP)—Far from the roistering Winnipeg teams of old, the brisk Blue Bombers who will tackle Toronto Argonauts for the Grey Cup here today set up training quarters at Hamilton in a business-like manner that belied their underdog role in the Dominion Football final.

Art Chipman, the genial Bomber president who arrived with the team Monday sporing his new coonskin coat, remarked that this Bomber Club was "the easiest we've had to handle." That set Jim (Globe and Mail) Coleman—mourning the passing of the "Peter Pans of the athletic world"—to recalling the fabled exploits of other Winnipeg teams of the middle 30's.

These were the teams with a 'pants-kicking sense of humor". They were the light-hearted warriors who had a full-grown bear as mascot, who built a campfire, Indian style, in their train on one prairie trip and cooked bacon over it, who tested a dowager's diningroom coffee for warmth by stocking a big toe in it.

As Fritz to Fritz

Another Coleman recollection concerns the time the Bombers discovered that Fritz Kreisler was aboard their train out of Regina. Nothing would do but that their own Fritz Hanson, then at the acme of his grey-ghost brilliance, meet his eminent namesake.

It was darkest night but the violinist, awakened in his compartment, strung along with the gag until the team tried to prevail on him to play something. If playing would awaken other passengers, Hanson suggested that he "just do a bit of practising for us"—to which the violinist said smiling that he didn't "bother to practise".

Said Hanson, shaking his head sadly and sternly:

"Mr. Kreisler, how do you expect to ever amount to anything if you don't practice?"

Sentiment in Sport

For an example of how big-league baseball chains look after their players, consider the case of St. Louis Cardinals and Timmy Burgess of Lambeth, Ont., an amateur well down the Cardinal scale with Allentown, a Class B Interstate League team last season.

Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller discloses that Cardinals heard indirectly Burgess was bothered with his tonsils last season. Along came a letter the other day from Sam Breadon, Cardinal president, enclosing $100 and saying:

"It is not our practice to pay for operations of this kind, but we feel you have a great future in baseball and want you to be in the best shape possible. . ."

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 29 —(CP)—The recent boxing scandal here points up the fact that few out-of-towners realize the issues at stake in New York fights . . . Often two relatively obscure battlers are built up as stars and then one collapses . . But the bare fight statistics don't tell the story . . . It's the betting odds that count . . . The Jake Lamotta-Billy Fox meeting went too far . . . The odds bounced around like a football, from Lamotta-to-Fox-to-Lamotta-to-Fox again . . . But, until the New York sports writers got to work, the betting activities on the "fight" around the Garden didn't get much publicity . . . in ordinary cases, the non-New Yorker doesn't see any of the behind-the-scenes manoeuvring that goes on . . .

Louis-Conn

A good example of a bad match (though not a crooked one), was the second Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight . . . Most of the New York sports writers who knew the men's records, said Conn didn't have much of a chance . . . Consequently, New Yorkers didn't patronize the meeting . . . But the people from outside flocked in at $100 tops . . . Unfortunately, only a group of experienced New York reporters knew enough of the local angles to assess the fight . . .

Best Wishes

During a Brooklyn Dodger press session last week, someone commented on a report that Eddie Dyer would move up to the Cardinal's front office as a result of Bob Hannegan's purchasing the National League baseball club . . . Said Branch Rickey of The Bums: "Dyer is a fine man; he eats, drinks, sleeps and lives baseball. He had a hard job following Billy Southworth but he not only kept the players satisfied but he kept on winning. From a Brooklyn standpoint, I hope St. Louis does change managers."

JOINT PAINS
Here is a medicine made specially to help you
Joint pains may arise from any one of a number of causes but we are concerned primarily where the cause is attributable to the inability of the kidneys to eliminate impurities—in particular, excess acid—from the system. The kidneys MUST help to rid the system of excess acid and other impurities. Nature never intended that these waste matters should settle in the system and be a cause of pain and suffering. The kidneys should, and can, help keep the body regularly cleared of impurities if they function normally. And De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills have been specially made for this purpose. This valuable remedy acts directly on the kidneys—helping to cleanse, to soothe and to tone them so that they can do their vital job of helping to eliminate the waste products from the system. For half a century this tried and trusted family medicine has been doing this and glowing testimonials have poured in in substantiation. De Witt's Pills are sold at drug stores everywhere.

Is Your Child Starved?
Malnutrition is common to school age children because at from ten to sixteen or eighteen years more nutrition is required than at any other time of life.
This is the growing and developing period when boys and girls are coming to manhood and womanhood. Their bodies cry out for more minerals and vitamins. They need a proper diet and plenty of rich nourishing food.
When they do not get enough nourishment there comes irritability, nervousness and tired feelings which interfere with their school work and rob them of success and happiness.

Young people respond quickly to the benefits obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. A few weeks' use of this treatment during the trying school period may prove a lasting blessing. Ask your druggist for the new economy size bottle of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The reason is clear why systems detour to make bids appear at times insecure. The experts, my friends, accomplish the feat by moving both ends that Horse Sense makes meet.

West opened the bidding with a club. An expert says to respond with a heart when holding this hand:

♠ Q 9 7 3
♥ Q 9 6 5
♦ A 8 6
♣ Q 8

The experts went on to say that the east hand did not warrant the intention to make another bid freely. The heart response, he continued, left a spade bid open to west.

Statements like these by experts are what make bridge players go gray. There should be a law. The law should say that experts should be examined to see how they get that way.

East has a count of five tricks; four high and a short in clubs. A responding bid shows only three. This hand has two additional suit tricks for two later raises, if necessary.

The heart suit is not biddable. Neither is the spade suit. So, east should not make a takeout to any suit. Lacking support for the suit bid by partner, east should respond in no-trump.

What prompts an expert to make non-rule bids when a rule bid is available? It is to make allowance for an opening that may not have true requirements. So, they manoeuver both ends. Make true openings and you will not need to make non-rule replies.

In Horse Sense we use a sound opening bid. So, we can stick to definite responding rules. Thus, we have no need for worrying about bidding oddly in anticipation of a partner's inadequate holding.

East has enough high cards for a true response in no-trump. No need to falsify when truth serves a better purpose. If partner has nothing more to say, this is where they belong.

Experts dig up a problem for every solution.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 29 (AP). — Most movie heroes who left the screen to fight for their country have had a tough time in regaining their film prominence.

This conclusion is evident upon looking at the post-war records of various veterans. The vehicle chosen for Clark Gables return to the screen was a notable flop. His second film was only a middling success and many observers declared he was miscast in it.

Jimmy Stewart's first post-war film still hasn't shown a profit and his second is far from a success. Robert Taylor has been seen in only one film since he got out of the Navy, and it was no world-beater. Nor was there much distinction in the returning movies for Gene Kelly, Wayne Morris, George Montgomery, Ronald Reagan and others.

A reason for all this was offered recently by a well-known actress. She told me:

"The trouble is that the studios don't realize that men like Gable and Stewart and Taylor have changed. They are put into the same studios, but they are not the same men.

"They have been gone three or four years and they have become more mature. And, I believe, better actors."

Her theory seems to carry out in the few exceptions among the returnees. Glenn Ford has achieved considerably more fame since the war than he enjoyed before. A big reason is the fact that he (and he admits it himself) matured during his Marine service and his employers have put him in sturdy roles instead of the juvenile parts he played before.

Tyrone Power's post-war films have not been entirely satisfactory, but at least he has been given a chance to act his age and play characters with some amount of depth. And Victor Mature has surprised nearly everyone by showing he can act.

Some hopeful signs for the returned stars are on the horizon. Gable, Stewart, Taylor and others are reported to have more suitable vehicles in the offing. Some of the male film favorites of the wartime variety, who shall be nameless, are reported to be falling fast in public fancy.

AT THE BELLE — "Forever Amber" comes to the screen of the Belle Theatre on Monday with Lina Darnell and Cornel Wilde playing the romantic leads in Darryl F. Zanuck's presentation of the provocative and record-breaking best-seller. Miss Darnell is seen in the title role of the warm and human story of a country girl who becomes the most whispered-about beauty in the gay court of King Charles II.

RECRUIT EXTRA POLICE IN JAPAN

Tokyo, Nov. 29 — (AP)—Japan's home ministry will recruit 36,000 additional policemen in the next five months, local newspapers said today. The country now has 94,000.

SAY HUNGARY CLOSES FRONTIER WITH AUSTRIA

Moscow, Nov. 29 (Reuters) A Budapest dispatch to Tass News Agency today quoted newspaper reports that Hungarian authorities had closed the frontier with Austria. During a document check on a 10-mile section of the frontier, more than 600 men, mostly Germans, were arrested within a week, Tass said.

AT THE CAPITOL

H G WELLS' FILM FORECASTS FUTURE

H. G Wells' amazing forecast of the future, "Things To Come" will begin a three day engagement at the Capitol Theatre Monday evening.

The widely-discussed film which was produced by Alexander Korda predicts the staggering developments in our world in the next century and its magnitude challenges anything ever attempted in Hollywood.

Opening in the year 1940, "Things to Come" describes the breakdown of our present civilization through the next war, and a return to primitive living. Out of this hopeless state grows a marvelous new subterranean world—a sane, practical and very livable Utopia.

According to Mr. Wells, the life of the 21st Century will be lived underground almost entirely. The cities will be built in the sides of mountains, lighted by artificial sunlight and ventilated by conditioned air. The houses will be glass, but windowless, furnishings and clothing will reach a high point of beauty and simplicity, the two-hour day will be a fact and humans will be propelled to the moon from a giant space gun.

Raymond Massey, Ralph Richardson, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Pearl Argyle, Margaretta Scott and Patricia Hilliard head a cast of 20,000 in this truly stupendous production, which the noted William Cameron Menzies directed. "Things To Come" is a London Film, released through United Artists. The remarkable photography was obtained by Georges Perinal, the trick photography is by Harry Zech and the special effects were achieved by Ned Mann. Vincent Korda designed the sets, with the aid of Frank Wells, son of the author, and Arthur Bliss is responsible for the musical background.

On the same program another H. G. Wells' mystery spectacle! A stary of mind smashing eye—amazing 20,000 thrills. Alexander Korda presents "The Man Who Could Work Miracles' with Roland Young, Joan Gardner, Sir Ralph Richardson and Robert Cochran. A rare treat is in store for all Belleville Film Fans. Civic election results will be given from our stage.

AT THE McCARTHY — Fireworks are brewing between John Garfield and luscious Hazel Brooks in Enterprise Studios' "Body and Soul," now at the McCarthy Theatre, through United Artists' release. Lilli Palmer plays the feminine lead opposite Garfield.

HOSPITAL ANNIVERSARY

Medicine Hat, Alta. — (CP)—The general hospital here recently celebrated its 58th anniversary with an "at home" day. The celebration also marked the opening of a new maternity wing of 33 beds and a renovated private patients wing of 27 beds.

CHAPTER 9

To have Webb's vacation coincide with her trip to Lake George made Kay thoroughly angry. She tried everything she dared to discourage his going.

"I love you, Kay," he told her over and over again. "Where you go, I go. I love you, love you!"

She thought finally that if he ever said that again, she would scream. Her nerves were pitched to the breaking point.

Webb insisted upon flying to Lake George, when Kay would have preferred going by motor and visiting some old friends in Ohio. But she dared not openly defy Webb. Their secret bound her irrevocably to him. She must protect Chuck's name, at any cost. Even if he were innocent of murder, even if the police could not prove him guilty, such an accusation would leave a blemish on his record.

They arrived at Lake George with Webb pretending to be Kay's accepted admirer, and with Kay being obliged to endure the situation as best she could. The outcome was of course as Webb had foreseen. The Sherman camp was spacious. Gloria immediately misinterpreted his coming with Kay and cordially invited him to become a member of her house party.

Kay, inwardly fuming, dared not show her feelings. There were several old school friends who, under other circumstances, Kay would have rejoiced to see. Now it was going to be difficult. She must be continually on her guard. The men, about a dozen in all, were mostly strangers to her — and probably would remain so, if Webb had his way.

Webb was merely civil to them and trailed Kay so closely that the other men were somewhat confused as to Webbs status, but ready to jump into Kay's immediate territory if opening offered.

Kay had given Aimee a vacation. It would be a relief not to be obliged to play-act before her for a few weeks. Here in the room set apart for her, she could weep or laugh, as best suited her mood, and not to be under a personal maid's surveillance. Ever since the murder, Aimee had been something of a problem. She had shown insatiable curiosity about the new importance of Webb Taylor in Kay's hectic world.

The day of Kay's arrival, the members of Gloria's house party went into the lake for a dip before dinner. Kay's blue bathing suit and cap matched her dark-circled blue eyes. Her face was flushed; she was assuming a flippant manner unnatural to her. Her leg, as good as ever now, allowed her to run up the steps of a high diving platform. She stood there a second, looking like a wild nymph, then plunged headfirst into the calm clear water.

The lean, lanky Webb swore and swam out to her.

"Say, girl—what's come over you?" he said, scowling. "Want to kill yourself? That's too high a dive for any woman."

"Why didn't you follow me? Afraid? she taunted, swimming fast toward still deeper water.

"Kay; Kay!" he yelled. "Come back!"

Her laugh floated back to infuriate him. He was never sure of his long lean length in the water. Angrily now he swam back to shore, sat apart from the others, hugging his bare knees to his chin.

The chatter and banter of the surrounding members of the party, both in and out of the lake, irritated him. He made a sudden resolution. He would bring Kay to her senses this very night. She would marry him at once or he'd now the reason why! She had no excuse now. Her face was entirely healed—and what a beautiful face it was—her leg was perfect again. She was the Kay of old. She was his!

Kay, far out beyond her depth, suddenly was seized with fatigue. She started to swim back to shore but after a few labored strokes her legs began to cramp.

"Let me help," said a familiar voice close beside her.

Her dark wet lashes lifted in startled dismay. Chuck Nourse was supporting her, his arm at her waist.

"A little tired, aren't you, dear?"

"Yes," she said, not daring to look at him.

"Just float along easily—I'll get you in."

Weakly, she obeyed him. As soon as they came into shallow water, he picked her up in his arms. Her head drooped gratefully against his cheek, her eyes closed. This was heaven. Chuck—Chuck was here!

It was only when he set her feet on the ground that she was brought back to realities by Webb Taylor's brittle voice.

"I'll attend to her now," he said, wrapping her yellow beach robe around her, as if she belonged to him.

Chuck looked his astonishment, first at Kay, then at Webb.

Kay abruptly gathered every vestige of control she had. The clashing personalities of these two men were clearly revealed. It might prove to be a dangerous situation for Chuck. Webb would give him no quarter, she well knew.

She said meekly, taking a step toward Webb, "Yes, Webb—thank you, Chuck."

Chuck stared at her open-mouthed. Then abruptly his muscular sholders straightened, his long legs made swiftly for the bath house.

"You'll have to be careful, Kay" Webb warned stonily. "I don't relish having you in that fellow's company."

"You—you don't—" she began then, catching the look in his eyes, allowed him to pull her down to a bench.

"Yes," continued Webb, slowly and distinctly, "I mean it. You know what the fellow is—what's he's done. You and I both know."

"We don't! We don't" she exclaimed angrily. "It's merely supposition. We haven't given him a chance to defend himself. "We've declared him guilty—and let it go at that."

Webb flashed her a furtive glance, tried not to show his consternation.

"But don't you see—we can't tell him what we discovered — stir up the whole mess."

A sudden horrible suspicion leaped into her mind. Could it be that Webb—no, he wouldn't dare.

"Besides—a man like that shouldn't be at large, should he?" he added thickly.

She looked straight into his plea little blue eyes, appraised his egg-shaped head anew. There was something about the way he was acting that was very peculiar.

He dug his bare toes nervously into the sand, averted her glance.

"Well—it might be better to tell the world about him—smash this business career—I don't know," he drawled, taking a big chance.

Instantly, she came alive to this danger.

"Mercy, no! We can't do that: We can't ruin him! Perhaps if we wait—the real criminal will be found."

"I'm perfectly satisfied about that—and so are you, Kay. We had the evidence. What you think in your own mind I can't prevent—but I can prevent you from associating with the man."

Kay jumped up, her eyes danger signals. "How dare you!" she stormed. "How dare you give me orders?"

He leered up at her, not taking the trouble to rise.

"If you'd rather I broadcast what I know about him—rather—I—"

"You—you despicable—" Her heart was pounding furiously.

He caught her tightly clenched hand, drew her down to the bench again. "You'd better sit here and calm yourself. Better not let the crowd see you this way. Besides—we've plenty to talk over."

Mutely, she sank beside him, fear clutching her senses. It was to be even worse than she had anticipated. Dully she sat beside this man, knowing instinctively what he intended to say, what he intended to force her into.

"Why be so glum over it, Kay?" he said too confidently. "You know I've always loved you, always intended to marry you. You're alone in the world—you need a husband to look after you. It might as well be me."

There seemed no way to defend herself against him. In whom could she confide? Whom could she trust? Even Chuck must never guess what she was doing for him—he must never guess what she was doing for him—he must never know.

"Yes—I suppose so," came from her low.

"Fine! Now you're being sensible!" he exclaimed exulantly. "And I'll give you everything, Kay—everything you've been accustomed to having. My old man is pretty generous with me, except when he thinks I'm stepping out to fast. I guess now he'll open up the old bank roll! He thinks you're a swell number, Kay. We'll get along!"

"You wouldn't think of becoming a regular business man, would you?" she suggested shortly.

"Oh, come now—I am one after a fashion. I don't see why a man should wear himself out in business when he's not specially adapted to it—when he expects a good-sized inheritance. We'll travel, Kay. What do you say if we take a house in London next season—flit about a bit from there? The Riviera, the sunshine of Nice—in the spring, the apple blossoms of Normandy—Italy — in a gondola with you—Switzerland Boy, I'm waxing romantic!"

"To get away from here would be the best for all concerned," she said, thinking that a fast social whirl would ease the pain in her heart.

"Very well, then—we understand each other." He looked at her in a curiously penetrating way, then all at once seemed to think of something.

He said hurriedly, "We can't of course mention our engagement now—so soon after Henn's death. We'll wait—a couple of months."

She released a little of her tension with a sigh. A couple of months! Much could happen in a couple of months!

"Oh, yes—we must wait," she agreed eagerly.

"In the meantime—you'll act wrapped up in me. We'll let the crowd think we have everything settled, without actually acknowledging our engagement. Follow me?"

His shoullers slumped heavily. She had been mistaken. She must do as he said—or else.

"Be reasonable, Webb," she pleaded now. "We've known each other for years. We're always quarreling. We never could make a go of marriage. It would be a grand fizzle—and you know it."

He got nonchantantly to his feet, exclaiming, "Bur-r! It's getting cold! Come on up to the bath-house and get dressed. We'll catch penumonia in this wind."

Ottawa, Nov. 29 — (CP)—It's the little things that prove the sticklers in this capital where myriad problems of running the country crop up every day.

With Wartime Housing Limited, for instance, the problems usually concern housing and they are usually solvable. But the agency has been stymied for a long time now on what to do about a new name.

That may seem like a small matter for the big government arm which built thousands of houses in wartime and now co-operates with municipalities in relieving housing shortages by building rental units across the Dominion.

But, say officials, the right name is important to the agency and to be right it has to meet with the approval of John Q. Public. And to get something that will go over with John Q. is tough.

The only reason the "wartime" name has been retained so long after the end of the war is because no one has thought of an appropriate new one.

Names embracing the word "crown" have been considered to identify the agency as a government enterprise. But experience has shown that that word is usually dropped by the public generally to shorten the name.

One facetious gent suggested that perhaps the agency's projects could be called 'houses-by-Howe' because they are under authority of reconstruction.

That produced a laugh, but no new name for Wartime Housing Limited.

Promotion for Drew

Premier Drew, who has said he has enough to do now without thinking of entering the Federal political field, was introduced to an audience by one of his supporters this week as the "Prime Minister of Canada."

The speaker, Hollie Acres, jovial Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Carleton, did not notice the slip. But Mr. Drew and a good number of the audience did and laughed heartily.

The occasion was a banquet meeting of the Carleton County Federation of Agriculture in a hotel room where many famous slips of the tongue have been made.

One of them was at the expense of the Governor-General. When Viscount Alexander took up his post both he and Field Marshal Montgomery were frequently in the news.

Possibly it was inevitable that at one of the first public dinners which Viscount Alexander attended he was introduced as Field Marshal Montgomery.

Speakers Stress Cleanliness of Milk at Show

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 29—(CP) — A number of speakers at the final day of the Eastern Ontario Export Cheese Show stressed cleanliness of milk as the prime requisite in the making of quality cheese with which Canada can compete in the cheese markets of the world.

Speakers dealing with this theme before the 200 members of the Eastern Ontario Cheese Makers' Association included Charles Heath, secretary - manager of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, Dr. C. K. Johns, associate bacteriologist of the dairy branch at Ottawa and Dr. E. F. Pallister, instructor in animal hygiene at the Kemptville Agricultural School.

Auctioning of prize cheese under the hammer of auctioneer Frank Stick of Brockville, wound up the show.

TO ALL PURCHASERS OF BOTTLED MILK In The Belleville Area

In order to settle some of the rumors that are being spread over Belleville area, we the officers of the Belleville Whole Milk Producers, wish to publish the following statement:

On the 21st. day of November, 1947, the Ontario Whole Milk Producers League and the Ontario Milk Distributors Association entered into a collective bargaining agreement respecting the minimum prices that shall be paid to the Producers supplying milk to the Distributors in certain markets in the Province of Ontario. The price set in the Belleville market to the consumer will be 17 cents a quart.

This price was agreed upon after the Producers Association gave figures which showed the cost of production as $4.05 per hundred pounds, an increase of .75 per hundred over the price the producers are now receiving. The 2-cent per quart increase will give the producers an increase of only 55 cents which is still 20 cents below the cost of production.

The local distributor or salesman on the streets of Belleville are not responsible for this increase in the price of milk to the consumers.

The removal of grain subsidies by the Dominion Government has caused such an excessive rise in the cost of whole grains and concentrates such as: BRAN from $28 to $40; GROUND BARLEY from $39 to $63; GROUND OATS from $36 to $65; OIL CAKE from $56 to $100; DRIED DISTILLERS GRAIN from $37.80 to $65.00 and a general increase of all commodities in use on dairy farm. These increases along with crop failures in this section of the Province, were contributing factors in the necessity of whole milk taking this rise in price.

The Belleville Wholesale Milk Producers' Assoc.

Property Owners - Attention

Question:—What is landscaping?

Answer:—Landscaping a home, a public building or an industrial property is simply that of taking into consideration such factors as driveways, walks, service area, property lines, shades and sun, then planting suitable trees, shrubs and flowers in the right place.

The result of good landscaping is a dignified, pleasing picture — restful and inviting. No cluttered, gaudy appearance. Good plantings become the pride of the owner and the community. They enhance the value of a property as nothing else will do.

Our Mr. William Hogle will be in BELLEVILLE shortly. His years of experience in landscape survey, design and construction will mean much to you, should you have a genuine planting problem, whether large or small. Write us at once, without obligation, asking him to call and discuss modern design, treatment and development of your property. Plan now.

British Currencies Said Unfounded

Paris, Nov. 29 (Reuters).—Press reports in the United States that Britain and France are planning a devaluation of their currencies in the near future are regarded in responsible quarters here as unfounded and misleading, at any rate as far as the French government's intentions are concerned.

It is true that devaluation of a currency is a matter on which governments must necessarily preserve secrecy to the last moment, and official denials of such intentions therefore tend to be regarded skeptically by the public.

Reasons Outlined

But in the case of France, there seem at present to be several solid reasons for taking a recent denial by Economic Minister Jules Moch at its face value.

In the first place, it is generally recognized by financial experts that when the foreign exchange value of a currency has to be readjusted, the right moment to do so is when the economic situation generally is well balanced and the chances of keeping the currency at its new value are good.

This also implies that other major currencies are basically stable.

Neither of these sets of conditions applies at present. The French price structure is thoroughly out of equilibrium, with agricultural prices disproportionately high to industrial prices and with a consequent heavy inflationary pressure for higher wages still in full operation. Furthermore, French experts regard the eventual devaluation of the pound sterling in relation to the dollar as more than a mere possibility.

Unpopular Move

Secondly, in France the act of devaluing the currency, although it only sets the seal on an existing state of affairs, is always unpopular and politically disadvantageous for the government that carries it out.

If devaluation could be linked with a simultaneous adjustment of the dollar value of the pound sterling, however, it could be represented as an international move for which the sole responsibility did not rest with the French government.

For this reason, too, it seems probable that the moment for adjusting the exchange value of the franc has not yet arrived.

It is recognized in responsible circles that the official franc-dollar exchange rate of 119 francs to the dollar and the official franc-sterling exchange rate of 480 francs to the pound over-value the franc in terms of those two currencies at the present time.

Probe Reports Ex-Sergeant Leads Tribal Raiders in Southern Kashmir

New Delhi, Nov. 29 —(AP)— The United States embassy said today it is investigating reports that a former army sergeant is leading a company of northwest frontier tribal raiders against the Indian and Kashmir state army forces in southern Kashmir.

Accounts published here and in London said the man identified himself as Russell Haight of Denver, Col., and that he wore cowboy garb. He was said to have left a road-building job in Afghanistan to join the invaders of Kashmir at Rawalpindi in Pakistan.

The reports said the man declared he had joined the Canadian army when the war started, that he took part in the Dieppe raid in France and that he planned to teach the tribal raiders commando tactics he learned in England during the war.

The raiders have been ejected from parts of Kashmir, but still are attacking in the rugged, mountainous southern area.

A British correspondent who interviewed the man in Rawalpindi said he wore a large hat, high yellow boots, a combat jacket and 3½ rows of campaign ribbons. The Britons said the man was "cuting quite a figure" in Rawalpindi, army headquarters for Pakistan.

In Denver, the sergeant's wife, Mrs. Doris Haight, said: "Russell can take care of himself."

Mother of a year-old daughter, Mrs. Haight said her husband quit his job as an insurance agent in August to go to Afghanistan with a road-surveying firm. She said he is a native New Yorker who enlisted in the Canadian army at the outbreak of war when 17 years old. Later he transferred to the American signal corps as a staff sergeant.

Merchants Will Co-operate Under New Regulations

Modification of the recent Hydro Electric Power Commission order banning all outside lighting as a measure to conserve electricity was announced by the Commission yesterday the relaxation of the order being of especial interest to retail merchants.

Under the modification of the original order merchants will be able to have the equivalent of one 100 watt lamp in each of their store windows during business hours. Following is the paragraph of the order of interest to merchants:

"Lights in show windows in the amount of a single 100-watt lamp for each self contained store window facing the street is permitted during the hours from 4 p.m. to closing time but not later than 9 p.m. daily for a period from December 1st to December 25th, both dates inclusive."

As chairman of the Retail Merchants' Division of the local Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Harold C. Seldon today requested local merchants cut down power consumption inside their stores to the amount equal that which they will use in their store show windows.

Mr. Seldon pointed out that the Hydro Electric Power Commission has announced that if under the relaxation of the outside lighting order the total power consumption is increased then the privilege of having lights in show windows will be discontinued.

At a special meeting of merchants held earlier in the week, local store owners promised every co-operation with the H. E. P. C. to cut power consumption if window lighting was permitted. The hopes of local merchants have thus been realized in their being granted permission for limited window lighting.

CBC Governors To Move Behind Closed Doors

Ottawa, Nov. 29 —(CP)— Sessions of the 56th meeting of the Board of Governors of the CBC were to move behind closed doors today after the hearing of an application of a Montreal radio station for a power increase the last item on the public agenda.

The power increase application comes from CKAC Montreal which wants to move up from 10,000 to 50,000 watts. It was the only item undisposed of yesterday as the board dealt with a series of applications for new radio station licences or for power increases.

The board, meeting in public for the second time since it was decided in September to have open hearings on applications, reserved its decision in all cases.

Besides the application of CHML Hamilton for a power increase there was another Ontario application from C. A. Pollock who wants to establish a 10,000-watt frequency modulation station at Kitchener.

He said he realized that CKCR Kitchener already had been granted a FM licence, but he felt that the area could support two such stations.

G. M. Honsberger, representing CKCR, said the station was not opposed to Mr. Pollock but it felt that as the existing station in the community it should be granted the high powered FM licence. At present CKCR had a FM licence for only 250 watts.
